TAINAN－FU，TAKOW，AND ANPING

The city of Tainan－fu［until 1889 known as Taiwan］，situated in lat． 23 deg． 6 min． N．and long． 129 deg． 5 min ．L．，is the commercial capital of Formosia．It is for an Eastern city moderately clean and well paved．The walls are some five miles in circumference．The shipping port of Tainan－fu is Anping，situated on the coast about three miles to the eastward of the city and connected with the suburbs by a creek．The port is an open roalstead，zessels having to anchor a mile or so from the beach．From the ist November to the end of May the anchorage is a perfectly safe one，but during the $S$ ．W．monsoon a heavy swell sets in，rendering it difficult，and at times impossible，for vessels to load or discharge． The forcign residents in 1001 numbered 43 ，including 34 British， 8 Spanish，and 1 German subjects．Tempered by sea breezes，Anping during the summer months can boast of a cool climate．From 1st October to the end of April there is little or no rain，and the temperature leaves nothing to be desired．The value of the total foreign trade of the Tainan district comprising the two ports of Anping and Takow， approaches one million pounds sterling．：Kerosine is the only import which remains in the hands of foreigners．The Government－General has established in special bureau for the encouragement of the sugar industry and the management of all matters relating to sugar．Its object is to improve the methorls of cultivation and manufacture of sugar．Of the six staples of Formosan trade，namely，tea，opium，camphor，salt，sugar and rice，threc－opium，camphor and salt－have already been monopolised by the Formosan Govermment－General，which now derives three－fourths of its ordinary revenue from these sources．Formerly，the trade in opium and camphor in this district was in the hands of the few foreign merchants at this port，and amounted，before the Japanese occupation，to nearly $£ 250,000$ annually．Since the creation of the monopo－ lies the merchants haye thus been deprived of two－thirds of their income．They feel the hardship particularly in the case of the camphor trade，which was originated and developed in this district entirely by their capital and enterprise，and for the loss of which they lave as yet received no equivalent．

Takow is a port twenty－four miles to the southward of Anping．It takes little or no share in the import trade，but is a principal centre for the sugar export trade．

The last stand against the Japmese was made at Tainan－fu，Takow，and Anping， by Liu Yung－fu，the Black Flag General．Takow was bombarded on the 15 th October and the resistance collapsed without any serious fighting，and＇hinan－fu and Anping were occupied on the 21st October．

Foreign shipping has been injuriously affected in recent years by a decrease in the volume of trade with the opposite coast, caused by the increased tariff on imports and the imposition of export duties in Formosil. The British Consul in his report for 1902 observed that with the exception of two sailing ships, which brought timber from Foochow, the British ships which visited Tainan during the year came from Hongkong or Swatow, chiefly in ballast, and loaded there with general cargo, principally sugar, for the northern coast ports of China. No British ships or foreign vessel cleared for the Japan ports during 1902, the large sugar and rice export being carried exclusively in Japanese steamers. The Japanese Government grants a subsidy of 61,028 yen to the Usaka Shosen Kaisha for a fortnightly steamer service between Anping and Hongkong via Amoy and Swatow, and in 1002 a direct steamer service was started between the ports of Japan and the southern ports of Formosa, for which the same Company receives a subsedy of 124,800 yen. A further subsidy of 143,825 yen is paid to the Company for a service of steamers around the coast of Formosa throughout the year. Since the war broke out the service from Hongkong is at present suspended, the Government requiring the steamers for transport purposes. The sea-going junk trade naturally is sn,wing a steady decrease.

The construction of a through railway from Takow as its southern terminus viá Tainan and Kagee to 'Jaihoku in the north, was begun in the latter part of 1899. The period of construction was estimated at 10 years, and the cost at $28,800,000$ yen, which was to have been raised by the issue, yearly of Formosa Industrial Public Loan 130 ds at certain tixed amounts. The work progressed rapidly in 1900 and 1901, but in 1902 it was temporarily abandoned owing to lack of funds. The section between the port of Takow ind the City of Tainan ( 28 miles) was opened in November, 1950, and the section between Tainan and Kagee ( 43 miles) was opened in March 1902. The railway in its present stage (although a great convenience to the public, and most useful from a military point of view) is not remunerative, and is not likely to become largely so until it has been fully constructed throughout the length of the island.

The proposed harbour works at Takow and Anping, and the other public works are postponed but will be proceeded with as soon as the necessary appropriations can be obtained. The harbours have been completely surveyed and the estimated cost is $$ 6,500,00$ !.

COREA

Corea, or Chosen (the native name), is a peninsuli situated to the north of China which hangs down between that Empire and Japan, separating the Sea of Japan and the Yellow Sea, between the 3 th and 43rd parallels north. It is hounded on the north by Manchuria, on the north-east by Siberia, on the east ly the Sea of Japan, on the west by the Yellow Sea, and on the south by the Chamel of Corca. It has a coast line measuring 1,740 miles, and with its outlying islands is nearly as large as Great lhritain. The name Cora is derived from the Japanese Korai (Chincse Kaoli); and the Portuguese, who were the first navigators in the Yellow Sea, called it Koria. Chosen is translated into " Morning Calm." The eastern half of the peninsula is a sinuous range of mountains of which Western Corea is the slope. The chief rivers of importance are naturally to he found on the western side, and most of the harbours are situate on that coast. Corea is divided into eight do or provinces, named Ping-an, Whang-hai, Kiung-kei (which contains the capital), Chung-chong, Chulla, Kiung-siang, Kang-wen, and IFam-kiung. The climate is healthy and temperate, bracing in the north and mikder in the south, where it is more expessed to summer breezes. The Han river at Seoul is ofter frozen for two months in the year. The fana includes tigers, leopards, wild deer, wild hogs, and in the south monkeys are to be found. A stunted breed of horses exists, and immense numbers of oxen are raised as fool; goats are rare, and sheep are only imported from China for sacrificial purposes. The phensant, eagle, falcon, crane, and stork are common. A great portion of the soil is fertile and the mineral wealth of the kingdom is believed to lee considerable. The history of Coren, like that of its neighbours, is lost in the mists -of olscurity, but according to native and Chinese tradition a Chinese noble named Kishi or Ki-tsze, who migrated with his followers to Corea in 1122 b.c., was the founder of the Corean social order and the first monarch. His descendants are said to have ruled until the fourth century before the Christian era. The present dynasty is descended from. Ni Taijo, a young soldier who was the architect of his own fortunes, and who succeeded in deposing the Wang dynasty. It was at this time, in the 14th century, that Ilan-yang, known as Seoul, was selected as the national capital. His Majesty Emperor Y'i F'in is the twenty-eighth sovereign of the presentline. The Empire isgoverned, under the Emperor and three P'rime Ministers, hy six boards or departments-namely, Olfice and Public Employ, Finance, Ceremonies, War, Justice, and Public Works. The generah methor of procedure is modelled on that of Peking. The State revenue is derived from the land tax.

For many centuries the Coreans successfully resisted all efforts to induce them to hold intercourse with foreigners. The Iing was formerly a vassal of the Emperor of China, and the Emperor of Japan also clamed his allegiance, but by the Treaty of Kokwa, concluded with Japan in 1876, the independence of the country was acknowledged, though China, which assented to Corea's conclusion of this and other treaties with foreign lowers as an independent kingdon, inconsistently continued to claim suzerainty. Upon the establishment of Japanese in the ports of Fusan and Yuensan, the prejudice igainst foreign intercourse gradually abated, and on the 22nd May, 1882, a treaty of friendship and commerce was signed ly the Corean Govermment at Jenchan with Commoctore Shufeldt on behalf of the United States. 1 Treaty with England was signed by Sir Harry Parkes on the 2fith November, 1883; in 1884 Treaties were also concluded with Germany and Russin, and later with France, Italy, and Austria. The population of Coren, according to a recent census, is $5,608,351$, but this is evidently not a trustworthy enmeration. The native population has been estimated by a competent foreign authority it $10,000,000$. A census of the foreign population in 1900 showerl 17,000 Japanese, 3,710 Chinese, and 595 other foreigners-of whom 239 were Americans, 141 l)ritish, 80 French, 62 Germans and th Russins, the remainder being distrilputed amongst eight nationalities. The capital has now two daily papers, having a combined sale of 5,600 copies, and one tri-weekly issue of 2,600 copies. These newspapers, which are increasingly read in the provinces, record the measures adopted by the Government, and afford expression to feeling on public matters. A bi-lingual newspaper, the horea Daily Nears, is now published in the capital, in the vernacular and English.

The foreign trade of the country continues to exhibit stealy growth. In 1903 it reached the highest figures yet attained both as regards imports and exports. The $£ 967,505$ exports. 'I'o this must be added the gold export amounting to $£ 557,006$, making a grand total of $£ 3,384,387$. The average for the previous five years was a little under £ $\mathbf{2}, 500,000$.

The principal articles of import are cotton manufactures, and of export, rice, hides and bones, beins, and gold. There is a considerable paper-making industry, which is. entirely in the hands of the peasantry, its great drawback being lack of capital. The export of gold is yearly increasing. In 1897 it anounted to $£ 240,047$, in 1902, £5 516,961 , and in 190:3 to $\left.\dot{L}: 57,0^{\prime}\right)(T h e r e$ are several gold mines now being worked owned by British, American and German symdicates. The lriteharl Morgan Concession is now developing the Gwendoline mine, and the Uinsan district, over the whole of which this Company possesses mining rights, has been shown to contain silver, copper and coal deposits. The German concession is at Thangokae (Kim-song).

In 1801, owing to a rebellion in the Southern provinces, application was made to China for assistance, and Chinese tronps were sent to restore order. Japan also sent troops and invited China to co-operate in reforming the govermment of the country, but China declined, and war resulted, Japan driving the Chinese out of Corea and carrying the war into China itself.

The Corean standing army, which used to consist of about $5,000 \mathrm{men}$, badly armed, drilled, clothed and fed, is now stated to number 10,000 men. For a few years the ammy was trained by a lussian colonel who was assisted by three commissioned and ten non-commissioned officers, but in 1898 their engagement came to an end. There is noconscription in Corea, but there is no difficulty in ohtaining recruits, the pay, 6 yen a month with free equipment and kit, being considered high, and, moreover, there is no standardloffage or physical qualities. The army consists entirely of infantry, but though the standard of training is low, the young oflicers make a very favourable impression on foreign military experts.

The chief difficulty in the way of trade is the lamentable state of the currency in Corea. The monetary system lacks a reserve of precious metal and reliance is placed on a nickel coin of small intrinsic value. In 1901 ind 1902 an enormous number of spurious s cent coins were put into circulation in Corea. As many as $3,573,138$ pieces (coins and blanks) were contiscated by the customs officers at Chemulpo during 1902, and it was considered that fully ten times that number must have been smuggled into. the country. It seemed to he clearly established that large numbers of these counterfeit coins were coming from Japan, and the Government of the latter country issued a stringent ordinance which gave Japanese customs ofticers power to prevent the shipment of counterfeit coins and enabled the Corean customs to institute proccedings argainst Japanese found guilty of importing nickels of this description. l)uring 1903 this tratfic seemed to have practically ceased. This may be set down as due, perhaps not so much to the Japanese ordinance as to the fact that the coin fell to a value which rendered counterfeiting an unprofitable occupation. For a short time in November, 1903, it was possible to obtain 245 cents for a Japanese yen. The British Consular report for 1902 , commenting on this currency question, rightly remarked that "while the counterfeiters and the passers of debased coin camnot he too severely censured, the Corean Government have paved the way for fraud by filling the country with a depreciated currency of insignificant value, as they have issued without stint permits enabling private persons to undertake the work of coining. Thorough reform of the financial system is the only remedy, and the longer it is delayed the greater will be the plight of the people." A few Corcan statesmen appear to recognise this, but though there has been much talk of taking action, no serious attempt has yet been made to replace the wretched nickel coinage. The Government had been considering a proposal to estahlish a Central lank which should issue notes and undertake financial business generally in various parts of the country, but actual operations have not yet commenced, and it is surmised that the originators of the project apprecinte the fact that the market value of notes issued without it hullion reserve would inmediately become insignificant. Meanwhile the notes of the Japanese Bank, lai Ichi Ginko, are being received in growing contidence in Corea. The largest of the copper cush continue to be exported to Jupan, where they are melted down for the value of the copper they contain. Noprogress has been made by the Corean Govermment with their projected subsidiary silver coinage, although silver to the value of some $\pm^{\prime} 85,000$ was imported hy the Imperial Mint for this purpose.

A railway connecting Chemulpo with Seoul, was opened on September 18th, 1899, and the Coreans have not been slow to avail themselves of modern conveniences for travelling. The third-class fare between Seoul and Chemulpo is 34 cents, about $1 \frac{1}{3}$ cents or $\frac{1}{4}$. per mile.

In 1901 a contract was let for another line, from Seoul to Fusan, a distance of about .300 miles. The British Consul-General in his report for 1901, said:-After protracted negotiations the project for the construction of a broad-gauge railway from Seoul to Fusan has at length taken definite shape. Early in the year the Japanese Government guaranteed 6 per cent. interest on the subscribed capital for a period of 15 years; a company was thereupon formed in Japan to carry out the enterprise, and on August 20th and September 21st work was begun at the Seoul and Fusan ends of the line respectively. The capital of the company is $25,000,000$ yen, or about $£ 2,500,000$, each share being of the value of 50 yen , or $£ 5$. The 400,000 shares were readily subscribed for, and there is little doubt that the remaining 100,000 shares, when issued, will be cagerly taken up." This Company, known as the Seoul-Fusan Railway Company, has since absorbed the Japanese Company which has the control of the railway connecting the capital with Chemulpo, and thus a railway line ruming from the sa on the west to Fusan in the South, belongs to a single Japanese Company with a capital of between $£ 2,500,000$ and $£ 3,000,0$, 0 when fully paid up. The work of laying the track of the line from Fusan has been vigorously pushed forward, from both ends, and sections were opened as the work progressed. The track was completed on Novemberi10th, 1904, and through running is now feasible. The new electric tramway in seoul has been extended to the river port of Riong-san. A Government project exists for a line of railway from Seoul to Wiju, and once or twice during 1902 and again in 1903 operations were commenced, but suspended owing to lack of funds. A Russian financier made an offer for the right to construct the line, but the Corean Government refused to grant the concession, preferring to wait until the state of the tinances would admit of the Government completiug the undertaking themselves. Wiju and also Yongampo on the Yalu River are to be opencd to foreign trade, but until the war is over it is not probable that a date for their opening will be fixed.

The carrying trade of the country is practically in the hands of the Japanese. Out of a total of 3,611 sailing vessels (aggregating 102, C42 tons) entering the open ports of Conea in 1903, Japan was represented by 1,856 ( 70,$4 ; 8$ tons), and by 2,507 steamers ( $1,295,223$ tons) out of the total of 3,548 ( $1,643,963$ tons). The Corean slare in the shipping trade is increasing and liussian steamers were leginning to figure well in the returns before the outbreak of war. The sum of yen $1,000,000$ was sanctioned by the Emperor in 1900 for construction of lighthouses. It is proposed to surround the coast with 31 lights, several of them are already provided and great benefit has accrued to navigation.

SEOUL

The capital city of Han-yang, better known to foreigners as Seoul (which is merely the native term for capital), is situated almost in the centre of the province of Kiung-kei, on the north side of and about three miles from the river Han, about thirtyfive miles from its mouth. It lies in 37 deg. 30 min . N. lat. and 127 deg. 4 min E. long. Han-yang means "the fortress on the Han." The city is enclosed by crenellated walls of varying height, averaging about twenty feet, with arched stone bridges spanning the watercourses. It is in the form of an irregular oblong, and stretches lengthwise in a valley that runs from north-east to south-west. The houses are about eight or nine feet high, built of stone or mud, and mostly roofed with tiles. Internally they are clean, for the Coreans, like the Japanese, take off their shoes before entering their houses. A long main street, about 100 feet wide, running east and west, divides the city into two nearly equal portions. In the northern half are the walled inclosures containing the King's Palace and the more important public buildings. A street about 50 feet wide intersects the main street at right angles, dividing the northern half of the city into eastern and western quarters. At the point of intersection stands a pavilion called Chong-kak (the " lBell Kiosk"), from a large bell about seven feet high which is placed there. This spot is regarded as the centre of the city; and from it another street, as wide as the main street, branches off to the south-west. The four wide streets which thus radiate from the "Bell Kiosk" are known as the four Chong-ro or "Bell roads." Another conspicuous feature of this central part of the city is the row of large warehouses two storeys high, the lower portions of which are divided off into little shops, opening into a small courtyarl instead of ficing the street. The width of the main streets was formerly much reduced by the construction in front of nearly every house of a rude wooden shanty used for $a$ workshop or for business purposes, which gave the streets a poor and squalid apparance, but some of the principal streets have now been cleared of these unsightly olnstructions, and the people aregradually being taught the benefits of good ronds and clean surroundings. $\Lambda$ spacious market place has been erected in one of the busiest parts of the city, and arrangements are being made for establishing two or three others at suitable centres. An ammal appropriation of $\$ 50,000$ has been male by the Financo l) partment for the mantenance and improvement of the roads. The shops are small and mattractive, and contain no articles de luxe or curios. 'The population of the city is variously estimated at from 150,000 to. 240,000 persons; ofticial returns give the number of houses iss 30,000. An electric milway, ruming for three miles along the main streeis of Seoul and thence three or four miles into the country, was opened in 1890 and now extends to Riong-san. A railway connects Chemulpo with Seoul and another line now connects the capital with Fusan.

CHEMULPO

Port of JENCHUAN，called also JINSIN and INCHIUN

浦物洛 Che－mul－po

This port，called by the Japanese Jinsen，and by the Chinese Jenchuan，is situated on the west coast of Corea，in the metropolitan province of Kiongki，at the entrance of the Salee River，an embouchure of the Han or Seoul River．It was opened to foreign trade in 1883，when it was a poor fishing village，and is now a flourishing centre of trade with a native population of 11,000 ，and a foreign population of 7,800 ，of which 6,600 are $J$ apanese，and 1，100 Chinese．

The Settlements are fairly well built over and are now fully occupied．The price of land has risen to almost fabulous rates．

Chemulpo enioys a beautiful climate and is never shut up by ice．The port has two anchorages，the outer one aftording a safe berthing to ships of all size，and the inner one frequented by ships of about 1,000 tons．An enormous rise and fall of the tide，which averages 30 feet，renders the inner anchorage difficult of access to larger ships，and is also a serious hindrance to the navigation of the Seoul River．Only vessels not drawing over six feet may safely run between Chemulpo and Mapu，a place on the river three miles south－west of the capital．

The steamers of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha and Osaka Shosen Kaisha call regularly and have nearly the monopoly of the trade and passenger communication with Japan and North China．Before the war steamers of the Chinese Eastern Railway Company calledat Chemulpo on their run between Shanghai，Port Arthur and Dalny．The Himburg－Amerika Line has also a regular fortnightly service between Hongkong and this port．

There are telegraphic communications with China（overland）and with Japan，凤 cable between Chemulpo and Chefoo remaining a desideratum．

Since September，1899，a railway has connected Chemulpo with Seoul．
Chemulpo easily retains its position as the principal port in Corea．The imports in 1903 amounted in value to $£ 910,355$ and the exports to $£ 357,169$ ．

WONSAN（GENSAN OR YUENSAN）

山元 Yuen．．an

This port，situated in Broughton Bay，on the north－eastern coast of Corea，is in the southern corner of the province of South Ham－kiung，about half way between Fusan and Vladivostock．It was opened to Japanese trade on the 1st May，1880，and to other nations in November，1883．It is called Gensan by the Japanese and Yuensan by the Chinese．The native town has grown considerably since the port was opened to trade， and contains now a population of fully 20,000 inhabitants．The town is built along the southern shore of the bay，and through it runs the main road which leads from seoul to the Tumen river．Markets are held five times a month for the sale of agricultural produce and Foreign imports．The Custom House is situated in the heart of the Foreign Settlements about a mile distant from the Native town．The Japmese have a well－kept settlement containing about 200 houses，with 1,500 inhabitants．The Chinese number 120，and the European and American residents about 30．The harlour is a good one，being spacious，easy of access，well sheltered，with excellent holding ground，and convenient depth of water．January is the coldest month，and one corner of the harbour－that before the native town－is sometimes frozen over，but the part used by shipping is never covered with ice of such a thickness as to interfere with navigation．It has been decided to illuminate the harbour by three lighthouses．The country around Wonsan is under cultivation，and the soil is yery rich．Within a short distance of the port are mines producing copper and other minerals，and gold is found amongst the neighbouring mountains．The cattle at the port，as nearly all over the country，are very tine and plentiful，and can be bought at very low rates；they are used as beasts of burden and for agricultural purposes and are largely exported to Vladivostock for food purposes．A telegraph line from hence to Seoul was opened in July，1891，and has been extended northwards to within 100 li of the Russian frontier．

Trade is carried on by regular lines of steamers running to Japan，Shanghai，and Vladivostock．The latest returns available（1903）show the value of the trade with foreign countries tobe，Imports Yen 225，fi93，and Exports Yen 78，453．The exports consist chiefly of beans，cattle，dried fish，gold－dust，whale－flesh and skins．Imports consist chiefly of cotton and silk manufactured goods，cotton wadding，metals and kerosene oil．

MASAMPO  浦山胃

Masampo was opened to foreirn trade on the 1st May，1890．Its native population is 34,000 and fureign 300 ．liegular lines of small steamers connect the port of Fusan．Its proximity to Fusan and the superior accommodation of the latter port greatly interferes with the commercial expansion of Masampo．Before the war between liussia and Japan broke out it was freely rumoured that liussia was endeavour－ ing to obtain from Corea the cession of this port as a coaling station for her lacific fleet． If the rumour was merely a balon d＇essai it served the purpose of eliciting the fact that the project would neet with strong opposition．

The imports at Masampo in 1903 amounted to $£ 17,300$ and the Exports to $£ 8,925$ ．

MOKPO

浦 木 Mok－po

Mokpo，which，like Chinnampo，was opened to foreign tracle on the 1 st Octoljer ${ }_{r}$ 1897，in pursuance of a resolution of the Council of State，is a seaport in the provinco of Chullit，and has an excellent harbour capable of providing anchorage accommodation for thirty or forty vessels of large tonnage．Chulla is a great rice－growing district and has the roputation of loeing the wealthiest province in the country，and Mokpolies at the mouth of a river which drains nearly the whole province．Nokpo has undergone a great transformation since it was opened．In 1897 it consisted of a few Corean huts surrounded by paddy tields and mut dhats．The foreign settlement，which comprises about g2i areas of ground，was bought up within a couple of years，and the mud flats were rapidly converted into a town，with well laid out streets，ocenpied by nbout 1,200

Japanese and a number of substantial Chinese residents．$\Lambda$ seawall was built and a bund road，over a mile in length，was made．The climate of Mokpo is healthy and salubrious；the scenery much resembles that of South Japan and is picturesque in the extreme．Shooting may be had in perfection，and pheasants，geese，ducks，deer， wild boar and leopards abound．Even tigers will be met with plentifully by those who care to hunt for them．Instances are not at all rare in which pigs，dogs and －even men are carried off by these beasts of prey．Many of the natives are experts in training eagles to hunt smaller birds，like pheasants，de．

The anticipations which were entertained of Mokpo at the time of its opening have proved over－sanguine，doubtless because the port of Kunsan was subsequently opened to foreign trade，and has flourished at the expense of Mokpo．The trade statistics of Mokpo，however，continue to record steady growth．In 1903 the total trade showed an increase in value of about forty per cent．as compared with the figures of the previous year．The Exports in 1903 amounted to $£ 105,106$ and imports to $£ 85,952$ ．

PINGYANG

Pingyang，the capital city of the prorince of the same name，about 44 miles from the port of Chimampr，ranksas the third city of the empire．It has been opened as a trad－ ing mart，where foreigners may reside，trade，and rent landand houses，according tonative rules，anywhere within the limit to be marked off for that purpose．This limit was however ignored，and the Government allowed the matter to slide．No Custom－house will be opened there，all goods to and from Pingyang paying duty for and from abroad at Chinnampo．The forerners residing at l＇ingyang comprise twenty－six Anerican and British missionaries，one French missionary，about 150 Japanese，and 60 Chinese． Two steamers under Corean flag keep up communication between Pingyang and the port of Chinnampo，making the trip in about tive hours．The famous city of Pingyang with its historical battlefields is well worth a visit，fairly good Japaness house accommodation being procurable．The city is beatifully situated in an extensive plain，on the ifhthank of the Ta－tong liver．To the northward of Pingyang city， about 100 li distant，are situated the American and British mining concessions， where less than 20 years ago tho foot of the Occidental had never been allowed to tread；the natives are now quite familiarized with western mining life as it unfolds itself before their eyes．Both mines are worked by foreigners with native help．

This port is situated on the north－eastern coast of Corea，in the province of North Ham－kiung，about 120 miles from Wonsan．It was opened to foreign trade on the 1st May，1899．The native town is built close to the beach，and to judge by the ruins of walls and watch towers was once a fortified place．The settlement will occupy the native town and extend beyond to the North．The native inhabitants number about 500 ．The next market place is about 30 li distant and up country，whilst the main road leading from Seoul to the Tumen river is at a distance of about 10 li ．The Custom House is situated near the settlement on the neck of the small peninsulia forming one side of the Song Chin bay．Of foreigners there are some 100 ．The Japanese live in their own houses built in the settlement，but are mostly small shopkeepers and coolios Tho harbour is a bad one，indeed it is little more than an open roadstad anchorage ；from N．E．to S．E．it is quite exposed，and even witle a moderate breeze from those quarters communication between ship and shore may have to be suspended．The anchorage is not spacious though very easy of access， and vessels drawing 10 feet or so can lie within a quarter of a mile from the shore．Improved jetty accommodation has encouraged the visits of vessels to the port．Fogs prevail for the greater part of the year，and the temperature is moderate at all seasons．The country around Song Chin is well under cultivation， principally for beans．Within reasonable distances，it is said，gold，copper and coal may be found，also a very fine white granite．Hot springs，said to be very cfficacious for a number of ailments，are at a distance of some 30 li from the settlement．Cattle are very fine and plentiful and can be bought at low rates．A number of Japanese fishing boats are employed along the coast reaping a seeningly good harvest in bicho de mar．Trade is carried on by small coasting steamers，principally with the port of Wonsan．The exports chiefly consist of beans，cowhides，hemp cloth and bêcho de mer，whilst cotton goods，kerosene oil，ironware and matches form the principal items of imports．The trade returns of the port for 1903 showed an astonishing increase both in Imports and Exports compared with the figures for 1902．The Imports were of the vaiue of $£ 20,007$ ，and the Exports $£ 20,363$ ．The respective values in 1902 were £2，520 and £ $\ddagger 62$.

Reitining Sovereign and Famity

Kuang Sii，Emperor of China，is the son of Irince Ch＇un，the seventh son of the Emperor Tao Kung．ITe succeded his cousin，the late Emperor I＇ung Chi，who died without issue on the 12 th January， 1875 ，from small－pox．

The proclamation amouncing the accession of the present sovereign was as follows：－＂Whereas His Majesty the Dmperor has ascended upon the Dragon to he a guest on high，without offspring loorn to his inheritance，no course has been ope：but that of causing＇Tsai Tien，son of the l＇rince of（h＇un，to become adopted as the son of the Emperor Weng Tsung Hien（Hien Fing）ind to enter upon the inheritance of the great dynastic line as Jmperor hy succession．Therefore，let Tsai Then，son of Yih Muan． the Prince of Ch＇un，become adopted as the son of the Limperor Wen＇Tsung Hien，amd enter upon the inheritance of the great rlynastic line as Emperor hy succession．＂The present sovereign is the ninth Emperor of China of the Manchu dynasty of＇I＇a－tsing （Sublime l＇urity），which succeeded the native dynasty of Ming in the year 164t．Thero exists no law of hereditary succession to the throne，but it is left to each sovernign to appoint his successor from among the members of his family．The late limperor，dying sudchenly，in the eighteenth year of his age did not designate a successor，and it was in comseguence of palace intrigue，directed lyy the Empress Dowager，in concert with Prince Ch＇m that the infant son of the latier was declared linperor．The Emperor Kuang Sii was born in 1871，assumed the reins of Govermment in February，1887，was married on the 26 ith Fehruary，1889，to Yeh－ho－ma－lit，niece of the limpress lowitger， and his enthronement took place on the ath March following．（On the $=1$ st September， 1898，a Dialace revclution took place and the bimpress Dowager again assmmed the regency，nominally on the ground of the Emperor＇s ill－health，amd she has since－ ruled in the limperor＇s name．
（iovernment and）Revenuf：
The fundamental laws of the empire are laid down in the＇la－tsing Huei－tien，or Collected legulations of the Creat Pure Dynasty，which prescribe the govermment of the State as hased upon the govermment of the family．The limperor is spiritual as well as temporal sovereign，and，as high priest of the Empire，can alone，with his immerliate representatives and ministers，perform the great religious ceremonies．No ecclesiastical hiemarchy is mantaned at the public expense，mon any priesthod attached to the Confucian or State religion．

The administration of the emple is under the supreme direction of the Thterior Council Chamber，comprising four mombers，two of Manchu and two of Chinese origin， besides two assistants from the Ham－lin，or Great College，who have to see that mothing is done contrary to the civil and religious laws of the compies，contanem in the＇In－tsing Hueitien and i：n the sacced hooks of（onfucins．These members are demominated Tal Hsio－sz，or Ministers of State．Thuler their orders are the Li P＇u or seven boards of government，rach of which is presided over hy a Manchuand Chincse．＇They are：－（1） The Li Pu Ili 解 Board of（＇ivil Appointment，which takes cognisance of the comduct which enfores the laws and customs to be observed hy the people；（1）The l＇ing I＇u 悬 A解 or Military Boarl，superintemding the administration of the army；（5）The Kung PuI 仿 or Board of Public Works；（ $(\mathrm{i})$ The Joard of P＇unibhments，or Hsing I＇u 刑 Ab and（7）The Board of Almimalty or hai l＇u 淮解．T＇o these must be added the name（1901）the Wai P＇u 外 int．Its functions are those of arorign（）flice．Indepen－ dent of the Govermment，and theoretically above the central administmation，is the＇Iu－cha Yum，or lbard of Pullic Censors．It consists of from 40 to 50 members，unker two presilents，the one of Mancha and the other of Chinese hirth．By the ancient custom of the empire，all the members of this loard are privileged to present any remonstrance to the soveroign．One consor must be present at the mecting of each of the six govermment lowats．

The amount of the public revenue of China is not known，and estimates concerning it vary greatly．The lmperial Maritime Customs receipts form the only item upon－ which exact figures are obtainable，and these for the your 1903 amounted to Ths．30，530，（i88． Mr．E：A．Barker，formerly of the British Comsular Service，in $180 G$ published the following estimate of the receints from the other mincinal sources：－Lamd tan

Tls. 20,000,000, Salt Tls. $10,000,000$, Lekin Tls. 15, 000,000 , Native Customs Tls. 3,000,000, Miscellaneous Tls. $3,000,000$. In addition the grain tribute may also be estimated at Tls. $3,000,000$, making a total estimated revenue of Tls. $84,000,000$. The amounts given above are those supposed to be accounted for to the Government, but very much larger amounts are raised from the people and absorbed by the officials in the way of peculation. With the significant exception of the Maritime Customs, which is under foreign control, no item of revenue shows any elasticity. The land tax, salt revenue, Lekin or Native Customs, are all about the same figures as they were ten years ago, although it is a matter of common notoriety that these sources of revenue have increased indefinitely. Many modifications were imminent in 1901 in the fiscal plans of both the central and provisional governments to enable China to meet the obligations created by the indemnity paid to the l'owers on account of the Boxer rising in 1900 In some districts Lekin and Native Customs are to come under the control of the Imperial Maritime Customs and hypothecations will be made on the sait revenues. The tariff has been raised to an eflective 5 per cent. ald volorem. These innovations will obtain till 1940, when the amortization of China's obligations will be complete. Sir Robert [fart, the Inspector-Gencral of the Imperial Maritime Customs, estimates the possible revenue from a reform of the Land Tax at 400 million taels.

China hat no foreign debt till the end of 1874, when a loan of $£ 627,675$, learing 8 per cent. interest, was contracted through the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, under Imperial authority, and secured ly the Customs' revenue. Afterwards a mumber of other loans, of comparatively moderate amount, were contracted, mostly through the agency of the IIongkong and Shanghai Bank, ant several of them have been paid off. Up to 189.4 the total foreign debt of China was inconsiderable, but since then extensive borrowings have had to be marle to meet the expenses of the war with Japan and the indemnity, which was Tls. 200,000,000 (at exchange of 3s. 3ld.), with a further Tls. $20,000,000$ for the retrocession of the Liaotung leninsula. The last instalment was paid in 1898, and the total indebtedness of the country up to 1900 was $£ 55,755,000$, the principal loans being the Russian of 189\%, the Anglo-German of 1896, and the Anglo-German of 1898 , each of $£ 16,000,000$. Recently several minor loans, amounting in all to less than $£ 4,000,000$, have been contracted through the agency of the foreign banks for the purposes of railway construction. It is but fair to say that these loans have been devoted to their purpose, and will automatically redeem themselves if cflicient management of the lines be assured. In some cases the lines have been hypothecated to the banks as security, and these institutions have nominated a foreign accountant. The country's obligations in 1901 have been increased by a sum of 'I's. 450,000,000, the amount of the indemnity paid to the lowers to meet (1) the expenses of the Expeditionary Forces, and (2) claims for compensation for losses to missions, corporations, individuals, ©c. It is to be noted that the Chinese census, following all Oriental methorls of calculation, is not to be trusted. There is no suliject on which foreign and native statisticians are more contentious than that of the Chinese population. Experts vary in their estimates between $250,000,000$ and $440,000,000$.

The total number of forcigners in China in 1898 was 13,431 , of whom 5,148 were suljects of (ireat Britain, 2,05\% of the I'nited S'tates, 935 of France, 1,013 of (iermany, 200 of Sweden and Norway, 141 of Italy, 39.5 of Spain, 162 of Demmark, $1,69+$ of Japan, and 1,082 Portuguese, almost entirely natives of Jacao, all other mationalities being represented by very few members. Of 773 mercuntile firms doing hosiness at the treaty ports, 208 were British, 107 German, $-1: 3$ Americin, and 37 lirench.

The principal dependencies of China are Mongolia, with an area of $1,288,035$ square miles, and some $2,(6) 0,100$ people; and Manchuria, with an area of 362,313 square miles, and an cstimated population of $15,000,000$. 'The latter, which is at the time of publication the scene of war between the armies of Russia and Japan has in recent years been steadily and rapidly colonised by Chinese, who greatly outnumber the Manchus in their own land. Thibet, which is also practically a dependency of China, hass an area of ( $4: 3,731$ square miles and it population of ( $, 000,000$ souls. It is culed by the balai Lama, but subject to the (iovermment of Peking, whomatiatain aliesident at Lhassa.

Army and Nayy

The standing military force of China consists of two great divisions. the first formed by the more immediate subjects of the ruling dynasty, the Manchus, and the second by the Chinese and other subject races. The first, the main force upon which the Tmperial Govermment can rely, fom the so-called troops of the Eight Bamers; they gamison all the great cities in such a manner as to be sepanated hy wails and forts from the population. According to the latest but entirely matrustworthy rejorts, the Imperial ammy comprises in total of $8.0,000$ men, including ( 788 companies of 'lartar tronps, 211 companies of Mongols, and native Chinese infantry, a kind of militia, numbering 120,000 men, l, , these figures, derived from Native sources, arealtogether untrust wo:thy. In organization, equipment. persomel and commissariat, the Amy is utterly incticient, and with the exception of a few hrigates of foreign-drilled troops is little better than rabble as far as concerns opposition to European, Indian or Jap:mese troops. The native soldiers do not as a rule live in baracks but in their own honses, mostly pursuing some civil occupation. The Army of Chih-li, umbobtedly the best in the whole Empire, utterly faled to withstand the forign trop)s in $19(0)$ except in the cases when the disparity in numbers was over five to ohe. Disorganisation was supreme: althougl the assenals wound Thentsin and leking were known to contain more than $\leq 00$ modern fied guns and to be replete with machine weapons, very feow were forthcoming in the day of battle. These arsemals, together with the forts at laku, and all camps and fortifications between Peking and the sia, lave now been demolished. Sir lobent lant has formulated a scheme for the reorganisation of the Army, provicling for fom army corps each consisting of 50, (1) mone and a first and second reserve. Ile calculates that at the end of ten years (hinat would have an army on peace footing and in reserves of 50 ), 000 men at an ammal cost of Tlls. 47,10 , , (000.

The Chinese nay consisted, prior to the frunco- hinese war of 188 manly of small gunboats huilt at the Mamoi Arsenal, Foochow, and at Shanghat, on the foreign mondel, but was aflewards groatly strenghened. Five ships were lost, howerer, in the hattle of the Yalu, when the Jipanese inflieted a severe defeat upon tho Chinese, and the remainder of the fleet was captured or destroyed at the taking of Weihaiwei in Pobruary, q98. There cumers of $2,0 \% 0$ tons displacement wow secured in 189. from the Vukean Works at Stetten, and two very fine Jilswick slog)s of the same size were added in 1899 . These, with two corvettes and two training vessels, supplemented hy four Eibau "destroyers," comprised the Pei Ying Squadron of Northern fleret. These vessels might be of real value for convoging troopships, shelline whellions towns, dec, hut as the (himese have no naval hase and no docking facilitios in Northern waters, and as the ships are ill-foumband with indifterent persomel, they woud be of little use aganst a mesole fordign memy. The destroyers were capturednt Taku on June bith, 1900, by the British "destroyers" leme and IVhitine, and apmopriated ley the allies. The Chinese flagshipat the Bar while not actually seized was remered nseless hy pemoving the breech-hlocks of the gums and hy bring placed under rigorous supervision. The remainder of the Flect fled to the Yiang-tse. Sir Robert $\mathrm{IFart}_{\text {in }}$ a scheme of military reorgansation prepared in 190 recommended the creation of three naval souadrons, the Northern, the Southern and the Central, each to consist of 10 battleships and first-class cruisers, 10 second-class cruisers, 10 torpedo-boat destroyers, and 50 torpedo-boats, with a crew of 10,500 men. The scheme is apparently pigcon-holed at l'eking for the present.

Trade and Indutstry

The ports open to trade are:-Newchwang, Chinwantao, Tientsin, Chefoo, Shanghai, Soochow, Chinkiang, Nanking, Wuhu, Kewkiang, Hankow, Fochow, Shasi, Ichang, Chungking, Hangchow, Ningpo, Wenchow, Sintu, Foochow, Amoy, Swatow, Canton, Samshni, Wuchow, Kongmoon, Nimning, Kiungchow, and Pakhoi. Lungchow, Mengtsz, Szeman and 'I'engyueh, on the frontier's of Tonkin and Burmah, and Yatung in 'I'bet, are stations under the cognisance of the Foreign Customs. The import tratle, exclusive of the Colony of Hongkong, centres chiefly at Shanghat, Canton, and Tientsin, while the bulk of the exports pass through the ports of Shanghai, Hankow, Foochow, and Canton. The annual value of the trade of China coming under the supervision of the Imperial Maritime Customs was as follows :-

Mr. II. D. Morse, Statistical Secretary to the Imperial Martime Customs, in his report on the Foreign Trade of China for 1903, says :-
"The value of the Foreign trade of China, expressed in the currency of the country* has again surpassed all previous records, reaching the high figure of IIk. Tls. 541,091,600, almost exactly double the figures of ten years ago. This total exceeds the value given for 1902 by over 2 per cent. . . When we come to look into the details, however, we find that the volume of trade has shrunk, and that to no small degree.
"The net Imports were valued at Hk. Tls. 326,739.1333, an increase of nearly 4 per cent. over 1902. 'To this amount Opium, with a total import advancing from 50,801 to 58,478 piculs, gives an increased value of IIk. Tls. $8,390,000$. For its great article of luxury and self-indulgence, which in 1902 cost an all-round average of Hk. Tls. 700 a picul, China had in 1903 to pay a higher price, Hk. Tls. 750 , and at that price took a farger quantity. The value of Cotton manufactures imported was IIk. Tls. 128,620,004, comparel with IIk. Tls. 127,545,309 in 1902. It is 11 Cottons, however, that the discrepancy between the standards of quantity and of value is most clearly shown. Plain fabrics (Shirtings, Sheetings, T-Cloths, Drills, and Jeans) fell from 10,015,30) pieces in 1902 to $13,835,506$ pieces in 1903, a loss of 29 per cent. in quantity, the values
(Hk. Tls. $57,807,065$ and Hk . Tls. $49,855,565$ respectively) showing a loss of $27 \frac{\mathrm{t}}{6}$ per cent. Fancy Cotton Goods increased slightly, from Ikk. Tls. $16,074,012$ to IKk. Tls. 19,320,246, quantities being relatively unchanged. Cotton Yaru increased from 2,447,971 to $2,738,448$ piculs, it rise of 12 per cent. in quantity, but with an increase of 23 per cent. in the value. The large importations of 1902 left on the importers' hands large stocks of the main stapples; the low exchange ruling in the winter of 1902-03 made the silver price such that the Chinese middlemen were slow in operating, the general stringency of the money market throughout the year, especially in the North, still further restricting sales.

The loss is shown in (Grey Shirtings (35 per cent. less), White Shirtings ( 13 per cent. less), and Jinglish I'Cloths ( 14 per cent. less), as well as in Americin sheetings ( 40 per cent. less) and 1) rills ( 11 per cent. less). The product of the Japancse mills are the only fabrics which make an exception, increase in these being manifested all along the line, Japanese T-Cloths, Drills, Sheetings, Cotton Flamel, and Cotton Cloth all having been imported in larger quantities. To fill the void caused ly the general reduction in fabrics, Yarn came forward in larger quantities; but here also Japan reaped the benefit, having increased its sales from 522,408 to $8: 31,406$ piculs, while Indian Yarn just held its own at 1,880,911 piculs, and English spinnings rleclined a half, to 16,829 piculs; it is to be noted, however, that importers stocks of Indian Yarn were a third less at the close of the year than in January. Woollens call for littlo comment, their value remaining unaltered at Hk. Tls. 3,965,898. Lastings and Long Ells increased and Spanish Stripes and Broadeloth diminished in quantity. Netals increased in value ly 50 per cent., a general increase being observable in quantities as well. Among Sundries the item which should attract first attention is Rice, the import of which from abroad was less than a third of the 1902 importation, the entire demand (except 181,781 piculs for Amoy) being for the industrial province of Kwangtung; the superabundant crops of the Yangtze Valley and of Kwangtung itself sutficiently explain the reduction in the amount. Kerosine Oil, $84,998,335$ gallons, was less than in 1902 by 5.5 per cent., but of a value ( 1 Lk . Tls. $15,723,929$ ) greater by 36 per cent. Except for a reduction from 742,270 to 574,615 gallons in Borneo Oil, the loss falls entirely on the American product, which was less by $31 \frac{1}{2}$ per cent. in quantity, but with nearly the same value; liussian Oil increased 35 per cent. and Sumatra 18 per cent. in quantity, and each nearly doubled in value. Here, too, as in the case of Cottons, we see that, in it general onhancement of prices, it is, in China, on the most expensive articles that the millions effect their first economies. Sugarsw leclined a fourth in quantity and value, the most marked loss being in the Brown qualities. Foreign Flour, a luxury for the well-to-do in China, was less by a fourth, its place being filled by the product of recently established flouring mills grinding Chinese wheat. Cigans and Cigareltes and Wines, Beers, and Spirits increased a fourth in value. Morphia foll to but little more than half the 1002 figures-a subject for congratulation were it not probable that 1902 saw large quantities rushed in to avoid the increased duty. Nachinery shows a healthy increase; and 8 million taels worth of lailway llant cane in, mainly at Tientsin and Kiaochow, with import of lesser amounts at Newchwang, Hankow, Canton, and Mengtsz. Coul increased to $1,402,700$ tons, stocks at the end of the year "having been tilled up from ipprehension of impending war.
"'Ihe total value of Exports was Hk. 'lls. $214,352,467$, practically the same as in 1902. China's chief asset tor meeting her international obligations is Silk and its products; these in the sixties contributed a full half to the total value of the Export trade, but in 1903 constituted no more than 35 par cent. of the whole. The hirh prices ruling throughout 1002 affected the trade of the following year ; dealers held out for the prices they had obtained before, and were encouraged in this by a deficiency in the output of the district supplying Shanghai. European and American markets were not such as to justify the prices demanded in China; and a combination of high prices and short supply of Cocoons, the extravarant views of the middemen, the rising exchange through the summer and autumn, and falling Western markets all cooperated to curtail shipments from China. The loss fell most heavily on Shanghai, shipments from Cinton having been nearly up to 1902 figures, either because dealers there were more ready to meet the arverse market or because of the better yield of the mulberries and worms. Thus, while Native reeling of White Silk fell from 37,426 to 19,341 piculs, less by 18,085 piculs, shipments from Shanghai alone were less by 18,262 piculs; and Stean Filature reelings fell from 50,557 to 43,979 piculs, a loss of 6,578 piculs, to which Shanghai contributed a loss of 3,401 piculs. Tea shows the most considerable increase of all the exportable products of China, in lBlack and Green Leaf and in Brick Tea as well. The quality of Kiukiang Teas (especially of Keemun) is declared to have been superior to the 1902 crop, whilo Teas from all other provinces, Black or Green, were markedly inferior. Notwithstanding the generally inferior quality, prices ranged higher, by Ills. 5 to Tls. 10 in picul, than in 1902 ; and yet shipments increased by 9 per cent. for Black Tea, 19 per cent. for Green Tea, and 8 per cent. for Hrick lea. In 1903 tigures ase included Teas ( 378,789 ) shipped to Dalny and Port Arthur-the ultimate destination of which may have been liussian Siberia, though the fact cannot be certified. Of the total export, 126,903 piculs are statistically lost by shipment to Hongkong for re-shipment thence. Of the Black Tea remaining, shipments to Great Britain were mow by nearly : 32,000 piculs; to lhussian destinations, by nearly 72,000 piculs ; and to the Contipent of Europe, lyy 3,400 piculs; while it was less to the Uniter States by 67,000 piculs, the American demand heing, however, , abont the nommal average. Green 'Tear shpments to the United States increased by 17,700 piculs, and by smaller amounts to other destimations. Incidentally it may be moted that deliveries of Back Tea for consumption in (freat bifitan were, approximately (in million lb.), $10 \frac{1}{2}$ in 1901, 141 in 1902, and 17 ! in lop3. Dut one explanation can bo given for this general increase, in the face of the high silver east prevailing in 1903, had that is to be found in the reduced laxation on Tea in Chnal. Though the Indian export increased at the same time by 15 million Ib, it was found impossible to reduce the cost of the lowest griules below Gd. per 11.. while, with the reduction in Joty, Chima Congrous could be laid down at 4 bl. to 5 d. Further reduction in the cost of Indian Jeaf would deprive China of hor temporary advantage; and with the tangible proof of the benefit alvady derived from lowering the Export Duty, it is obvious that the next step to be taken is to reduce, or entarely abolish, the heavy inland taxation now imposed on the Leaf hefore it reaches the Foreign exporter; this, however, will not be dome until the Chinese lisvenue can recoup itself by tho imposition of higher Lmport Duties. Liven with this help much more remains to be done to re-establish tho China Tea trade on a firm basis. With the extreme sublivision of plantations and consequent multiplicity of interests, and with the short rush of the Chmi Tha seasm compressing the work of a year into two o: three monthe, it is improbable that much good will be accomplished by the wholesale introrluction of the methods which have worker such a suceess in British India, though some simple hand appliances-for rolling, as one instance-might be introluced to alvantare. Thero are two directions, however, in which concerted action by the Tea Guilds wouk accomphish much, and they are the education of the grower and advertising. The Indian growers, having taken possession of the Black T'oa trade, are maching out to supply the markets for Green Tha, and are making every effort to have Brick 'lea factories established. The Ceylon phaters, by a system of bounties varying from 7 cents a 1 h . in 1901 to 3 cents. in 1903, have encouraged the growth of shipments of (Areen Tea from 1, 600,000 ) 11 , in 1901 to 4 million ll). in 1902 and over 11 million lb. in 1903. In nine years they have assessed themselves, ant have spent in arlvertising, a sim of $2 \cdot$ million rupees. The Chinese trulers do not yet realise the necessity of adrertisng, and in this they must acent the experience of other:. Foreign 'reit hayers can buy in India or in China, as they may find the most ansantige; hut the Chimese must tmale in Chinc, mul, if they wish to preserve the remans of their dwindling trade, they mast tax thenselves as tho Indian phanters have rone. (On the one hamb, they must teach the grower how, with little or no expenditure of money, but merely by greater are and improved methods, he may produce a better tea at the same cost, of the same tea at a less cost ; on the other hand, they must consult and work in co-operation with tho Foreign linyers, and advertise. The Chinese Teat traters can sawe the Chinese 'Joa trate and no one else can. Fixportad prolucts other than silk and Tea are incerasing in imbortance year by year, and now amount to ower ao per cent. of (hima's Vxport trate. On the tuationa in the separate items there is not much to mote. Bristles increased slightly, as did Sherp's Wool; in these two commodities it is reported from several ports that the trade was done morer betier conditions where the exporters had thoin own chaning and sorting establishments. Straw Brad declined a difth, and in this trade the constantly recuring complaint is heard of eamess and even framdulent preparation and packing: this is a matter to which the Chinese guilds should pay attention. لaw Cotton fell off slightly in the quantity shipped, due to higher prices and a much reduced import of Indian Cotton. Matting inereased by 20 per eent., owing to inereased demamb from America; in this tade there were complaints of hasty mamufacture, but the matter was promptly denlt with by the (fantme guilds. Oils. Expressed and Eiscential, fell off in quantity, as did Sesamum Soed. It is to be noted that liape seed, to the amount of 223,031 piculs in 1902 and $143,1 / 4$ pienls in 1903 , is-included in Unenumerated Sundries. Sugars fell off to less than half the 1902 figures; Kwangtung growers, unable to face the increasing Foreign competition, are said to be planting their sugar fields with other crops.
"'lonnage increased by $3,300,000$ tons, all flags sharing in the inerease except the Portuguese, liussian, and Spanish. The British flag shows the largest absolute increase, and among the important commercial nations the French flag shows the largest, and the German the smallest, per-centage of increase. To the total tonnage employed, $57,200,389$ tons, Great Britain contributed 49 jer cent.; China, 17 per cent.; Japan, 14 per cent. ; Germany, 13 per cent.; Norway and France, each 2 per cent.; America and liussia, cach 1 per cent.
"Treasure:-Import and export of Golrd, each valued at about Hik. Tls. 4, 000,000 , balanced cach other. Silver Bars and Sycee were imported to the amount of Hk. Tls. $6,822,720$, and exports were Hk. Tls. $4,152,880$; and of Silver Coins, IIk. Tls. $16,178,445$ were imported and Hk . Tls. $2-4,893,6.22$ were exported; the net export of Silver heing Hk. Tls. 6,045,367."

Although China is traversed in all directions by roads, they are usually mere tracks, or at best footpaths, along which the transport of goods is a tedious and difficult undertaking. It was owing to the imperfect means of communication that such a fearfulmortality attended the last famines in Shansi, Honan, and Shantung, as well as the famine in Kiangsi in 1903 when the scarcity of food was so great that in numberless instances men even publicly sold their wives and children when powerless to meet the responsibility for feeding them. The enormous mineral wealth of shansi is practically non-existent for the same reason. A vast. intermal trade is, however, carried on over the roads, and ly means of numerous canals and navigable rivers. The most populous part of China is singularly well adapted for the construction of a network of railways, and a first attempt to introduce them into the country was made in 1876 , when a line from Shanghai to Woosung, ten miles in length, was constructed by an English company. The little milway was subsequently purchased hy the Chinese Government and closed by them on the 21st ()ctober, 187\%. Since that time the principle of railways has been fully accepted. The malway from Shanghai to Woosung was re-opened in 1838, as forming part of a line to Hoochow which tho provincial anthorities had obtained permission of the Throne to construct. Several important lines are now in course of construction while some are alrealy in operation. A tramway a few mikes in length, begm in 1881 to carry coal from the Kaping coal mines, now Tongshan, to the camal bank, has been extendert to T'ientsin and Taku on tho one hand, and to Kinchow and Newchwang on the (bulf of Sian-tung, on the other. This road was only completed in the carly part of 1900 , and during tho summer months was, between Kinchow and Newchwang, largely destroyed by the Chinese so as to prechude the advance of liussian forces on Peking via Manchuria. $\Lambda$ line from leking to T'ientsin was opened in 1897, the l'eking teminus being at Machiapu, is point two miles from the Tartar city, whence a short electric line connects it with one of the principal gates; the tratlic developed so mpidly that in 1808-9 the line had to be doubled. From Lukouchiao (or Mareo Polo's Bridge) a line of about cighty miles in length has been constructed southward to liontingfu, the capital of the province of Chihli ; this line, in October, 1890, was handed over by the British constructors to the Bolgian Syndicate as an integral factor in the great trans-continental road from l'eking to Hankow. These roads were all more or less deliberately and in some parts completely destroyed Jy the Chinese during 1900. The Railways, as foregn innovations, were particularly hateful to the Boxers, who in many cases attacked the lines with a fury as intense ats it was insensate; burning the stations, destroying bridges, firing the sleepers and carrying off the metals. Later on, track destruction was a strong feature of the strategy of the Imperial troons, and from their point of view wiscly so. It was the cutting of the Ralway that was the sole cause of Admial S'eymour's failure in his gallant attempt to rescue the Legations. All the lines in North China were attacked and hadly cut. The terminus at l'eling has been hrought inside the Chinese City and is at the Chien Men or Southern Caie of the Manchu City. $A$ branch line has leen made from this teminus to Tung (how, the head of the waterways; and both the French and Germans have pushed on the trunk lines being built under their exclusive auspices in Chihli and Homan, and in Shantung respectively. Railway vandalism was the first evidence of the savagery and magnitude of the Boxer sedition. It is significant that the Imperial Government was so inert in protecting its own property.

A line from Shanghai to Woosung, some fourteen miles in length, was opened in 1898, twenty-one years after the first line between the same termini was torn up. A contract has been let to a Belgian Syndicate for the construction of a trunk line of about 650 miles in length from Hankow to Paotingfu, where it joins the existing Patingfu and Lukoachiao line, thus giving through communication with Peking. The line is now said to be more French than Belgian. Work has been carried well into Honan, where the lridging of the Yellow liver and the crossing of the Fuh Niw Dountains in Honan, may offer some engineering difficulties, but next year ought to see the completion of this important trunk line. The AmericanChina Development Company obtained a concession for the construction of a line from Wuchang, on the southern bank of the Yangtsze immediately opposite to Hankow, to Canton. $\AA$ Ibranch line from Canton to liatshan and Shamsui has been laid and open for traffic, but work on the trunk line is at a standstill. A report that the concession had been transferred to a Belgian Syndicate aroused strong opposition among influential Chinese, and it has been announced that in response to their demands the concession has been cancellel. The Jritish-Chinese Corporation has a concession for a line comecting Canton with Kowloon, but though six years have passed not a sod has been turned. German concessionnaires secured the right to construct two lines from the German Settlement at Kiaochau to Chinanfu and Ichou in the interior of the Shantung province. The line to Chinan, the capital of Shantung, was commenced in 1900, and is now open for traffic over the entire length of $24 \overline{7}$ miles. An Anglo-German Syndicate has been authorised to make a line from Tientsin to Chinkiang, the Germans having charge of the northern portion of the undertaking and the British of the southern. The British-Chinese Syndicate, which has amalgamated with the Pekin Syndicate, has secured the right to construct a line from Shanghai via Soochow to Nanking and north-westward to join the Lu-Han line (as the Hankow-Peking line is called), and also a line from Soochow via Hangeloow to Ningpo. A line from Canton to Chengtu, the provincial capital of Szechuen, has also been mentioned. Surveys have been conducted with a view of finding a practicable route for a railway to connect Burmah with the Yangtsze region in Szechuen, and it is anticipated that a definite project for such a line will shortly be launched. The French have secured a concession for a line from Laokay, near the Tonkin frontier, to Tunnan, and tenders for the execution of the work have been called for. The French also secured concessions for lines from Lungehow to Nanning and from Nimning to Pakhoi, but it is doultful whether these will be carried out, as their tendency would be to divert trade from the French colony to the West River route. Inlced, the proposed railway from l'akhoi to Nimming appears to have been abandoned, and it is probable that one from Kwanchouwan, through the Yulin district to the nearest point on the West River and thence to Nanning will tako its place. An Anglo-Italian Syndicate has lieen authorised to work coil and iron mines in the province of Honan and to build ralways connecting the mines with navigahle rivers ; under this contract a line from Taiyuen to Singanfu and a branch to Siangyang are projected. Unsucsessful attempts were made in 1890 to induce the Chinesc Authorities to introduce the Russian guage on their northern lines from the Manchurian borler to Peking. The paper inception of a new line from l'eking to Katcha and thence to Trkutsk via Kalgan has also been made. The British Commercial Attache in his report for 1902 observes: "The old prejullices against railways would appear to be gralually dying out, and the example given by the Court, in ordering a special line to be built for the conveyance of the Emperor on his visit to the Western Tombs, will be of no little assistance in finally knocking them on the head. The most conservative native can habdly resist the joys of trivelling in a 'fire cart' or steaner; and, provideal he is not made unduly uncomfurtable or charged too high a fare, he is sure to prove a constant patron. Passenger rates on the German railways in Shantung are 0.05 Mpxican dol. per mile 2nd class, 0.025 Mexican dol. 3rd class, and 0.0125 Mexican dol. 4th class. Freight on the stretch from Wei-hsien to 'Ts'ing-tao, 120 miles, is carried for $0: 40$ Mexican dol. per 15 kilos. per kilom. (l $/$. per ton per mile). Rates on the 132 miles of the Pei-han line, open to regular tratic, are slightly higher as ragards freight (1th. per ton par mile), and lower as regards passengers-2nd class 0.032 Mexican dol., 3ril class 0.016 Mexican dol. The most highly organised system of cartage in the Empire is carried on in Manchuria, where the rite is $2 \downarrow l$. per ton per mile, and in South-Western China pack animals carry at the rate of $2 \frac{2}{} \boldsymbol{l}$ per ton per mile. In order to secure the bulk of the freight traffic, railways must be prepared considerably to underbid native modes of conveyance, or the latter will ba used in preference. While the Imperial Chinese Railways in North China were under foreign military control, rates were raised and the Chinese Administration maintained the same scale of charges on taking the line over. The result is that, as compared with the earnings before the troubles, there has been a falling-off." A telegraph line between Tientsin and Shanghai was opened in December, 1882, and linss now connect al! the important cities of the empire.

The year 1900 will ever be memorable in the history of China. It witnessed the last and a most determined attempt to break away from foreign influence and to revert to the exclusiveness of twenty centuries. The causes of the great social and political upheaval are not far to seek, though from their interaction and overlapping they are by no means easy to set forth in the sequence of their importance. The associations brought about by an expanding trade, by missionary effort, and by reciprocated diplomatic representation have not in any way lessened the hostile mental attitude engendered by alien civilizations, hteratures, and moral standards: there are still gaps between the Western and Chinese mind that no sympathy can bridge. The whole trend of Chinese education is especially calculated to ensure a hostile hias towards change, towards reform of abuse, and towards the adaptation of environment to new conditions, on which depends the continued existence of men and governments alike. The governing and influential classes have an cnormous vested interest in retaining things as they are in every phase of Chinese life. There can be but ono issue to a policy like theirs in these days, though the Chinese, unlike their more nimble-minded neighbours in the Last, are unable to see it. As in all countries where an enormous population lives on the narrow ledge that divides poverty from fimine, there is ever a large element of social discontent ready to be moulded to whatever end crafty or plausible leaders may determine. In many places this has been directed against Missionary converts and the Christian propaganda, and has given rise to a wide-spread idea that the Christian religion is in itself hateful to the Chinesc. It may be admitted that in cases the indiscretions of the Missionaries, and in if few more that of the converts in claiming special privilege and in using the aegis of their teachers for the advance of their private ends, gives some colour to the charge that Missionary enterprise is the main cause of antiforcign feeling in China; hut by anyone who knows the relatively small field of Missionary intlucnce, and the huge area over which the blind national enmity obtains, it must be dismissed as incommensurate to the phenomenon, though it undoubtedly assists in swelling the tide of anti-foreign hatred. A more just explanation may be found in Education and in the recent history of China. Shallow observers deny that there is patriotic sentiment in the Chinese, but that is an error. Patriotism has not the fine edge that it has in Western countries, and is not so active in personal or mational conduct, but to say that it is non-existent is absurd. The national conceit in their own ineffable superiority implies a strong feeling at least akin to love of country. This conceit had, among the educated classes, received severe and deadly wounds from the issues of the Japanese war, the seizure of Kiau-chou, Port Arthut and Wei-hai-wei, from French aggression in the South and the ill concealed designs of Italy in Chekiang. The degradation of high officials at the call of foreign Ministers, the overbearing attitude of strong men like von Heyking and Paviluv in Peking, even the extension of the foreign Settlements in Shanghai and other places, and the utter insouciance with which the partition and general treatment of China is usually discussed in the foreign Press, have all contributed to accentuate and to intensify the chronic bitter anti-foreign feeling. To this we have but to add the unfathomable ignorance of the outside world and its resources displayed by the harem-ridden and secluded Manchus in Peking, to get most of the elements in which the recent troubles originated.

The sedition arose in Shantung, the very shrine of Confucianism and Chinese patriotism-such as it is. At first it had its inception in that vague and ill-refined social discontent to which we have referred as originating in poverty. Shantung is the home of secret societies and of bold blackguardism. The Tw-tou-tse or " Big Swords"long ago developed a kindred society, which took the sententious name of I-ho-chüan or "P'atriotic Harmony Fists," roughly rendered into English by the word "Boxers." These people have ar ritual which is largely composed of gymnastic posturing. During the last few years it has focussed in its membership all the vague discontents arising in Christianity as a better system of morals, in poverty, in political "loss of face," in discontent with the Dynasty, de. It is the easiest thing in the world to direct a feeling of general discontent exclusively toward one of its elements; and if eleverly done, the whole force of the storm will be directed against this one object to the complete neglect of all the rest. This was cleverly brought about in Shantung.

The last two Governors of the Province seeing the trend of events, skilfully represented to the Throne that it would be wise to guide the coming storm into chamels into which it could be made subservient to Imperial resistance to foreign design ; otherwise, they pointed out the society would as likely as not follow the example of the secret societies of the South and adopt primarily an anti-rlynastic policy. The Boxers were consequently encouraged in their baiting of Christians, and only half-heartily punished when they adrled the murder of Euroneans to their programme. When they began to harass Catholis Missions and converts, Bishop Anzer, a strong-minded but somewhat tactless Bavarian, made strong representations to his impulsive Imperial master. The latter instructed his Minister to demand the instant dismissal of the highest movincial authorities, and so intensified the antiforeign feeling among the high officials in Peking. Things drifted from bad to worse. Li Hung-chang and other great Chinese olficials, who were under mo delusion as to foreign strength, were not listened to, and were sent to places where exclusively antidynastic rismgs were anticipated. Thammatugy and hocos-pocus were next skiifully grafted on to the movement. The initiated were said to he impervious to bullets; they could walk on sumbeans, arrest rivers, stop or create tires by their mere gesture, de., de. This feature of the new propagandia caught on. The Chinese are still in that state of mental de velopnent in which a miracle is not only possible but welcome. Clever rogues among the Boxers gratitied the multitude with some of the commonplaces of legerdemain, and the new religion began to run like-wildfire Were not the very gods on the side of the patriots? In March, April and May whole cities and districts in Chilh-li went over to the now doctrine, and preachers could not be found in sufficient number to initiate the candidates. Rich men found it expedient to affect conversion and to support the movement ; otherwise they were blackmailed into poverty. All the homan Cutholic and Drotestant Missionaries clearly now saw the beatings of the coming stom, and cautioned their Ministers; but, with the usual grudging attention to unoflicial reports, little attention was paid to the warnings matil it was practically too late to coerce the Mancha Government into action by the only possible means-force. 'Too late the Fleets assembled at Taku. By this time the sedition was far beyond official control, and morenver what did a Dianchu who hard never seen the sea care for a Naval demonstration? 'Their notion of a battleship, is that of an exaggerated sampan. The Boxers swept up like a cyclone from Shantung, and gathered their strength around Paotingfu, the provincial capital of Chih-li. They began with railway destruction ; making the business strictly compatible with the inmate Chinese propensity for loot, and varying it with the murder of foreign Missionaries and railway enginecrs. In the neighbouring province of Shan-si the movenent was taken under the direct auspices of T-hsien, the ex-governor of Shantung. This supreme villain isked some thirty-three Furopeans, including many laties and children, to his Ymmen at Tai-yum-fu for protection, and there and then let the Boxers loose on them to hack them to pieces with swords. He further supplemented this outrage on humanity by issuing most stringent orders thooghout his province for the amihilation of all Christians, Buropeans and Chinese alike. Next to the atrocity of Cawnpore in the Indian Mutiny, the story of the Shansi massacre is the most appalling crime of the nineteentl century. The number of native Christians that have perished will never be known, is the Missions have lost their archives; pastors, members and premises have alike been exterminated. $\Lambda$ similar policy was followed by the Acting Viceroy of Chih-li at l'aotingfin, and by some of the officials in Northern Ionan ; where, though many heartrending crimes and murders were committed, the story was mitigated by the fact that there were numerous escapes, and that many officials and gentry jeopardized their own lives in attempts to save the fugitives. The (fovernors of Whantung and Shen-si especially distinguished themselves in their zeal for humanity. It was entirely due to their powerful protection of foreigners that the number of murders and outrimes was restricted to its present figures-that is to less than two hundred and tifty European lives. Sober estmates have been made that over 10,000 natives perisherl ; most of these were Christians or the kinsmen of Christians, but in vast numbers of cases greed and family and personal feuds prompted the denouncing of piagans as Christians.

Leference is clsewhere marle to the actions of the Boxers in detail (see notes under the articles "Peking," "Tientsin" "Taku" and "Peitaiho"), so they need only be sunmarised here. The attacks on the Mission stations began in May; those on the Lu-han Railway at the end of May, and the legiming of June. The Joxers appeared in the Capital in force on June 13 th, and in Tientsin three days before this date. Official collusion was from the first suspected by the terms in which the Imperial Edicts dealt with the movers of the sedition; later on this suspicion became certanty when the Imperial Officers who dealt with it vigorously were ignored or reproved for their zeal. The loxers completely overawed the civil power when they appared in the great cities, and openly declared their intention to expel or extirpate the foreigners. At first attempts to carry out their programme took the form of incendiarism, i.e., to the destruction of lission premises; the agents were entirely confined to themselves and the city canaille, the Imperial troops only joining in after the attack on and capture of the Taku forts on June 17th. The 'Tientsin Settlements were attacked on the night and morning of June 15th and 16th by the Boxers alone; on the afternoon of the 17th, the Settlements were severely shelled by the regular troops. Communication was re-established with Taku on the 23 rd, and the siege in part raised in the open. The Great Eastern Arsenal was taken on June $2 \overline{7}$ th; while the first pitched battle preceded the seizure of the Western Arsenal on July 9th; the native Gity was carried by assault on the 14th, when the Viceroy Iu-Lu and General Nieh met their deaths-the former by suicide, the latter by it shell.

Boxers began to appear in the streets of Peking in force on June 13th, and openly assumed a hostile attitude to foreigners from that date. Until the $20 t h$ of the sume month they confined their attention to acts of incendiarism and to the persecution of native Christians and people known to be associated with foreigners. The Imperial troops joined forces with the Boxers, and opened fire on the Legations on the 20 th. The Siege continued with various vicissitudes until Angust 14th, when it was raised by the entrance of a column of Allied forces, 20,000 strong, which had left Tientsin about the beginning of the month and had fought two pitched battles at Pei-tsang and Yingtsung on August 4th and 6ith, besides numerous small engagements and the capture of Tung-chow en passant. The flight of the Imperial family and the Court began on August 13th. The Court entered Shan-si by the northern passes, and then vid Tai-yuen-fu its progress continued to the ancient capital Si-an, where it remained for the greater part of 1901. It left in October.

An important evert in 1901 was the reath of Li Hung-chang, who died in October at Tientsin, at the age of 79 years, whilst engaged in settling matters between his Government and the Powers.

During July, August and September, 1900, Lroops were poured into North China by all the European Powers, America and Japan, and, with an eye to contingencies, large forces were deviated to the Vangtsze, and landed in Shanghai. The Governors and Viceroys of the Central and Southern Provinces had unceasingly protested against the Manchu and Reactionary policy in Peking, and, it is suspected, refused to carry out the secret edicts directing attacks on foreigners. In any case they succeeded in holding the turbulent elements in their satrapies well in check, and in keeping the peace.

The situation cluring 1902 gradually improved, and the troops of the Allies have now been withdrawn, with the exception of about 2,000 men, who act as a permanent guard to the Legations in the capital.

PEKING

天腑 Shunctien

The present capital of China was formerly the Northern capital only, as its name denotes, but it has long been really the metropolis of the Central Kingdom. P'eking is situated on in sandy plain 13 miles S . W. of the Pei-ho river, and about 110 miles frour its mouth, in latitude 39 deg. 54 min . N. and longitude 116 deg. 27 min . E. or nearly on the parallel of Naples. A canal connects the city with the Pei-ho. Peking is ill adapted by situation to be the capital of a vast Empire, nor is it in a position to become a great manufacturing or industrial centre. The products of all parts of China naturally find their way to the seat of Government, but it gives little save bullion in return.

From Dr. Dennys's description of Peking we quote the following brief historical sketch:-"The city formerly existing on the site of the southern portion of l'eking was the capital of the Kingdom of Yan. About 222 b.c., this kingdom was overthrown by the Chin dynasty and the seat of Government was removed elsewhere. Taken from the Chins by the Khaitans about 938 A.D., it was some two years afterwards made the southern capital of that people. The Kin dynasty subduing the Khaitans, in their turn took possession of the capital, calling it the 'Western Residence. About A.D. 1151, the fourth sovereign of the Kins transferred the court thither, and named it the Central Residence. In 1215, it was captured by Genghis Khan. In 1264 Kublai Khan fixed lis residence there, giving it the title of Chung-tu or Central lesidence, the people at large generally calling it Shun t'ien-fu. In 1267 A.D., the city was transferred 3 li (one mile) to the North of its then site, and it was then called T'a-tu'the Great Residence.' The old portion became what is now known as the 'Chinese city' and the terms 'Northern' and 'Southern' city, or more commonly nei-chent! (within the wall) and wai-chong (without the wall), came into use. The native Emperors who succeeded the Mongol dynasty did not, however, continue to make Peking the seat of Government. The court was shortly afterwards removed to Nanking, which was considered the chief city of the Empire until, in 1421, Yung Lo, the third Emperor of the Ming dynasty, again held his court at Peking, since which late it has remained the capital of China."

The present city of l'eking is divided into two portions, the Northern or Tartar city and the Southern or Chinese. The former is being gradually encroached upon by the Chinese, and the purely Manchu section of the capital will soon be very limited. The southern city is almost exclusively occupied by Chinese. The general shape of Peking may be roughly represented by a square placed upon in oblong, the former standing for the Tartar and the latter for the Chinese city. The whole of the capital is, of course, walled. The walls of the Tartar city are the strongest. They average 50 feet in height and 40 feet in width, and are buttressed at intervals of about sixty yards. The parapets are loop-holed and crenelated. They are faced on both sides with brick, the space between being filled with earth and concrete. Each of the gateways is surmounted by a threc-storied pagoda. The walls of the Chinese city are about 30 feet in height, 25 feet thick at the base, and 15 feet wide on the terre plein. The total. circumference of the walls round the two cities slightly exceeds twenty miles.

The Thartar city consists (Dr. Williams tells us) of three enclosures, one within the other, each surrounded by its own wall. The innermost, called Kin-ching or Prohibited City, contains the Imperinl Jalace and its surrounding buildings; the second is occupied by the several offices appertaining to the Government and by private residences of ollicials; while the outer consists of dwelling-houses, with shops in the chief avenues. The Chinese city is the business portion of Peking, but it presents few features of interest to sight-seers, while the enclosure known as the Prohibited City is, as its title denotes. forbilden to all foreign visitors. The numerous temples, the walls, the Foreign Legations, and the curio shops are the chief attractions to the tourist. The strects of the Chinese metropolis are kept in a most disgraceful condition. In the dry season the pedestrian sinks deep in noxious dust, and in wet weather he is liable to be drowned in the torrentsthat rushalong the thoroughfares, where the constant traffic has worn away the soil. 1899 saw the innovation of Legation Street being cleansed, levelled and macadamised -the greatest urban improvement in three centuries. Experts say that the money lost in time, wear and tear of men, mules and carts every year is greater than the prime cost of macadamising all the main thoroughfares. The congestion of traffic and the personal discomfort of cart-transit are inconceivable to people who have not experiencer them. There is an air of decay about Peking which extends even to the finest of the Temples and Palaces, and which powerfully impresses every visitor as symbolic of the decadence of Empire. The population of Peking is not accurately known, but according to a Chinese estimate, which is probably much in excess, it is $1,300,000$, of whom 900,000 reside in the T'urtar and 400,000 in the Chinese city. There is no direct foreign trade with Peking, and the small foreign population is made up of the members of the various Legations, the Maritime Customs establishments, the professors of the College of Peking, and the missionary body. In August, 1884, the city was brought into direct telegraphic communication with the rest of the world, by an overland line to Tientsin vid Tungehow. The year 1899 witnessed two other innovations, which would have been regarded as impossible ten years ago, viz: the erection of large two-storied buildings on prominent sites for the Austrian Legation and the IJongkong and Shanghai Bank. These are breaks with immemorial tradition that the feng-shui must resent elevation in houses other than those of the immortal gods and the son of heaven. A ralway line to Tientsin was opened in 1897.

The year 1900 was the most memorable year in the history of Peking from the fact that for the first time in the history of civilization during two thousand years a dastardly and reliberate attempt was made by a responsible government to violate the sanctitas lerfatorum. The Chinese have made characteristic efforts to escape the responsibility for this turpitude; but the formal complicity of the leading men in the Government and of the Empress Dowager with the Boxer sedition has been proved up to the hilt, and endless Imperial Edicts remain to show that the Government as such was heart and soul committed to the anti-foreign and anti-Christian aims of the Reactionary Party. Reference is made elsewhere to the progress of the Boxer agitation: enough to say here that the I-Ho-Chiuan or Boxers arrived in force via Pao-ting-fu on June 13th, and between that day and the 19th began their policy of plunder, destruction and murder. All the buildings outside of the Legation cordon in the Chinese aud Manchu cities, including all the Missionary premises and native preaching stations, as well as the residences of all who were known or even suspected of being in any way connected with foreigners were destroyed. These people themselves were ruthlessly murdered. The most interesting building thus to suffer was the well-known Nan-T'ang or Southern Joman Catholic Cathedral, built more than two hundred years ago. In the attempt to destroy the small foreign drug-store belonging to Messrs. $\Lambda$. S. Watson and Company, Limited, of Hongkong, the great Bazaar in which it is situated caught fire, notwithstanding the assurances of the chief boxer that he, by occult influence, could prevent the fire from spreading. The destruction caused by this fire was inconceivably great: all the wealthy banks, silver shops, silk warehouses, and curiosity-shops, with their priceless and irreplaceable stocks of antique art, were consumed.

Before this act of incendiarism the threatening aspect of affairs had led the Ministers to apply to their Admirals for marine guards, and late in May and early in June some five hundred men with two or three machine guns had been sent up to the Legrations. On the 9th of June the Ministers wired urgently for more men, a request which the Navy met in a way described in the motes on Taku (see pages $175-7$ ); but these latter reinforcements never arrived. On June 10th the T'sung-liYamen notified the Legations to quit the city by 4 p.m. on the 20th, assigning as a reason the Allies' attack on and capture of the 'Taku forts. Protection was of course promised; but even had the Imperial Government been acting in good faith and been willing to protect the thousand refugees in their long journey to the Coast, it was certain that they had not the ability to do so. The Boxers were now in complete domination of the City, and would have paid no heed whatever to any assuriances of the Govermment. . Loreover, such a policy of scuttle meant the certain massacre of several thousand Christian refugees who had fled into the City from the suburbs, and had placed themselves under the care of the Fathers and the Missionaries. The demand of the Yamen was refused. The next day, Baron von Ketteler, the German Minister, while proceeding to the Yanen to interview the Chinese Ministers, was shot at by Imperial soldiers from loopholed houses, and was brutally murdered; his Secretary, Mr. Cordes, escaping the same fate by a miracle, though he was badly wounded. This unheard-of atrocity precipitated the supreme crisis. The Chinese Government saw clearly that it could not possibly now go back, and the foreigners knew that certain death was in store for them unless they could ward it off by their own prowess until relief came. Earthworks were thrown up, and all the people were brought within the lines to a central position. The extreme limits of the defended position were 800 by 400 yards, the greater dimension being marked with the South Wall of the Tartar CityThe lev. G. W. Gamewell, an American Missionary, undertook to construct earthworks under the direction of the military officers, and succeeded admirally. IIis work afterwards exacted the highest praise from the Engineer officers of the Relief Column, and next to the defenders' courage it was the chief factor in the ultimate salvation of thegarrison. Sandbags were improvised in rast number, the ladies and native refugeesrendering fine work in this direction; every possible textile was used for this allimportant purpose, and priceless embroideries, carpets, curtains, as well as clothes, were senn in the barricarles alongside of jute and hessians.

The first death was that of the Rev. II. James of the Imperial University. He was shot ly 'Tung Fuh-shiang's wihd Kansu ruffians while he was advancing to speak with their oflicers at the bridge to the North of the Legations. The Austrian and Italian Legations were the first to be attacked and burned ; these were followed by thedestruction of the Customs' premises, with all the archives and the records of Sir Robert Hart's life's work. On June 22nd and 23 rrd desperate attempts were made to fire the British Legation, which from the first and throughout the siege was regarded as the key of the foreign position. (On the 24th these were renewed, but were checked by the fine steadiness of the British marines. The Hanlin College, with its priceless Library, was burned to the ground hy the vandalistic soldiery in these attempts. liffe fire was practically continuous on the part of the Chincse for the first ten days; with great skill they kept under corer, but if their own testimony may be accepted (their conversation was easily overleard at some of the barricades) this was less due to military prudence than to personal cowardice; the besieged never wasted one shot and only fired when an enemy was seen and could be lit. After the Customs' premises were fired, the most persistent attacks were on the eist of the Allied josition around the palace of the Prince Su (Su Wan'g-fuh) where the native Christians were aggregated, and where Colonel Shiba and his gallant band of Japanese sailors were constantly acting the part of heroes. On June 28 th shell fire was added to the sufferings of the defenclers. Happily, is at Tientsin, the shell was of indifferent quality, and was seldom well timed. It oiten failed to burst, and seldom did much damage. The most severe punishment was from a big gun in the Mongol Market close to the western wall of the British Legation.

A rough census was taken of the foreign population about this time, and gave the following numbers:-Women, 147 inside the British Legation, 2 vutside; Children, $\overline{6}$ inside, 3 outside ; Men, 191 inside, 54 out ; total, 473 . The marine and other guards. were between 450 and 500 ; so that altogether inside the lines there were nearly 1,000 foreigners. On July 1st, the besieged made their first hig sortie, the object being to capture a gun near the Su Wan'g-fuh. Although skilfully executed it was not successful. On the 3 rel, the Chinese pressed very hard on the Americans who were holding the west part of the foreign scetion of the wall ; they actually carried a larricade, l,ut it was quickly retaken ly a conjoint party of Americans, British and liussians, in which Capt. Myers of the American Army was seriously wounded. July the 4th was celehrated by an artillery duel. The chief weapon of the Allies descrves a paragraph to itself. Some forgotten shell had been found in a well in the compound of the Kussian Legation ; and then by a curious coincidence in one of the foraging expeditions constantly made in parts of the town within the lines an old British muzale !oader was discovered-it had probably been purchased as old iron by the possessor in the early sixties hut found too refractory to his tools. This was furbished up ly the skill of some of the armourers, and fired with very considerable moral effect by an American gunncr on the Clinese. The gun was aptly called the "International." Necossity proved the mother of invention in many cases during the siege ; the excellent pewter of the lekingese was moulded into bullets, and the Fathers of the Pei-tang in their desperate efforts to keep the Chinese at bay actually made their own gunpowder as well as bullets.

On July 11th, the French caught and shot some twenty (hinese in a position which they rushed with, great gallantry; but on the other hand they were caught by a successful sap) on the 13th. By this device the (hinese managed to how up two large houses in the French Legation, and drove still more people into the neighbouring British compound. On July 16 th, the gallant Strouts, the commander of the British Marines, was killerl by rifle fire while exannining the defences of the su Wan'g-fulh along with Col. shilm, the dapanese commander, and 1)r. Morrison of the Times. This loss was irreparable in more senses than one. Captain Strouts had shown himself a hero among heroes, and had the complete confidence of everyone, civilians and military alike. It would be no injustice to say that he and his gallant Japanese colleague, Shiba, were the active heroes of the siege. The gallant Colonel on this occasion had a marrow escape, getting a bullet through his cont, while Dr. Morrison was severely wounded in the leg. After this the British Minister, Sir Claude Macdonald, resumed his military rank and took a leading part in the defence as a military man as well as British Minister.

Trench digging to countercheck the possibilities of further sapping was now extensively undertaken; still it did not prove altogether a success. The very day the relief was effected, a deep mine was discovered under a portion of the Students' Quarters with the boxes to reccive the powder ready in position; another two hours more and there would have been a tragedy of unexampled magnitude. About.July 16 th the news of the capture of Tientsin reached the high Chinese authorities, and at once modified their attitude: their attack slackened, and on July 18 th hostilities practically ceased, as far as lighting was concerned, while attempts were made to reopen communications between besiegers and besieged, though the latter were as rigidly is ever secluded from all news of the outside word. Chinese soldiers came inside the Su Wan'gfuh and wished to fraternize with Colonel shiba's men, offering them protection: the Colonel refused ; thereupon they sent in small quantities of fruit and food. Similar offers were made in other parts of the lines, but there was a just suspicion of the "Dranaos et dona ferentes." With a few exceptions the gifts were rejected, especially so the bag of flour hoisted over the barricades in one place. The Chinese made much of this offer of supplies in their attempts to delude the World as to the real nature of the position in Peking. About this time the hesieged received their first news of outside affirs, and learned that Thentsin had been attacked and relieved, and that a Relief Column was being organized for them. The paucity of information was one of the most curious features in a situation that was full of surprises. China is a country where news may as a rule be bonght for money easier than in any country in the world, asspies abound; yet for weeks the World knew nothing of leking, foreign-l'eking nothing of the World. For the next ten days active hostilities were in complete abeyance, though vigilance on looth sides was unremitting, and the defences wero continually being strengthened.

On the 22 nd of July, the attack was renewed at the Pei-tang or Northern Roman Catholic ('athedral, where the Catholic Fathers under Bishop Favier had assembled more than three thousand native Christians, and where, with the help of fifty French and Italian marines, one of the most pathetic and desperate resistances of modern times had been carried on. They were short of food, of ammunition, of medicines, and of everything but calm cournge and Christian fortitude. These people were the siecial object of Boxer hatred and fanatical cfforl, and had to conduct their defence anidst inconceivalule conditions of overcrowding, disease and famine: during the last few days of the Siege their daily allowance of food was four ounces of rice, and at the very last this had to be reduced to two. The children and aged died like Hies. They were not only in utter' ignorance of the outside world but also of their lay countrymen in the Legation part of the City.

News that the relief column was leaving Tientsin at once came to the American Minister on August 2nd. This was somewhat premature, as the Column did not finally start till Aucust 3rd ; but it served to reanimate the defenders. At this time there were 883 people within the enclosure of the British Leegation, that being the refuge to which all had recourse when they were driven from other positions in the clefence. Of this number 527 were Europeans and Japanese. The reports of the refeat of the Chinese at Pei-t'sang and Yang-tsun, and of the swift advance of the Allied army, had the effect of making the Chinese more resolute to gratify their hatred, even at the last moment; consequently the attacks of the $1 \underline{2}$ th and the 13 th were the most desperate of the whole Siege; but as the heary guns of the lielief were distinctly heard from Thug-chow, the defence knew the meaning of it and were more resolute on their part to beat the enemy off. The Japanese and the liussians were at the eastern gates of the Tartar City on the 13th of August, and to these localities the Chinese withdrew their best forces leaving the eastern Gate of the Chinese City all but unguarded. Ilere Sir Arthur Gaselee and Gencral Chaffee leading the British and American contingents of the Column found an easy chtiance. After seizing the 'remple of Heaven, they swiftly pushed along in a direction parallel to the South Wall and found a way on throngh the Water Gate, hy which the waters of the Imperial Canal flow under the Wall.

In a few minutes the relief of the Legations was an accomplished fact. The Hussians and French got in early the following morning at the Tung-pien-men, and the Japmesc, who, after being the leaders all the way from Tientsin and bearing the brunt of most of the hard fighting on the road up, had the bad fortune to meet with most of the real opposition at the Walls, entered later on in the same morning. The gallant little Islanders found some solace in coming across the chief Treasury as they fought their way across the City, driving the beaten Chinese before then. On the following day the Americans advanced on the Imperial and Forbidden Cities and, with the co-operation of the French and liussians, seized these citadels of prejudice and seclusion. The French, backed by the Japanese, effected the release of the sore-tried people in the Pei-t'ang. The City was given up to a "moditied looting" for a period of three days, and then military government was established, the different lowers undertaking different areas of the town. The Palaces fell to the liussians, who also sent out a column and seized the famous Summer Palace, thirteen miles distant. The capture of the City was formally celebrated by a visit of all the leading Ministers, Officers, and some of the troops to the Palace. lior the first time in history, foreigners were able to see the arcana of the Imperial Court. The Imperial Family had the day before the Relief escaped from the City and Iled into Shan-si via the Northern passes, en route for Si-an-fu, where it remained till October, 1:001.

Peking, though it suffered indescribably from the depredations of the Boxers, the Imperial troops, the awful ruttianism of Tung-fuh-shiangs barbarians from Kiansu, to say nothing of the subsequent attentions of the Allied troops, is at present more attractive as an object of travel than before, for the simple reason that the City was clemsed by the foreign Powers, and that many places of antiquarian, artistic or historic interest are now accessible if the visitor sets about his object, with due attention to national susceptibilities.

During 1902 the fortification of the Legation quarter was completed, the railway termini brought to the Clion Men in the Chinese City, and the reconstruction of the various legations was begun. These were slowly brought to completion, and extensive barracks comnected with each for the accommodation of the Legation Guards. As all Chinese buildings in this section were removed the Legation quarter presents the appearance of a European setitlement of about half a square mile in extent. In, or bordering upon this section, there are three good hotels, Hotel du Nord, Hotel de Pekin, and l'alace. In addition to Kierulff's there are now several other large stores, German, French, Italian or Chinese which sell all kinds of foreign goods. The Club House is much larger and more convenient than it was before; there is a Soldiers' Y.M.C.A., and a Catholic church for the Legation Guards, and two hospitals,-St. Michael's and the Methodist Episonpal (John L. Mopkins Memorial) which are provided with accommorlation for both. Chinese and European patients. There are three Banks, Hongkong and Shanghai, Russo-Chinese and Yokohama Specie, all of which do a flourishing business. The streets are being macadamized, and an Electric Light Company has been organized which will furnish light wherever wanted in the city. Miny of the wealthy Chinese have telephones in their homes and a line connects the city with Tientsin. Reuter has established a permanent agency in l'eking.

The various Missions have been relouilt. The bungalows have all been exchanged for two-storied houses, the arrangement of which has heen greatly altered, giving to the mission compounds a much more attractive appearance. The church in the Methodist Mission, at the rear of the Hotel du Nord, will iccommodate 1,500 people. In this Mission there are hospitals for both women and men, a Girls' High School in which there are 200 pupils, and about the same number of students in the Peking University. These buildings are all lit with acetylene, and heated ly steam or hot air, while the houses are furnished with water from an artesian well in the compound. In comnection with the London Mission, near the Von Ketteler Monument, is the Lockhart Medical College, established for medical study in North China, an institution for the erection of which the Empress Dowager contributed Tls. 10,000. A little north of this is the American lloard Mission in connection with which there is a large Girls school and a very fine church with a seating capacity of about, 1,000. The Presbyterian Mission is near the Llama and Confucian Temples in the north of the city, has hospitals for both men and women, and is furnished with water by a windmill from an artesian well. The South and East churches of the Roman Catholic Mission have not been rebuilt, but the North, Cathedral has been greatly improved. The Mission for the Blind is on Kan Yii IIu-t'un! not far from the London Mission, while the S.P.G. Mission is in the West city.

The question of high houses in Peking is for ever settled by the erection of a twostoried residence by Prince Su, and three large blocks of similar buildings for the College of Languages by the Government.

TIENTSIN

津 天 Tien-tsin

Tientsin is situater at the junction of the Yun Ho or Hwae liver, better known as the Grand Canal, with the Pei-ho in Lat. 39 deg. 4 min. N., Long. 117 deg. 3 min .56 sec . E. It is distant from Peking by road aloout 80 miles, but the bulk of the enormous traffic between the two cities is by the liver Pci-ho as far as Tungchow ( 13 miles from Peking) and thence by carts and wheelbarrows over the once magnificent hut now dilapidated stone causeway. The traffic is now, however, being rapidly diverted to the railway, which was opened in 1897, and the line doubled in November, 1898. Tientsin was formerly a place of no importance and till recently had few historic associations; till the end of the Ming dynasty (1644 A.D.) it was only a second rate military station, but at the northern terminus of the Grand Canal it gradually assumed commercial importance, and by the end of the seventeenth century had become a great distributing centre. The mavigability of the Pei-ho for sa-going junks ceases at Tientsin, and this made it the emporium for the very large quantities of tribute rice yearly sent up to the capital, after the Grand Canal shoaled up so as to be unlit for carriage in loulk. The trade of the city was imperilled by the silting up of the Pei-ho, but a river improvenent scheme of some magnitude was inaugurated in 1898 under Mr. A. de Linde, and the P'eace protocol of 1901 contains clauses which constitute a Buard of Conservancy (now in existence) and the provision of fairly liberal funds for the maintenance of the works. It is, however, generally believed that no lasting success will attend the remedial measures until steps are taken to deal with Taku Bar ly permanent dredging ; meanwhile by closing the canals and creeks which take off nost of the flood tide, by giving a larger radius of curvature to the bends, and by widening the lieach, the navigability of the river has been greatly ameliorated.

The experitions of the allies in 1858-61 greatly enhanced the importance of the city, as it then proved to be the military key of the capital and an excellent base. It was here on June 26th, 1858, that Lorl Elgin signed the treaty which was to conclude the war but which unhappily led to its prolongation. The famous temple in which the treaty was signed, about a mile distant from the West gate, was destroyed by British shells in July, 1900 .

During the long satrapy of Li the trade and importance of the city developed execedingly. Li, hy the vigour of his rule, som quelled the rowdyism for which the Tientsinese were notorious throughout the empire, and as he made the city liss chief residence and the centre of his many experiments in military mod naval ectucation, it came to be regarded as the focus of the new learning and national reform. The foreign affiairs of China were practically directed from Tientsin during the two decades 1874-94.

The city will ever be infamous to Europeans from the massiacre of the French Sisters of Mercy and other forcigners on June $v 1$ st, 1870, in which the most appalling brutality was exhilited; as usual the political aritators who instigated the riot got oif. The Roman Catholic Cathedral Churel, which was lestroyed on that occasion, has since been rebuilt, and the new building was consecrated in 1897, only to again fall a victim to loxer fury in 1900. The hailding occupied a commanding site on the river bank. All the missions and many of the foreign hongs had agencies in the city prior to the debacle of 1900.

The population is reputed to be $1,000,900$, but there is no statistical evidence to justify such large figures. The area of the city is far less than that of the lortsmouth boroughs with their 180,000 , and the houses without exception are one storied. The suburbs, however, are very extensive, and there is the usual vagueness as to where the town hegins and ends. The city walls were quadrate and extended about 4,000 feet in the direction of each cardinal point; during the year 1901 they were entirely demolished and replaced by fine oljen boulevards under the orders of the foreign military Provisional Government. This borly has further bunded the whole of the Hai Ho (Pci-ho) and effected other numberless urhan improvements. The adyent of foreigners has cansed a great increase in the value of real estate all over Thentsin, and as new industries are introduced every year, the tendency is still upward.

Li Hung-chang authorised Mr. Tong Kin-seng to sink a coal shaft at Tong Shan ( 60 miles N.E. of 'lientsin) in the seventies; this was done and proved the precursor of a railway, which has since been extended to Shanhaikwan for military purposes, and from thence round the Gulf of Liau Tung to Kinchow; 1900 saw this line pushed on to Newchwang. In 1897 the line to Peking was opened, and proved such a success that the line had to be doubled in 1898-9. From Feng-tai, about 7 miles from the capital, the trans-continental line to Hankow branches off. This line has been already made as far as I'ao-ting-fu, the provincial capital of Chih-li, and is now open to traftic. Its continuation is in the hands of the Relgians. About 435 miles in all are open to goods and passenger traftic. In 1900 the violence of the Boxers was chiefly directed against the railways, all of which were more or less destroyed, but under British, French, and lussian military administration they have almost all been restored to their former efliciency. As usual, the ralway has lurought all sorts of foreseen and unforeseen contingencies with it. Farmers up near Shanhaikwan are supplying fruit and vegetables to 'lientsin. An enormous trade in pea-nuts (with Canton) has been created. Coal has come extensively into Chinese houschold use ; the foreign rosidents are developing a first-rate watering place at Pei-tai-ho on the Gulf of Pe-chi-li, and all the rarious industries of the city have been stimulaterl. Brick buildings are springing up in all directions and the depressing-looking adobe (inud) huts are diminishing.

Foreigners formerly lived in three concessions, British, French, and German, which fringed the river below the City and covered an area of less than 500 acres. The Japanese have taken up a concession in accordance with the terms of the Treaty of Shimonoseki, and have made excellent progress in the filling of land and laying out of new strects. They propose to build 350 houses in fureign style. During 1901 liussia, l Belgium, Italy, and Austro-Hungary all appropriated large areas on the left bank of the Hai-ho as future Settlements, while the existing concessions have all extended their boundarios very considerably. These developments have thrown all present and future landing facilities for direct sea-groing traffic into loreign hands. Very extensive building operations are going on throughout the concessions, which have excellent roads, with police, oil and gas lamps, etc., etc. The British Municipality has a handsome Town Hall, completed in 1889 ; arljoining there is a well-kept public garden, openod in the year of Jubilee and styled Victorin Park. An excellent recreation ground of ten acres is also being doveloped, and three milos distant there is a capital race-course. There are many hotels, two clubs (Tientsin Club and Concordia, the latter chielly (ierman), a theatre, two excellent libraries and three churches (lioman Catholic, Anglican, and Union).

Distilling is one of the largest local industries; it is chiefly from kowliang (sorghum) or millet. Although a spirit, it is called "wine," and is exported to the south in large quantities. The manufacture of coarse unrefined salt lyy the evaporation of sea water is also carried on near 'raku; the produce is stacked along the river bank just below the native city and sometines gives off very offensive smells, rendering life in burden. The trade in salt is ia Government monopoly. Carpets, shues, glass, coarse earthenware, and fireworks are also marle in large quantities in the city, but Tientsin is at present essentially a centre for distribution and collection rather than for manufacture. The exports include coal, wool (from Kokonor, Kansuh, etc.), bristles, straw braid, goat skins, furs, wino, etc. The export trade is a recent creation, and is largely due to foreign initiative. Wool cleaning and braid and bristle sorting are the chief industries in the foreign longs except those of the liussians, who are exclusively engaged in the transit of ten. The imports are of the usual miscellaneous nature : arms, tea for the lhesert and Siberia, mineral oil, matches, and needles figure next to piece goorls. The fine arts are unknown to the Tientsinese except in the shape of cleverly made mud-figures; these are painted and make really admirable statuettes, but are diflicult to carry away, being remarkably brittle.

The export coal trade may be expected to develop rapidly, as the Chinese Corporation has been replaced by a strong combination of British and Belgian capitalists registered as an English limited liability company. The output and salo of the Kaiping collieries in 1903 exceeded 700,000 , of which about 27,000 tons was shipped from 'lientsin, and over 211,000 tons from Chinwantao, which may be regarded as one of the ruxiliary ports of Tientsin. The general trade is increasing, and no wonder, as 'lientsin is practically the only sea outlet for the entice trade of the provinces of Chihli, Shansi, Shensi, Kausuh, and part of Honam, with a pojulation not fare short of $100,900,000$. The total net walue of the trade in 1903, less re-exports, was Tlls. $68,729,061$ as compared with Ths. $89,478,464$ in 1902. The corresponding tigures for the years 1889,1900 and 1901 were Tls. $77,604,562$; Tls. $31,920,658$; and Tls. $49,411,423$. The net foreing imports in 1903 were valued at Tls. $37,463,829$ as compared with Ths. $53,4+43,798$ in $190 \%$ and the native imports at 'lls. $21,891,119$ gross and Tls. $19,945,950$ net after deduction of re-exports. The export trade, which twenty years ago was practically nil, was in 1903, not inclurling re-exports, Tlls. 13,264,458. The duty collected was Tl's. 598,197.

Tientsin has played a great. part in the history of China during the momentous years of the Boxer outbreak; after the capture of the 'Taku Forts and its own relief from twenty-seven dlays' siege in June-July, 1900, it became the primaly base for the Allied invasion of North China. As the centre of the foreign influence, and the new learning in North China, it incurred the particular odium of the Boxers, and was the first object of their attack when they left Paotingfuat the end of May. They arrived in the city at the leginning of June, and at once overawed the provincial anthorities; indeed the latter promptly entered into collusion with them, supplying them hoth with food and funds, as the cashhooks captured at the Yimen later on proved. As in Peking, the actual hostilities broke out in the destruction by fire of Mission premises, and in per:onal attacks on those suspected of association. with foreigners. So great was the amomosity towards the latter, that great numbers of the compradore clerks and shroff classes came into the Settlements to obviate certain death. The Boxers attacked the Settlements and the Railway Station in great force on the night of the lyth of June, but were easily beaten off by the 56 marines of all nationalities who had come up from the Fleet to conduct the defence. lly great good fortune, as it afterwards turned out, a body of liussians, mumbering 1,700 men, and including a battery of well-found artillery had been precluded from following Admiral Seymour in his gallant effort to rescue the Legations by the fuct that the railway was cut: these men had perfore to remain in Tientsin. Even with their presence the fierceness and determination of the Chinese attacks were phenomenal and were with difliculty met. It is terrible to think of the disaster that might have happened had this Jussian force been absent. The lines extended over a length of two miles, exclusive of 2,000 yards of river frontage. The Chinese saw with great acumen that the key of the strategic position was at the Railway Station on the native side of the river to the east of the French Settlement, and directed all their efforts to carry it. It was here throughout that the liussians under Colonel Worack did very fine service. Had the Station been carried, not only would the victors have been able to enfilade the Settlements with rille fire, but they would have got a commanding position for their heavy guns, and in a day or two would have reduced the lirench and British Concessions to a heap of ruins. At first no fears weve entertained of the Boxers, but when the defenders became aware that the 'I'aku Forts larl been attacked on the morning of the 17 th of June, it was at once seen that the Tientsin foreign community was in deadly peril. The Chinese Authorities resented this act of war, and seized it as a good excuse for taking up the Boxer cause openly, and for opening tire on the Concessions. At $\geq p m$. on the afternoon of June the 17 th, the Chinese opened fire from a concealed battery in the City, the very existence of which was unknown, though it was universally thought to be the Black Fort or Shai-tse Ying near the viceregal Yumen. The women and children with all non-combatants at once fled to Gordon Hall where the capacious cellars offered accommodation to a large number; there they remained fon ten days. The Hall was often struck by shells, but in no case were there any casualties to European life or limb in its precincts.

The Chinese infuntry, accompanied by the Boxers, made vigorous assaults on the lailwiy Station for the next four days, but in every case were driven off hy the steadiness of the Jussian defence, often supported by the British and French naval contingents. An armoured train tried to keep open the communication with Tongkn, but failerl. A fine attempt was also male to conmunicate by river: the launch unfortunately ran ashore in the dark and its volunteer crew only reached their destimation after great hardships and narrow escapes. On June 19th, Mr. James Watts, jun., volunteered to lead a party of Cossincks through the enemy's lines with despatches, and at great peril did so. This was one of the nost brilliant feats of the whole campaign in North China. The defence was already ruming short of ammunition, and unless help came quickly it woukl have hal to beeome merely passive. On this same day the attack was the most resolute, and the Chinaman reached his highest level as ia fighting man. The first part of the sioge lasted six days, during the course of which the Chinese succeeded in firing is considerable number of buildings in the French Concession and a few in the adjacent British Sottlementy. (On the other hand whole tracts of the City and suburbs were dastroyed by the foreign attack; the wholesale destruction of these villages became necessary as they were giving cover to the enemy's rifles.

The first part of the Siege was ended by the arrival of a relief column on Saturday, June 23rd. An advance guard of Russians and American marines had left Tongku on the previous Wednesday, but had been ambushed and driven back with heavy loss, also losing a Colt gun. On Thursclay they were reinforced, and after two days' continuous fighting, in which they cleared the whole district between 'Tongku and Tientsin on the left bank of the Peilo, of the enemy, they reached Tientsin and freed it from further attack on the Eastern side, besiles restoring communications with the naval base. The German marines on their way up met with strenuous resistance, and had a very serious engagement near the Eastern arsenal. The Chinese were still greatly superior in artillery, and at once renewed their policy of long bowls from the north and northeast ; later on swiftly pushing their right round to the west, they placed new batteries near the Race Course and renewed their bombardment with greater vigour than ever. The one need of the Allies was heavy metal with which to cone with the Chinese Krupps ; one 12 -pounder had come up from the T'errible and did splendid service, but a whole battery of these fine weapons was necessary. It is the unexplained mystery of the Siege why these guns and the $4^{\prime \prime}$ (Q.F. were not sent up when Capht. Percy Scott had them all ready to land. Many valuable lives were sacrificed by this bungling at Taku. In the meantime the Allies were not idle. Early on Monday, June 25th, a column 2,000 strong, of all arns, set out to relieve Admiral Seymour, who was tighting his way back from Lang-fong, and who, ly the destruction of the lailway, had been compelled to march down encumbered with miny sick and wounded. The Chinese in trying to ambush his force at IIsi-ku had really been his salvation, as he had rushed that Arsenal and had found therein both stores and ammunition in vast quantities. He successfully resisted the desperate efforts to recover the place, and awaited reinforcements from Tientsin-the latter arrived on Monday night, June 25 th-and next morning after firing the arsenal in many places, and thus diverting the attention of the Chinese, who male great efforts to save the place from the fire, he arrived in Tientsin safely with all his wounded next day, after having been lust to the world for over a fortnight. On Wednesday, June the 27th, the Eastern Arsenal was taken by the Allies, the Russians supported by the liritish and German Marines and by the First (British) Chineso Regiment bearing the brunt of the action. The smaller Western Arsenal hal been destroyed by forcign shell fire on the previous day. Jipanese troons now arrived in great numbers, and the Allies gradunly assumed the offensive, though they were still markedly inferior in weight of guns. On the 3rel of July, the attack hy shell and rifle was the most severe of the whole siege, and as communications with Taku by river were now open, the ladies and clildren were sent down stream, to find a refuge in Shanghai and Japm; while the much needed quick-firers and more of the T'errible's 19 -pounders were got up) from Taku. On July the 9th, the Allied forces resolved to clear the eneny from the Race Course, from which for days he had been exposing them to a scuthing cross fire. This was most brilliantly done ly the Japanese, and was the first pitched battle in which both sides were in the open-demonstrating the utter worthlessness of the Chinese of all arms when they had no cover. They were easily beaten at all points, and made a hasty retreat into the native City after losing as complete battery of guns.
()n July 13th, if frontal attack was made across the open on the South Wiall of the City. The Chinese were strongly posted behind the loopholed rampart, and submitied the Allies to in terrible ordeal of tire as they approached the gate. Ten per cent. of the entire force was disabled in this sanguinary fight ; but early next morning the Japanese who had again borne the brunt of the engagement, blew up the gate, and the City was at the mercy of the foreigners. It was given up to loot for one day, after which military government was established. Documents attesting the collusion of the Officials with the Boxers were found in the Yamen. During 1901 Thentsin was in the possession of the Allied troops. All the walls, forts, arsenals, and cantonments were dismantled and razed to the ground. While the city was under martial law many urban improvements were carried out.

TAKU

This village is situated at the month of the Pei-ho, on the sonthern side of the river, about sixty-seven miles from Tientsin. The land is so flat at Taku that it is difficult for at stranger to detect the entrance to the river. There are two inchorages, an outer and inner. The former extends from the Customs Junks to three miles outside the Bar, seaward; the latter from Liang-kia-yuan on the south to the Customs Jetty, Tz'chu-lin, on the north. The village is a poor one, and possesses few shops and no buildings of interest except the forts, now demolished. The only foreign residents are the employées of the Lighter Company, the Customs and the Pilot Corporation. A railway from the adjoining town of Tungku (two miles up the river) to Tientsin was completed in 1888.

Taku is memorable on account of the engagements that have taken place between its forts and the British and French naval forces. The first attack was made on the 20th May, 1858, by the British squadron under Sir Michael Seymour, when the forts were passed and Lord Elgin proceeded to Tientsin, where on the 26th June he signed the famous Treaty of Tientsin. The second attack, which was fatally unsuccessful, was made by the British forces in June, 1859. The third took place on the 21st August, 1860, when the forts were attacked from the land side and captured, the booms placed across the river destroyed, and the British ships sailed triumphantly up to Tientsin. The water on the lar ranges from about two to fourteen feet at the Spring tides. At certain states of the tide, steamers are obliged to anchor outside until there is sufficient water to cross.

Taku and Tongku is naval bases have been very prominent in the history of China. In May, 1900, as the Boxer sedition came to a head, the European lowers assembled the greatest naval armament ever seen in tho Lastern hemisphere, and one might almost add in the history of the World, at Taku l3ar. Sir Edward Seymour, K.c.b., as Senior Naval Officer, was in command. The Achnirals were called upon to protect the Legations in Peking and the foreign settlements of Pientsin, and in the second week of June, naval landing parties were sent ashore by the six European Powers, the United States and Jippan. liussia, however, sent to Port Arthur for troops and landed very few sailors. On Saturday, June 9th, the situation in Peking heame so alarming ly the attitude of the Boxers that the Ministers wired for instant help. The message was flashed out to the fleet at midnight, and before morning a combined force of nearly $1,500 \mathrm{men}$ of all nationalities was towed over the Bar, landed, and sent up to Tientsin ly train, where, under Admiral Seymour's personal command, they at once entrained for Peking. Advancing as far as Lo-fia and Lang-fong, their further passage was disputed by the Boxers in force, who were easily beaten off, but as they had torn up the line and destroyed the bridges, further advance by train became impossible. After. June 17th, the Boxers were joined by the Imperial troops now in the rear of the Relief Colum, who busied thennselves by cutting up the railway, thus destroyiug the Admiral's communication with his base. He had now no military choice but to fight his way back to Tientsin. He had but two or three obsolete field-pieces with which to oppose the modern Krupps with the Chinese forces around l'eking, and had no supply of food, as he had landed at almost an moment's notice. To have gone on and tried to cut his way through the Clinese and into the city under such circumstances would have been to court disaster, and as, even if successful, ho could not possibly liave returned, he would only have addled to the difliculties of the Legations and hesieged residents, whose supplies of food and ammunition were already perilously low. The retreat was masterly. The column came by train to the break in the line at Yangtsun, and then took to the old road, seized Hsi-ku arsenal five miles out of Tientsin native city, and stayed there till relieved on Monday, June 95 th, by it culumn of Allied troopls. On T'uesday, June 2Gth, the two columns marched back to the settlements, hringing in their wounded safely. After Admiral Seymour had left Taku, the liussian Admiral Hildelrant became senior ollicer.

During the week Sune 10th to 16th, the general situation in Chihli became critical in the extreme, and it was a fine point to determine whether the Traku Forts commanding the entrance of the Peiho should be seized. It will mrobahly be a contentious question to the end of time if the ultimatum sent in by the Allied Aimirals to the Commander on Saturday, June 16th, to hind over the Forts before next morning, precipitated the crisis in Tientsin and Peking or not. The official people in general held that it did, lay observery affirm that it made no difference; that the Imperial Government now captured ly the Reactionaries was fully committed to the Boxer movement, and that the non-capture of the Forts would have involved the destruction of every foreigner and native Christian in North China. The admirals had to decide this fine point, and, with the exception of the American Officer, they took the line of men of action. After a council of war they sent in the ultimatum that they would open fire at daybreak next day if the forts were not surrendered. The Commander referred the matter to Tientsin, and was ordered not only to resist but to take the initiative. He did so by opening fire at the six gunboats lying in the Tong-ku reaches of the Peiho, about 2,000 yards in a bee line above the forts (three miles by river). There is much general misapprehension about this brilliant feat of war. The allied lileet had nothing in the world to do with it, lying as it was twelve miles distant with a shallow twelve foot bar between it and the forts. The entire weight of the business fell on six little cockleshells of gunboats-the British Ll/gerine, lrench Lion, German IItis, and the Russian Bobr; Gieled and Korietz-and two landing parties of British and Japanese numbering about 300 each. The residents of Taku village foumd refuge in the U. S. Monocacy, which, after getting a shell through her bows, steamed up the river out of range. Many refugees lleeing from Tientsin were on the merchant stamers at the wharves, and were under fire for some hours. The firing was somewhat wild during the darkness, but when dawn appeared, at 3.45, the gunloats, led at first ly the Alyerine and afterwards by the Ittis, steamed down the river and took up a position close under the N.W.Fort. A single well-timed shell would have utterly destroyed any one of the six vessels, but Chinese gunnery was once more at fault. The naval guns soon mastered the heavy and modern weapons on the Forts, and before 5 a.m. the two landing parties had rushed the North-west Fort, and then procceded along the causeway to the large North Fort at the river mouth. This was also escaladed and its great guns turned against the two fortifications on the South side of the river at close range. The whole affair was finished before 6 a.m.-a large number of Chinese dead testifying to the accuracy of the Allies' fire. Four Chinese torpedo-bont destroyers were cantured with conspicuous bravery by the British torpedo-boat destroyers Whitina and Fame, and distributed amongst the Allies. The demolition of the Forts was effected during 1902.

PEI－TAT－HO

Pei－Tai－Ho is a watering place on the Gulf of Pe－chi－li，which the energy and enterprise of the foreign community of Tientsin have called into existence within the last few years．It lies some 22 miles S．W．by W．from Shanhaikwan，where the Great Wall meets the sea，in latitude 39 deg． 49 min ．N．，longitude 110 deg． 30 min ．E．，and is distant from Tientsin by railway 157 miles．Nine miles distant is the harbour of Ching Wang T＇au，which the Chinese Imperial Government has declared its intention of making a Treaty Port．Under the auspices of the reconstructed（British）Chinese Engineering and Mining Co．，Ching Wang T＇au is being made into an ice－free，safe，deep－water har－ hour，giving access in all weathers to ocean－going steamers all the year round：the neces－ sary works to ensure this end have been pushed forward during 1902，and vessels draw－ ing 18 ft ．can now be berthed at the jetty．The hinterland is rich in coal and iron，and has good railway communication with Tientsin and l'eking ; there is little doult that Cheng Wang will soon become a great export coal depot, if not a considerable emporium for general trade. The land round about has all been taken up by the Company, which has been entircly reconstituted during the past year. The boundaries of the Treaty Port have been extended along the foreshore of shallow Bay for nine miles, and are then spread out as to include the 3 or 4 square miles on which the foreigners have settled at Pei-T'ai-IIo. The fact that the watering-place lies within the port limits gives legal title to all land purchase, and will ensure some sort of foreign Municipal control in the near future. An attempt has been made to obtain this from the Imperial Govermment ; meanwhile, the foreign community has made temporary arrangements and has submitted to voluntary taxation for combined sanitation.

P'ei-Tai-Ho at present is accessible only by rail from P'eking, Tientsin, Taku and Newchwang, though the journey extends over two entire days from the Manchurian scaport. The railway station lies from four to six miles from the various settlements, and the journey is made hy chair, donkey, or walking. Carriages camot be used, as the roads are like those which General Wade superseded in the Scottish Highlands. There are six miles of beach of every possible variety, and the bathing is excellent from the middleof May to the first of October. The country rises at once from the shore to undulating uplands; most of the houses are at an elevation of fitty or a hundred feet above sca level. At the west end the country is diversified by the Lotus Hills, a series of granite rocks which come close to the sea, and are an off-shoot from the littah Hill twelve miles inland. The Lotus peaks rise to about 400 feet. The soil is chielly a sand formed by disintegrated granite ; it is very dry, fertile and non-malarial. The water is excellent, In 1896 there were about twenty tenements, in 1899 about one hundred; in July 1899. the population was slightly over four hundred, chiefly from Tientsin, l'eking and the mission stations of Chih-li. There were three major and two minor settlements; West Shore, laoky P'oint and Last Cliff being the designatories of the former, but the settlements were wholly destroyed on and after 20th June, 1900. Most of the 'lientsin and P'eking laymen were at West Shore; it had the advantage of moximity to the Hills and the Station, and had more pleasing scenery near at hand. Its demerits, were a somewhat tame beach-nothing but sand-and inferior bathing. The latter is due to stinging meduspe or jelly fish, and to the nearness of the liver 'lai, which often discolours the water : both demerits have, however, heen exaggerated. The missionaries were chiefly at liocky l'oint; there they had an Association which regulated their land tenure. sanitation, Sunday observance, etc. $\Lambda$ strong body of laymen settled to the west of this 'Association' settlement, attracted by the central prosition, better beach and bathing. The East Cliff was originally a mission investment, but in time became a general settlement. Some thirty or forly foreign visitors who were in residence when the Boxer cyclone burst were taken off by the boaty of IH.M.S. Mumber, and conveyed to Chefoo in June; immediately after which the matives joined a small party of soldiers in first looting and then burning every house in the place. The natives carricd ofl every scrap of the buibding material that was portable; even the bricks and dressed stone, and in some cases they actually dug un the foundations. Their action was due to greed and not to anti-foreign malice-as a matter of fact, they had always been on good terms with their fureign neighbours, to whose presence they cantirely owed their prosperity, The I-1[o-Chüan or lloxer sect is not known to have had any following in the district. The people simply believed the foreigners were to be exterminated, and would never return; and in this belief resolved to resume possession of their lands and as much else as was possible. During $1901-2$ the German forces encamped at Jei-tai-ho and made roads; a small gauge steam tramway was also constructed from the liailway Station to locky loint. In the carly spring of $190 \%$ many of the houses were rebuilt and during the summer quite a number of families were in residence for a short season. The rains are heary in July and carly August, but the sandy soil enables one to be out of doors at once after a heavy rain. The temperature varies from $4^{\circ}$ to $10^{\circ}$ below that of Peking and 'Tientsin in the height of summer; there are no hot winds. as the prevailing breeze is nearly south and is sea-borne.

NEWCHIW ANG  萑4 Niu－cluang 子營 Ying－tsz

Newchwang is the most northerly port in China open to foreign trade．It is situated in the province of Shing－king，in Manchuria．It is called by the natives Ying－tz，and lies about thirteen miles from the mouth of the river Liao，which falls into the Gulf of Liao－tung，is continuation of the Culf of Pechili．

Before the port was opened，comparatively little was known of this part of the Central Kingrlom．Manchuria has since，however，been largely colonised by the Chinese， who now outummer the natives．The word Ying－tz means military station，and that was the only use formerly made of the port．Between the years 1858 and 1860 ，the British fleet assembled in Ta－lien－wan Bay，and early in 1861 the foreign settlement was established．The town of Newchwang itself is distant from Ying－tz about thirty miles， and is a sparsely populated and uninteresting place，but the construction of the railways is rapidly increasing its importance．At the end of 1899 the Eastern Chinese Railway line（Russian）between Port Arthur，Dalny（Talienwan），and the junction at Ta－shih－ chias，whence a branch runs to this port，was completed as far as Moukden and the Imperial Chinese Railway line from＇l＇ientsin to Yingkow was practically accomplished． These lines are now completed and there is a train service through to St．Petersburg． Systematic attack has also at last been made upon the mineral resources of Man－ churia，the Eastern Chinese Railway having opened coal mines at Mo－ch＇i－shan and ＇Tz＇uerh－shan near Liao－yang，and at Wa－fung－tien in the south of the Liaotung peninsula．The milway line runs close to these valuable properties．The well－known gold－bearing districts of Tung Wha and Tieling are also leing worked by foreign companies．An unprecedented expansion in trade has accompanied these developments．

The country about the port of Newchwang is bare and clesolate，and in sailing up the river a most cheerless prospect greets the traveller＇s eye．Ying－tz is surrounded by dreary marshes，and the land under cultivation produces principally beans．The river is closed ly ice for more than three months every year，during which period the residents aro entirely cut off from the outer world．＇The climate，however，is healthy and bracing． The population of the place is estimated at 60,000 ．

The chief articles of trade at the purt are Beans and Bean－cake；the export being principally to Japan．The share of Jipan in the export trade of Newchwang in 1903 was more than 22 per cent．of the total．The net quantity of Opium imported in 1901 was $2,13: 3 \mathrm{lbs}$ compared with $19,95(\mathrm{lbs}$ ．in 1900 ．In 1902 ，it amounted to $:, 033 \mathrm{lbs}$ ． The import of Opium has of late years shown an almost，continuous decline，the poppy being lirgely and successfully cultivated in Manchuria．The total net value of the trade of the port in 1903 was Tls． $47,632,0: 9$ as against Tls． $42,692,135$ in 1902．The port figured conspicuously in the troubles in China in 1900，the Chinese troops who attaceked the town being defeated by the Russims，who took possession of the port and the Pro－ visional Administration effected considerable improvements at the east end of the town．

other wharves of concrete lolocks faced with granite to accommodate ships of various draughts up to 22 feet, these being in length 3,920 lin. feet. The narrowest of these wharves is 350 feet wide and the railway lines are brought right alongside the ship-berths. Behind these railway lines are situated roomy godowns of corrugated iron, which when finished will have a floor area of 100,000 square feet. The area of port territory is 132 acres on a horizontal plane by 18 fect above low water. The inner harbour is protected by a stone and concrete breakwater 5,950 fect long, the height of the breakwater above highest tides being 10 fect. The deep water area of the harbour, inside the breakwater, is 500 acres. The wharves are lighted electrically and the channels by gas buoys. The entrance being very open, viz. 1,050 feet wide, shipping can enter the port at any time of day or state of tide. On the island of San-shantau, at the entrance to Talienwan Bay, a third-rate lighthouse with fixed white light is in course of construction and is being equipped with lopoff's wireless telegraphic apparatus. On this island a quarantine station is situated for infected vessels, with hospital accommodation for 20 Europeans and 100 Chinese, with a resident doctor and military guard. For discharging heary loads, the port has three steam floating cranes capable of lifting 50 tons each. For the docking of vessels a granite dry dock is provided 380 feet long, 50 feet wide at entrance and 18 feet on the sill, with extensive repair shops attacherl. A dock of 600 feet long, 90 feet wide and 30 feet on the sill is in course of cunstruction and will be completed this year. All power for work shops, lock-pumps, lighting, etc. is supplied by a central electric power house of 1,000 N.II.P.

The European town is situated along the waterfront of the port and runs inland up a slope towards the hills on an undulating stretch of rocky country. The area of the town for Juropeans is designed to accommodate 30,000 inhabitants and is separated from the Chinese quarter by a large natural park. The roads in the European town are macadamised and are 50 kilometres in total length. The town is of the radial or spider web design, the centres being on high points on which sites for important buildings are reserved. A part of the town is reserved for administrative buildings where are situated the head office of the Construction Department as well as the Governor's residence. 'There is one European Hotel in this part of the town, another more central, and a new one is in course of construction. There is likewise it lussian church, post-oflice, international telegraph, and a telephone system connected with Port Arthur ; two cluls also flourish. The Railway Company have built large airy hospitals with every accommodation for 200 patients ; and apart from these, infectious wards are situated outside of the town. The Chinese Eastern Railway, of which Dalny is the terminus, is directly connected by rail with all the Manchurian, Siberian and European Railways as well as with the Shanghai-kwan line via Inkou. There is a branch line to Port Arthur through the junction station Nanglin, and a daily service of trains ruus to the North and Port Arthur from Dalny.

The Japanesc occupied Dalny on May 30. Previous to evacuating the City the Russians endeavoured to destroy all works likely to be useful to the enemy, but the Japanese oflicial report aflirmed that they found the docks and piers uninjured except the great pier which was sunk, and barracks and other accommodation had escaped destruction. lalny at once became the base of their military operations against Port Arthur. No returns have reached us from Dalny for the Directory. Towards the end of 1901 the city was one huge hospital, where those wounded at Port Arthur were brought for treatment.

PORT ARTIIUR

顺旅 Lu-8hun
Port Arthur, at the point of the "Regent's sword," or Liaotung Peninsula, was formerly China's chief naval arsenal, but was captured in the Japanese war and its defences and military works destroyed. In 1898 liussia obtained a lease of Port Arthur and Talienwan and has now fortified the former, making it into a great nayal stronghold. It is connected by the Manchurian liailway with the Trans-Siberian Line, and was connected by cable with China in 190. A number of dredging machines belonging to the Nival Department have been employed for the purpose of decpening and widening the western part of Port Arthur harbour, in order to provide anchorage for battleships．It has ilso been decided to construct a channel through the Isthmus of the Tigre Poninsula，so that in the near future Port Arthur will have direct communication with the sea，which will be of great importance for both military and commercial purposes．The liussian budget for 1902 provided $5,200,000$ roubles for the completion of the defonce works at Port Arthur and Vharlivostock．

The fortress has been beseiged by a large Japanese force under Gencral Nogi since May 1904，and great efforts have heen made to reduce the defences．Though after great sacrifices the Japanese have captured certain important forts from which they have been able to bombard and amihiate the remmant of the liussian flect which hat surviver the encounters with Admiral Togo＇s squadron outside the harbour，there is apparently at the time of going to press much to be done before the fortress will be taken．General Stoessel is in command of the defending force which at the commence－ ment was estimated at 25,000 ．The defence，it is universally allowed，will rank among he finest in history．

Owing to the seige of the city，it has been impossible to revise the Directory list， which has consequently been omitted．

CHEFOO  梁之 Chi－fau 寧烟 Yon－tai

Chefor，in the lrovince of Shantung，is the name nsed by foreigners to denote this＇Treaty l＇ort ；the Chinese name of the place is Yentai，and Chefon proper is on the opposite side of the harhour．Chefoo is situated in latitude $3 \bar{J}^{\circ} 33^{\prime} 20^{\prime \prime} \mathrm{N}$ ．and longi－ turle $121^{\circ} 25^{\prime} 0 \Xi^{\prime \prime} \mathrm{E}$ ．The port was opened to foreign trade in 1863．The number of foreigners on the books of the various Consulates is alout 400，but more than half of them－missionaries－live inland．Chefeo has no Settlement or Concession， but a recognized Foreign Qunter，which is well kept and has good clean roads and is well lighted．A（ienemal Purposes Committer looks after the interests of the Foreign（Quarter and derives the revenue at its disposal from voluntary contributions by residents．The natives are most orderly and civil to foreigners．There are two gookl hotels and at least threc excellent boarding houses，ill of which are full of visitors from July to the end of September．＇Ihe climate is bracing．The winter， which is severe，Jasts from the beginning of December to end of March；April，May and June are lovely months and not loot；July and August are hot and rainy months； and September，October and Norember form a most perfect autumn，with warm days， cool winds and cold nights．Strong northerly gales are experienced in the late autumn and through the winter，and the roalstearl gives but an uncomfortable，though safe，anchorage for steamers．Juring the summer ind antumn amusements are varied－sea fathing，lawn tennis，pienies，de．－and there is a goorl clulb．The races take place towards the end of September．Chofoo is two diys＇journey from Shanghai，and in the summer tourist tickets from Shanghai and return are issued by the Indo－Chim S．N．Cu．，the China Merchants S．N．Co．and the China Naviga－ tion Co．，fad．Since the declaration of war between China and Japan（August，1894）the port has been much frequented by vessels of the different foreign navies，and its close proximity to Corea will canse these visits to be continued；the result was that，until the British Govermment obtained the lase of Weihawei，Chefon became coaling station，and large stocks of Cardiff coal were kept to supply the foreign men－of－war； but trade in Cardiff coal，so far as Jritish merchants are concerned，appears to have ceased since Weihawei became the coaling hasis in North China for the British fleets．Juring the winter of $189.4-9.5$ the port was in a state of excitement owing to the close proximity of，and possible occupation liy，the Jipmese．In 1806 the Chefoo Convention was concluded at Chefoo ly the late Sir Thomas Vade and the fommer Viceroy of Chihli，Ji Hung－chang．An enterprise has been recently established by a Wine Company of substantial standing；the soil of the Incality lends itself to such an industry and the future success of the proprietors of the first Far Eastern wine growing concern is a matter of considerable interest．Chefon is noted for its large and increasing fruit growing industry ；supplying Shanghai，Vladivostock，

Kobe and other Eastern ports with foreign fruits，which grow well with care and atten－ tion in that part of Shantung－the native fruit growershavino received foreign instruction， so that which was at first a hobby is now a paying industry．Chefoo was in 1900 connected by telegraph cables with Tientsin，Port Arthur，Weihaiwei，T＇singtau and Shanghai．

The trate of Chefoo，which is increasing，is principally in Beancake and Beans，of which large quantities are annually exported to the southern ports of China． In 1903 the net export of Beancake amounted to $1,192,948$ piculs as against 1，227，405 piculs in 1902 and $1,566,466$ piculs in 1901．Silk，Strawbraid，Ground－nuts，and Vermicelli are the other chief exports．The import of Opium was 237 piculs of native and 557 piculs of foreign brands as compared with 3,536 piculs in 1879 ，the trade having gradually dwindled．A notable feature of the native Opium trade is that practically the whole of it now comes from Manchuria．The net value of the trade of the port for 1903 ，after deducting re－exports，was＇lls． $38,183,912$ ；as compared with Tls． $35,924,413$ in 1902 ；Tls． $37,660,510$ for 1901 and Tls． $27,058,328$ for 1900.

In July 1903，the excessive rainfall converted the streams on the siopes into two rushing watercourses which swept through the native town carrying everything before it and between 600 and 700 Chinese，mostly women and children and bedridden people， were said to have lost their lives．

Chrfoo is much in need of railway communication as well as improvements in the harbour．An extensive work known as the Chefoo City Bund and lieclamation Scheme， which will be completed this year，will greatly improve the port，and if present intentions are fulfilled，the first model town under native jurisdiction will arise on the reclaimed lind．

WEIHAIWEI

衛海威 WeihaiweiWeihaiwei is situnted on the south side of the Gulf of l＇echihli near the extremity of the Shantung Promontory，and about 115 miles distant from l＇ort Arthur on the north－west and the same from the German port of Kiaochau on the south－west． Formerly a strongly fortified Chinese naval station，it was captured by the Japanese on 30 th．January， 1895 ，and was held by them pending the payment of the indemnity，which was tinally liquidated in 1898．Before the evacuation by the Japanese an agreement was arrived at between Great Britain and China that the former should take over the territory on lease from the latter，and accordingly，on the 24th May，1898，the British flag was formally hoisted，the Commissioners representing their respective countries

The REMINGTON TYPEWRITER works swiftly and wears slowly． at the ceremony being Consul Hopkins, of Chefoo, and Captain King-Hall, of H.M.S. Navcissus, for Great Britain, and Taotai Yen and Captain Lin, of the Chinese war vessel Fonchi, for China. The outbreak of war between Jipan and lkussia and the probability of l'ort Arthur being again captured by the Japanese makes it of interest to observe that Weihaiwei is leased to Great Britain "for so long a period as Port Arthur shall remain in the occupation of Russia."

The leased territory which lies in latitude 37 ' 30 " N, longitude $12 g^{\prime} 10 \mathrm{~F}$, comprises the Island of Lin Kung, all the Islands in the llay of Weihawei and a helt of land ten English miles wide along the entire coast line, and consists of ranges of rugged mountains and rocky hills up to 1,500 feet high, dividing the plains into valleys and river beds. The island of Liu Kung is barren and nearly trecless, and is formed by a backbone of hills rising to some 500 feet. The hillsides on the mainland of which Port Edward is the chief port, are either barren rock or planted with dwarf pine and scrul) oak trees. The valleys are mostly undulating country full of gallies and mountain river beds; the streams are all torrential, and choke up the valleys with sand and debris from the hills. During three-quarters of the year these river beds are dryAll the hills are terraced for cultivation as far as possible. The total area of the leased territory is about 285 square miles.

The strata of the mountains are metamorphic, consisting of berls of quartzite, gneiss crystalline, and limestone, cut across by dykes of volcanic rock and granite. Gold isfound in the territory, and has been worked by the Chinese, and silver, tin, lead, and iron are said to exist. Proper boring operations, under Luropean management, for gold have now been undertaken. Good building-stone ind a rich non-lydranlic limestone are found. The territory contains some $3: 30$ rillages, and the population is estimated to be 150,000. There are four small market towns where fairs are held every five days.

The Chinese inhabitants are either fishermen or farmers. The chief export trade is in salt fish, which is carried ia Chinese junks to Southern China. The import trade chiefly consists of timber, firewood, and maize from Manchuria, paper, crockery, sugar, and tobaceo, kerosine oil, cotton yarn, piece goorls, liguid indigo and other dyes.

The Government of Wei-hai-wei is administered by a Commissioner appointed under the Weihaiwei Order in Council of the 24th July, 3901. Under this Order the Commissioner is empowered to make ordinances for the administration of the territory. There is a High Court established, in which all jurisdiction, civil and criminal, is vested, subject to an appeal to the Supreme Court in the Colony of Hongkong, District Magistrates' Courts are also provided for. The Commissioner resides on the mainland at Port Edward. The village communities are administered through their headmen in accordance with Chinese laws and usages, and the people have now entirely acquiesced in the newly-established régime. All purely civil matters are left as much as possible to the village chicfs. There is, perhaps, no place in China occupied by foreigners where labour is so cheap. Weihaiwei is now a fairly regular port of call for many China coasting stamors sailing northwarls from Shanghai and there is a regular weekly service subsidised by (dovernment to run all the year carrying mails and passengers between Shanghai and Weihaiwei. This enables the public to reach Weihawei via Shanghai at any time of the year. Weihawei is now the northern naval base of His Majesty's China Squadron, and the Admiralty propose to buidd a naval hospital on the island. The harbour is well lighted by two lighthouses at the eastern and western entrances. On the mainland are the barracks and quarters of the 1st Chinese Jegiment. The climate of Weihaiwei is exceptionally good, and the winter though cold, is dry and bracing. A Europenn school has already been estahlished and a land and building society formed in Shanghai, has already erected several commodious European bungalows. There is a large hotel on the manland capable of accommodating over one hundred people. Bothon the manland and on the island grood roads have been made round the coast by the local govermment for the convenience of foreigners, and their are recreation and parade grounds upkept by the Admiralty and Wir Oflice in both places. In addition to the leased territory there is a zone of influence over which Cireat Jritain hokls certain rights. It comprises that portion of the province of Shantung lying East of the meridian 12.40 extending over an area of 1,500 square miles.

The native city of Weihaiwei (which lies on the mainland opposite the island of Liu Kung) is a wailed town of about 2,000 inhabitants. By the provisions of the Weihawei Convention of 1898 this town still remains under the juristliction of the Chinese authorities. The town is a poor one, and the greater portion of the enclosed area not built on, but cultivated for vegetahles. The market or fair held in the town three times.
a month is the largest in the Settlement. A Chinese sub-district deputy magistrate resides in the town of Weihaiwei.

No customs duties of any lind are collected at Weihaiwei. By agreement, the Chinese Government is permitted to make use of the Bay of Weihaiwei for its fleet, so far as is compatible with l3ritish interests. Weihaiwei was originally strongly fortified by the Chinese. Twelve large forts in all were planned and erected for the Chinese Government by Mr. von Hanneken. Eight of these forts and all the guns were completely destroyed in the China-Japan war of 1895. It was amnounced in 1903 that it was not the intention of His Majesty's Government to re fortify the station, but to retain it as a flying naval base, and as in depot, drill ground, and sanatorium for the China squadron in North China.

KIAOCHAU

州濧 Küuи-chau

Tsingtan, situated at the entrance to the Kianchau Bay in Shantung, was occupied by a German squadron on the 14 th November, 1897, in satisfaction for the murder of two German missionaries, and on the 2nd September, 1898, it was declared a free port. It is held on lease from China for the term of ninety-nine years. The special attention of the Administration has been devoted to the agricultural development of the Protectorate. The local administration consists of a Council, which is composed of all the heads of the several administrative departments under the personal supervision of the Governor and three members chosen from the civil population and appointed for one year: the first is named by the Governor, with the consent of the Council, the second is chosen from among the members of the non-Chinese firms, and the third from the list of taxpayers paying at least $$ .50$ ground tax, without distinction of nationality. In addition to the above-described Council, the Governor is assisted by a School Committee, a Committce to settle the question of licenses to public-houses, another to settle the land tax, and others for pauper and Church questions. The Protectorate has developed to an unlooked for extent under this system of administration, which has enabled all the vital questions at issue, such as legal rights, landed properties, land tax assessment, school and Church matters, to be satisfactorily settled. The object of the Administration in dealing with the land question has been to secure for every settler the lasting possession of his plot, thereby onposing unhealthy land speculation. Tsingtau is, and will remain, a free port. lhe harbour has all the advantages of a Treaty port and a free port, and as such especially recommends itself as an emporium since the merchant can there store, free of duty, his wares from abroad or his raw materials brought from the interior of China. The Chinese import duties can only be levied on goods brought to Tsingtau by sea, when they are transported beyond the borders of the Protectorate into Chinese territory. The Chinese export duties can only be levied on goods brought from the interior of China, when they are shipped from the German Protectorate to any other place.

The Bay of Kinochau is an extensive inlet about two miles north-west of Cape Evelyn. The entrance is not more than 13 miles across, the east side being a low promontory with rocky shores, with the village of Chingta (" green island," from a small grassy island close to the land) about two miles from the point of the peninsula. On the west sile of the entrance is another promontory with hills rising to about 600 feet. The shore here is rocky, and dangerous on the west side, but on the east side is a good stretch of sandy beach. The bay is so large that the land at the head can only just be seen from the entrance (about 15 to 20 iniles away), and the water gradually gets shallower as the north side of the bay is approached. Kiauchau city stands at the north-west corner of the bay. There are two anchorages for big ships; one, the larger and better round the point of the east promontory, on the north side, and the other, smaller one, at Chingtao on the south side. The hills are nearly bare rock of granite and porphry, but an extensive scheme, of afforestation has been decided upon. The soil of the valleys between the ranges and the plain country on the north-east is alluvial and very fertile, and is carefully cultivated. Wheat, barley, millet, maize, Indian corn, and many other grains in smaller quantities are grown. The foreign residential quarter at Tsingtau has been well laid out, and there is a good foreign Hotel. The first sod of the Shantung liailway was cut by Prince Henry of Prussia in October, 1890, and the line to T'sinanfu was opened on the 1st June, 1904 . The development of the town of Tsingtau has made considerable progress, the town is partly lit by electricity, houses are springing up in all directions, and a system of water supply has now been completed. The new harbour works are progressing. The outer break-water and two piers are completed, and have been in use since March !901. A dry dock is in course of construction. There are two German newspapers pullished, a weekly paper called the the Deutsch Asiatische IFarte and a daily paper called T'sinoton Neuste Naçhrichten. The climate is temperate, and it is expected that the bay will in course of time become a summer resort for the residents of shanghai, there being an excellent bathing beach. The total value of the trale of the port fur 1903 was Tls. $14,611,549$, which represents an increase of 40 per cent. over the amount in the preceding year, which was, in turn, 20 per cent. larger than that of 1901 . The value of Foreign goods imported (exclusive of railway and mining materials) showed an increase of 140 per cent. as compared with the returns for the previous year, and that of goods exported to foreign countries 125 per cent.

The Judget issued in November 1904 by the German Colonial Office estimates the income from the Colony of Kiaochau at ( 336,000 mark, and the expenditure at $14,660,000$ mark showing a marked increase in both respects. The continuing expenditure amounts to 6,006,121 mark, made up as follows :-Civil Government 1,101,693 mark ; military expenses $2,711,897$ mark; general expenses $2,192,531$ mark. The extriordinary expenses for the year are estimated at $9,257,000$ mark, made up in part as follows:-Harbour-works 3,473,000 mark; works below and above ground 1,964,000 mark; erection of dwellings 100,000 mark; irrigation and forestry 80,000 mark; armaments 2,500,000 mark ; lighthouses 40,000 mark ; docks $1,100,000$ mark ; reserve fund 32,879 mark.

SHANGIIAI

海上 Slúng-lái

The most northerly of the five ports opened to foreign trade by the British Treaty of Nanking is situate at the extreme south-east corner of the province of Kiang-su in latitude $31^{\circ} 15^{\prime}$ north and longitude $121^{\circ} 29^{\prime}$ cast of Greenwich, at the junction of the rivers Hwang-po and Woosung (the latter called by Europeans the Soochow Creek), about twelve miles above the recently-opened treaty jort of Woo-sung, where their united waters debouch into the estuary of the Yangtsze. Shanghai lies in a vist plain, the nearest hills, of only some 300 feet in height, being twenty miles to the westward. The soil is alluvial and extremely rich; it supports a great variety of food and other stuffs. This Kiangsu plain has been called "the Giarden of China," and the population here is, perhaps, denser than in any other part of the land-eight hundred inhabitants to the square mile is not an exaggerited estimate. Rice, cotton and grain aro the main products in the immediate neighbourhood; rice to the west and north, cotton to the west and south : but with the greater demand for cotton by the mills started within the last few years the cultivation of rice is being pushed farther away from Shanghai and cotton is taking its placc. The convenience of inland transit is here very great; rivers, canals and creeks are in every direction, but they form a great obstacle to free rirling and walking. Mulberry trees are not grown to any extent in the neighbourhood. Wheat, barley, rice, green foods of all kinds, cabbage, turnips, carrots, melons, cucumbers, potatoes, yams, chihlies, the egg plant, cress, etc., abound. Of fruits Shanghai is fiamous for its peaches; plums, strawberries, cherries (small in size), peopaws (or medlars) and persimons are common. The apple and pear, grape, chestnut and walnut are bronght from the north, oranges and hananas in great quantity from the south. The bamboo is common in the district, as is the pine, cypress, willow and a species of chm. The chrysanthemum and peony are the favourite flowers. Roses, tulips, pansies, hyacinths, fuchias, geraniums, and other European flowering munuals, are highly developed in the public and private gardens of the foreign settlements. Of birds, the crow, magpie, swallow and sparrow abound ; many species of lark, finch, and thrush are common, and the feathered tribe as a whole is plentiful in Kiangsu ; but it is otherwise with four footed aminals. For a more detailed account of the flora and fauna of the neighbourhood we must refer the general reader to Williams' "Middle Kingdom," and the student to the scientific works and periodicals in the Asiatic Society's library.

The river opposite the city and foreign settlements, once a narrow canal, was, some thirty years ago, 1,800 feet broad at low water, but has been rapidly narrowing till it is now only 1,200 feet. The Soochow Creek, which was, judging hy old records, at one timo at least three miles across, has now a breadth of less than a hundred yards. The average water on the bar at Woosung at high water springs is nineteen feet, the greatest depth of late years being twenty-three fect. The bar is the cause of heavy loss to shipowners and merchnints through the detention of occan steamers. After repeated efforts to induce the Chinese authorities to deepen it, an effort was marle to cope with the evil by dredging, but after a few months' work it was found that the experiment must prove ineffective, and in September, 1892, it was abandoned as useless. A sum of Ths. 17,350 was subscribed in 1894 to obtain the opinion of a Luropean expert, the Chinese authorities contributing Ths. 10,000 , and in the spring of 1897 the services of the Dutelh engineer Mr. de Jijke were engaged through the Chamber of Commerce to examine into and draw up a report on this question. Mr. de liijke, with the assistance of the Coast Inspector's department of the Maritime Customs, made a close study of the river and bar and his report was printed and circulated. As a result it was proposed that a Conservancy Board should be established, but nothing definite has yet been done. The cost of putting Mr. de lijike's schemes into operation would be considerable. One of the terms of the Indemnity agreement of 1901 is that the Chinese government is to inprove the sea approaches to Shanghai and Tientsin, but up till date of writing no action has been taken.

The approach by sea to Shanghai is now well lighted and buoyed, and the dangers of the ever shifting banks and shoals as well guarded as can be expected. Under the superintendence of the Jingineering department of the Maritime Customs, Jighthouses have been erected on West Volcano, Shaweishan, North Suldle, Gutzlaff, Bonham and Steep Islands, Peiyuishan, and at Woosung. There are also two lightships in the Yangtsze below Woosung.

History

Shanghai- the name means "upper sea" or "near the sea"-is mentioned as existing in 249 18.c. It was a place of some importance in the eleventh century, when it was made a customs station ; it became a hisen or third rate city in the fourteenth century. The walls, which are thee and a half miles in circuit, with seven gates, were erected at the time of the Japanese invasion, in the latter part of the sixteenth century. It hat been an important seat of trade for many centuries before the incursion of forcigners, and even two thonsand years ago was celebrated as the seat of an extensive cotton manfacturing industry. Shanghai was visited in 1832 by IIr. H. H. Lindsay, head of the late firm of Lindsay it Co., and the liev. Chas. Gutzlaff, in the Lord Amherst, with a view of opening up trade. Mr. Lindsay says he counted upwards of four hundred junks passing inwards every day for seven diays, and found the place possessed commodious wharves and large warchouses. Three years later it was visited hy the Rev. Dr. Medhurst, who contimed the account given by Mr. Lindsay. On the 13th June, 1842, a British fleet under Vice-Admiral Sir Willian Jarker, and a military force of 4,000 men under Sir Hugh Gough, captured the Woosung forts, which mounted 17 j guns, and took the hsien (district) city of Pashan. On the 10th, after a slight resistance, the force gained possession of Shanghai, the officials and a large proportion of the inhahitants having fled the previous evening, although great preparations had been made for the defence, 406 pieces of cannon boing taken possession of by the liritish. The people, however, rapidly returned and business was resumed. The same force afterwards captured Chinkiang and Lankow, after which the treaty of Nonking was signed, and the ports of Swatow, Amoy, Foochow, Ningpo and Shanghai were opened to trade. The city was evacuated on the 23 rld Junc.

The ground solected by Captain Balfour, the first British C'onsul, for a Settlement for his mationals, lies about half a mile north of the city walls, between the Yang-king-pang and Soochow Creeks, and extends backward from the river to a ditch commecting the two, called the Defence Creck, thus forming what may be called an islami, a mile square. The port was formally declared open to trade on the 17th November, 184.3. Some years were occupied in draining and laying out the ground, which was mostly a marsh with numerous ponds and creeks. The foreigners in the meantime lived at Namtao, a suburb) between the city and the river; the British Consulate being in the city. In two years a few houses were built in the Settlement, and by 1849 most foreigners had taken up their residence in it. By that time twenty-five firms were established, and the foreign residents numbered it hundred, including seven ladies. In that year an English Church was built, and on 21st November the foundation of the Roman Catholic Cathedral at Tungkadoo was laid. The French were in 1840 granted the ground between the city walls and the British Sattlement on the same terms, and, in exchange for help rendered in driving out the rebels who had seized the city in 185:3, got a grant of the land extending for about a mile to the south between the city walls. and the river. They have since by purchase extended the bounds of the Concession westward to the "Ningpo Joss honse," a mile from the river. Negotiations were instituted for an extension of the Concession to Sicawei, a village chielly oceupied by the Jesuits and their converts, situated at the end of the French Municipal road and five miles from the French Bund, but in this the French were only partially successful, a small extension as far as the Old Cemetery being granted them in 1899. Later on the Americans rented land immediately north of Soochow Creek, in the district called Hongkew, so that the ground now occupied loy foreigners extends for about five miles on the left bank of the river. Including the Creeks there are now 1.5 miles of the Settlement with water frontage.

The last Assessment was made in 1903, which while fixed at about twenty-five per cent. below the market value, amounted to Tls. $60,423,773$ the average ancrease being $37 \frac{1}{2}$ per cent., adding over Tls. 80,000 to the revenue of the Council. The British Settlement is now assessed at Ths. 30,086,586, Jongkew at Ths. 22,255,615, and the Western district at Tls. 8,081,572. The assessment of the British and Hongkew divisions respectively was in 1880 Tls. $6,118,265$ and Tls. $1,945,325$, total 'Ils. $8,063,590$; in 1890 T'ls. $12,397,810$ and Tls. $5,110,145$, total Tls. $17,507,955$. The totals for 1903 are thus tive and a half times those of 1880 and two and a half times those of 1890 . While the value of the land in the British Settlement had quadrupled that in Hongkew had increased to nearly eight times what it was worth twenty years previously. A great rise in values took place during the later months of 189.3 and this has continued steadily ever since, chiefly cased by the influx of native capital secking safe investment under foreign protection and by the great increase in population resulting from the establishment of numerons cotton mills, silk filatures, and other industries.

The total number of foreign houses in the four divisions of the general concession on 31st December 1903 , was 2,123 assessed at Tlls. $2,189,940$, as against 1,940 houses arsessed at Tls. $1,015,222$ on the corresponding date in 1902 . On 43,702 native houses the assessment was $$ 5,218,494$, against $$ 4,450,523$ on 43,048 houses same date the previous year, a total annual rental assessment of house property of say Tls. $5,947,544$. In the Budget for 1904 of the French Concession, the land was valued for assessment at Tls. $6,600,000$; the rental assessment of foreign houses was Tls. 175,000 and of native houses Tls. 750,000. The British and French Settlements, exclusive of the extensions acquired in 1890, are now all built over, and the vacant spaces in Hongkew are being rapidly covered. Nany of the best foreign houses both in the Settlements, and outside roads are now occupied by Chinese, retired officials and merchants.

A greatly enlarged houndary for the Settlement was granted in 1001. This new territory has been thoroughly surveyerl and many new joads are being formed. The area within Municipal limits is now 8 square miles, or 5,618 acres, with a population of 68.2 per acre. Of this area 641 acres approximately are covered by European buildings, 1,009 by Chinese buildings and 2,720 acres are agricultural land. There are in the whole S'ettlement (exclusive of the l'rench) 1,982 occupied European houses with an average of 4.19 inhabitants per house, and 42,882 occupied Chinese houses with an areage of 8.07 occupants. There are 58 miles of roads and an additional 41, mostly in the extension, are planned. The , Tapanese treaty of 1896 gave that Power the right to a separate Settlement at Shanghai, but no defirite clam has yet been made for such an area. Most of the limel at lootung on the opposite bank of the river, is now also rented by foreigners, hat natives have recent]y been considerable purchasers of landed property within the Settlements. All ground belongs nominally to the Emperor of China, but is rented in perpetuity, a tax of fifteen hundred copper cash, equal to about a dollar and a half per mov, being paid to the Government annually. The Settlement land was bought from the original proprietors at about $$ 50$ per mou, which was at least twice its then value. Some lots have since been sold at $$ 10,000$ to $$ 16,000$ in more,. About six moze equal one acre.

As a port for foreign trade Shanghai grew but gradually until it gained a great impetus by the opening in 1861 of the Yangtsze and northern ports, secured by the Treaty of Tientsin, and a further increase hy the opening up of Japan. In March, 1848, owing to an assault on some missionaries near Shanghai, Mr. Alcock, the British Consul, hockaded the port and stopped the passage outwards of eleven hundred grain junks. This drastic measare, by which grain for the North was cut ofl, brought the authorities to their senses, and after sending a man-of-war to Nanking the matter was arranged. The first event of importance since the advent of foreigners was the taking of the city by the Triarl rebels on 7th September, 1853, who held it for seventeen months, although repeaterlly besieged and attacked by the Imperialists. This caused a large number of refugees to seek shelter within the foreign Settlements, and the price of land rose very considerably. At that time a Volunteer force was formerl among the foreign residents, under the command of Captain, afterwards Sir Thomas, Wiale, which did really good service. The battle of "Muddy Flat" was fought on 4th April, 1854, when the Volunteers, in conjunction with the Naval forces, consisting in all of 300 men with one field piece, drove the Imperialists, numbering 10,000 men, from the neighbourhoorl of the Settlements and burned their camps. Two of the Volunteers and one American were killed, and ten men woundel. Owing to the occupation of the city the authorities wero powerless to collect the duties, which for a short time were not paid, and it was in consequence agreed in July, 1854, between the Taotai and the three Consuls (British, French, and United Witates), that they should be collected under foreign control. This was found to work so much to the advantage of the Chinese:

Government that the system was, subsequently to the Treaty of Tientsin, extended to all the open ports. The Foreign Inspectorate of Customs was established in 1861, the head-quarters of which were for some years, and, according to the original regulations, ought still to be at Shanghai. In 1861 the Taipings approached Shanghai, occupied the huildings of the Jesuits at Sicawei, and threatened the city and settlements. The capture of Soochow on 25th May, 1860, had driven a large number of the inhabitants of that city and the surrounding districts to Shanghai for protection, so that the native population increased rapidly. It was variously estimater at from four hundred thousand to a million, but the smaller number is probably nearer the truth. By 1861 provisions had increased in price to four times what they had heen some years previously. Etforts were made to keep the rebels at a distance from Shanghai ; a detachment of British Royal Marines and an Indian liegiment garrisoned the walls, while the gates on the side towards the French Settlement were guarded by French Marines. In August, 1861, the city was attacked, and the suburbs between the city walls and river were in consequence destroyed by the French, the rebels being ultimately driven back. In December the rebels to the number of one hundred thousand again threatened the Settlements. The approaches were barricaded and the Defence Creek constructed and fortified at an expense of forty-five thousand taels. Before the close of 1862 the rebels had been driven by the British Forces beyond a radius of thirty miles around Shanghai. So immensely dicl the price of land rise that it is stated ground which had originally cost foreigners fifty pounds per acre was sold for ten thousand pounds. At this time the old lace Course and Cricket Ground, situated within the British Settlement, was sold at such an enormous profit that after the sharehoders had been repaid the original cost there was a balance of some forty-five thousand taels, which the owners generously devoted to the foundation of a fund for the use of the public, to be applied to the purposes of recreation only. Unfortunately thirty thousand taels of this amount were lent by the treasurer on his own responsibility to the Club, in which institution he was a shareholder. As the shareholders were never able to repay this loan out of the profits on the Club, the buidding and furniture were taken over in 1869 by the trustees on behalf of the Recreation Fund, to which the building still belongs. This fund has proved very useful in rondering assistance to some other public institutions, besides having purchased all the ground in the interior of the lace Course, which is now leased by the Municipality and, with the exception of the steeplechase course at training seasons only, set aside as a I'ublic lecreation Ground, by which name it is known.

At the time the local native Authorities were severely pressed they availed themselves of the services of an American adventurer named Wird, who raised a band of deserters from foreign ships and rowdies of all nations who hard congregated at Shanghai, with whose help he drilled a regiment of natives. After Ward was killed the force passed under the command of a low caste American of the name of Burgevine, who subsequently transferred his services to the rehels. 'The Imperial Authorities found it impossible to control these raw and undisciplined levies, and at their earnost request Admiral Sir James Hope consented to the appointment of Major, afterwards (Gencral, (Gordon, li.E., to the command. Having by him been made amenable to discipline, this force now rendered the greatest service in the suppression of the rebellion ; indeed it is generally leelieved that the Taipings would never have been overcome but for the assistance of "The Ever Victorious Army," as this hastily raised hand was named. Amongst other services they regained possession of the important city of Soochow on 27 th November, 1863, which virtually ended the robellion. There is, however, much room for cloubt as to the wisdom of foreigners aiding in its suppression, many of those best capable of judging being of opinion that the civilization of the empire would have had a much better chance of progressing had the decaying dynasty been overthrown. Certainly European nations, merely in exchange for the pomise of neutrality, might have made almost any terms with the T'aiping rebels. A monument in memory of the officers of this regiment who fell stands at the north end of the Bund. From 1860 to 1866 one British and two Indian legiments and a battery of British Artillery were stationed at Shanghai.

Since that time there have been few historical events worthy of record in a brief sketch. On Christmas eve, 1870, the British Consulate was burned down and most of the records completely lost. In May, 1874, a riot occurred in the French Settlement, owing to the intention of the Municipal Council to make a road through an old graweyard belonging to the Ningpo Guild. One or two Europeans were severely injurerl, and eight natives lost their lives. A considerable amount of foreign-owned property was destroyed. A riot occurred on 5th and 6th April, 1897, in consequence of an increase in the wheellarrow tax. It was suppressed by the Volunteers and sailors from the men-of-war in port, without loss of life. The Consuls and Municipal Council having submitted to the dictation of the Wheelbarrow Guild, an indignation public meeting was held on the 7 th April, the largest meeting ever held in the settlements. At this meeting the action of the Authorities was so strongly condemned that the Council resigned. A new Council was elected and the tax enforced, the French Municipal Council increasing their tax in like proportion. Another riot took place on 16 th and 17 th July 1808, owing to the Authorities of the French Settlement having decided to remove the "Ninglo Joss House." The French Volunteers were callerl out and it force landed from men-of-war, which measures speedily suppressed the riot, fifteen natives being reported killed and many wounded. An extensive fire in the French Concession in August, 1879, destroyed 221 houses; the loss was estimated at Tls. 1,500,000. In 1894 n tire outside the native city along the river bank having cleared away a great and noisome collection of huts and hovels, advantage was taken of this clearing hy the native Authorities to make a broad Bund on the moxlel of the Foreign Settlement roads. This Bund extends from the south corner of the French bund, along the river some three and a half miles, to the Arsenal at Kao Chang Miao. It was formally declared open by the Taotai in October, 1897. A Council has been formed to supervise this Bund and attend to other native municipal matters; its ollices are situater in the Bureau for Foreign Affairs on the Bubbling Well Road. It controls a special force of police composed of Sikhs and Chinese. The forcign Settlements celebrated their Jubilec on 17th and 18th November, 1893, when, it is estimated, 500,000 strangers visited Shanghai. A medal was struck as a memorial of the oceasion. In 1900, Great Britain, Prance, Germany, and Japan landed troops at Shanghai for the protection of the Settlements, the presence of the troops loeing deemed necessary owing to the threatening ispect of the natives at the time onerations were being conducted in the north. They remained as a garrison until December, 1002 , when they were withdrawn.

Government

As at all the open ports, foreigners are in judicial matters subject to the immediate control of their Consuls, lritish subjects coming under the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, which was opened in Sentember, 180\%. Subjects of His Britannic Majesty have to pay an amual poll tax of two dollats, for which they have the privilege of being registered at the Consulate and heard as plaintiffs hefore the Court. There is enforcen registration at several of the other Consulates, but it is free of charge. Chinese residents in the Foreign Settlements are subject to their own laws, arministered by a so-called Mixerl Court, which was estahlisherl at the instigation of Sir Harry Parkes in 1864, and originally sat at the British Consulate. It is presided over by an ofticial of the rank of Tang-chi or sub-prefect. The cases are watched by foreign assessors from the principal Consulates. The working of the Court, especially in regard to civil suits, is far from satisfactory, as the judge has not sufticient power to enforce his rlecisions. The matter has for some years been supposerl to be engaging the attention of the authorities at Peking. For the French Concession there is a separate Mixed Court, which sits at the French Consulate. There is a Court of Consuls which was established in 1870, the judges of which are elected by the Consuls anmually, its purpose being to enable the Municipial Council to be sued.

In local affitirs the foreign residents govern themselves and the natives within the Settlements by means of the Municipal Councils, under the authority of the "Land liegulations." These were originally drawn up) for the British Settlement by H. B. M. Consul in 1845, but have since undergone various amendments. In 1854 the first general Land Rerulations-the city charter, as they may be called-were arranged between the British Consul, Captain Balfour, and tine iocal authorities, by which persons of all foreign nationalities were allowed to rent land within the defined limits, and in 1863 the so-called "American S'ettlement" was amalgamated with the British into one Municipality. The "Committee of lioals and Jetties,", originally consisting of "three upright British Merchants," appointed by the British Consul, became in 1855 the "Municipal Council," elected by the renters of land, and when the revised Land Regulations came into force in 1870, the "Council for the Foreign Community of Shanghai North of the Yang-king-pang," clected in January of each year hy all householders who pay rates on an assessed rental of five hundred taels, or owners of land valued at five hundred taels and over. The Council now consists of nine members of various nationalities, who elect their own chairman and vice-chairman, and who give their services free. The great increase of municipal business, however, is proving so much a tax on the time of the councillors, the chairman especially, that some new arrangement is necessary. The Secretariat was in 1897 strengthened and its efficiency increased, but no move in the direction of a change in the Council's constitution has yet been made. $\Lambda$ committee of residents was appointed in November, 1879, to revise the Land Regulations, and their work was considered and passed loy the ratepayers in May, 1881, but the "co-operative policy," under which a voice is given to small Powers having practically no interests in China, equal to that given to Great Britain, caused a delay of seventeen years. The liegulations were again revised and passed by the ratepayers in March 1898, and in November the Council received a formal notification that the additions and alterations and bye-laws had received the approval of the Diplomatic Body at leking, and they have the force of law in the Anglo-American Settlement. They give the Council the jower which it had been for nearly twenty years trying to get to compulsorily acguire land for new roards, the extension and widening of existing roads, the extension of lands already occupied by public works and for purposes of sanitation, and to introduce building bye-laws. The rights of the foreign renters and native owners concerned are most carefully guarded, for which purpose a board of three Land Commissioners has been constituted, one being appointed by the Council, one by the registered owners of land in the Settlement, and one by resolution of a meeting of ratepayers. At the time of the Taiping rebellion it was proposed by the Dcfence Committee, with the almost unanimous consent of the land renters and residents, to make the Settlements and City with the district around a free city, under the protection of the Treaty Powers. Had this proposal, which was thoroughly jutifiable owing to the Imperial Government having lost all power in the provinces, been chrried out, Shanghai would have becone the chief city in China, and it is safe to say would have acted as a leaven, to the ultimate immense benefit of the whole Empire. A separate Council for the Prench Concession was applointed in 1862, and now works under the "Reglement d'Organisation Muncipale de la C'oncession Française," passed in 1868. It consists of four French and four foreign members, elected for two years, half of whom retire amnually. Their resolutions are inoperative until sanctioned by the Consul-General. The members are elected ly all owners of land in the Concession, or occupants paying a rental of a thousand francs per ammum, or residents with an minual income of four thousind francs. This, it will be noticed, approaches much more nearly to "universal suffrage" than the franchise of the other Settlements. The qualification for councillors north of the Yang-kingpang is the payment of rates to the amount of fifty taels annually, or being a householder paying rates on an assessed rental of twelve hundred taels. For the French Concession the requirement is a monetary one of about the same amount. Several efforts have been made to amalgamate the French with the other Settlements, but hitherto without success. Meetings of ratepayers are held in February or March of each year, at which the budgets are voted and the new Councils instructed as to the policy they are to pursue. No important measure is undertaken without being referred to a special meeting of ratepayers. The Council divides itself into Defence, Finance, Watch, and Works Committee. This cosmopolitan system of government has for many years worked so well and so cheaply that shanghai has fairly earned for itself the name of "The Model Settlenent."

Population

The Foreign population increased rapidly up to 1865 , but declined considerably during the next ten years. The census of 1865 gave the number of forcign residents in the three Settlements as 2,757, army and navy (British) 1,851, shipping 981, a total of 5,589 . In 1870 the total in the Anglo-American Settlement was 1,666 ; in 1876, 1,673 ; in 1880 , 2,197 ; in 1885, 3 , 673 ; in 1890, 3,821 , in 1895, 4, 684 . Hy the census of 26th liay, 1900, there were in the Settlements north of the Yang-king-pang a total of 6,774 foreigners : 1,436 in the English division, 4,510 in Hongkew, 828 in Western district, outside roads and lootung. Of these 3,181 were males, 1,776 females, and 1,817 children, against 1,086 males, 296 females, and 291 children in $1876 ; 1,775$ mates, 1,011 females and 887 childrer in 1885 ; and 2,068 males, 1,227 females, and 1,389 children in 1895, an increase of 45 per cent. during the latter five years, against 23 per cent. during the previous five. At the beginning of 1904 the foreign population exclusive of the French Settlement was estimated at 8,300 . The fluctuations in the foreign population have been very remarkable. Between 1870 and 1880 the number of adult males decreased, while in the next five years it increased by over fifty per cent. In the nine years, 1876 to 1885, the whole foreign population more than doubled, but in the next tive years it showed an increase of only 148 , of whom 144 were children. The increase has been greatest in Hongkew, where the population is twelve times what it was in 1876, whercas that of the British Settlement is only 84 greater than in 1885 . The foreign population of the French Concession on 15th June, 1900, was 282 males, 145 females, and 195 children, a total of 622 against 430 in 1895 and 444 in 1890 . A curious fact is that of children under fifteen in the French Settlement only 26 were males, while 136 were females in 1895, and 52 were males and 14:3 females in 1900. The proportion of different nationalities in all the settlements was in 1900, 9,762 British, 1,013 Portuguese, G54 German and Austrian, 575 American, 394 French, 113 Spanish, 77 Danish, 66 Italian, 109 Swedish and Norwegian, 50 liussian, 151 of various other European nationalities, G:3 Eurasians (those in the Anglo-Anerican Wettlement, 519, are included under various nationalities), 831 Japanese, 323 Judians, and 174 Maniamen and other Asiatics. While the adult foreign male population had increased only 150 per cent. since the census of 1870, the number of women had been multiplied over eight and of children nearly eleven times. These figures do not inclucle the population athot, which at the date of the last census was $1,25 \%$, against 1,306 in 1895, 1,009 in 1890 and 893 in 1885. Although the Chinese have no right of residence within the Foreign Settlement, and indeed were expressly prohibited by the original Land Regulations, some twenty thousand sought refuge within the boundaries from the relels in 1854, and when the city was besieged by the Taipings in 1860 there were, it is said, at least tive hundred thousand natives within the Settlements. As they found some amenities from "squeezing" when under the protection of foreigners, and foreigners themselves being able to obtain a much higher rental for their land, mul finding native house property a very profitable investment, no opposition was made to their residence. In 1870 there were in the three Settloments 70.047 ; in 1880, 107,812; in 1890, 168,129, in 1895, 240,995. The numbers ly the last census (May, 1900) were, in the British Settlement 115,150, in Hongkew 147,566, in Western District 36,992 , in Foreign Houses, Mills, etc., in looth Settlements 10,384 , villages and huts within the limits 23,853, in shipping and hoats 11,3:31, total 345,276, an increase of 43 per cent. in the last against $43 \frac{1}{3}$ per cent. in the previous five years. The estimated native population in 1904 was 375,000 . The native population of the French Concession in 1900 was 80,526 (against 45,758 in 1895 and $3-1,722$ in 1890), the boat population 4,120 and in transit 7,000; say a total for the three Settlements and atloat of 436,922 , more than half of whom are adult males. This rapid increase has occurred notwithstanding that rents have risen from thirty to sixty and in some cases even one hundred per cent., and that provisions and cost of living generally both of natives and foreigners has increased. The majority are immigrants from other provinces who followed in the wake of foreigners, attracted by the high wages paid to skilled and unskilled labour required for the many industries. The population of the native city is estimated at 183,000 The large congregation of natives in the Settlements and the outlying roads is kept in admirable order by a Police force of 86 Luropeans, 186 Indians, and 613 natives for the north of the Yang-kingpang and 46 Europeans and 122 natives for the French Concession, or about one constable for every 425 inhalitants. As the natives have to be tried by their own authorities, and bribery doubtless works its effects in Shanghai as elsewhere in China, the difficulties of organizing and efficiently working such a small force are considerable. In few places are life and property more secure. In Angust, 189:, the Captain Superintendent stated that twenty-four hours had passed without one defaulter being reported, an unique police experience for any city in the world of its population.

Climate

The climate of Shanghai is generally allowed to be fairly healthy. The death rate amongst foreigners ashore and afloat during the past two decales has ranged from 16.4 per thousand (in 1897) to 26.7 per thousand (in 1882). The rate in 1902. was unfortunately higher than it has ever been before, becing no less than 34.6 per thousand. It should, however, be mentioned that nearly one half the number of foreigners who died in Shanghai in 1002, were non-residents. Partial outl)reaks of cholera have occurred at intervals, but the larger proportion of the cases were among the ships in harbour. The highest recorded number of cleaths from this cause among foreigners was 32 , in 1890. Of these, 11 were amongst residents. In the years 1892 to $189+$ and 1897 to 1901 inclusive there were no deaths from cholera, among foreign residents. The highest number of deaths of forcigners from small-pox was 19 in 1896. There were no deaths of foreigners from this cause in 1900 and only one in 1901, three in 1902 and seven in 1903 . In winter cases of small-pox and typhoid are frequent among the natives. Amongst the shore population the death rate was 15.5 per thousand in 1903 of which 3.2 per thousand were from Zynotic causes, and has varied, so far as can loe estimated in the absence of an annual census, from 14.3 in 1900 to 24.6 per thousand in 1891. These rates compare favourably with those of large towns in Europe and America. The Health Otticer in a late report says that "out of the seventy-five deaths registered there were but nine which can in any sense be termed elimatic." There were reported 7,956 deaths amongst the natives in the "AngloAmerican Settlement" in 1003, (against 10,801 in 1902), which makes the rate 21.2 per thousand (against 30.3 in 1902). Small-pox, which in the previons year chaimed only 31 victims, was the cause of 434 deaths in 1902 and 2.41 in 1903 ; cholera was responsible for 1,500 deaths in 1902 and 162 in 1903, scarlet fever for 1,500 in 1902 but only 2 in 1903, and tuberculosis for 2,000 in 1902 and 1,978 in 1903. In 1901 no case of cholera was reported, only 50 cases of scarlet fever, and 1,600 of tuberculosisThe thermometer ranges from 25 deg. to 1033 deg. Fahrenheit, the mean of eight, years having been 59.1 deg.; the average leing $41.0,65.1,77.8$ anci 52.5 for first, second, third and fourth quarters respectively. Shanghai approaches nearest to lome in mean temperature, while the winter temperature of London and Shanghai are almost identical. The mean daily range averages 15.6 being from $13.3^{\circ}$ during the first to $16.6^{\circ}$ during the second quarter. In October and November there is genemally dry, clear, aml delightful weather, equal to that found in any part of the world ; but when the winter has fairly set in the north-east winds are extremely cold and biting. On January 17th, 1878 , the river was frozen over at Woosung. The heat during July and August is sometimes excessive, but generally lasts only a few days at a time. In late years very severe gales have become more frequent. The mean of the barometer is from 29.78 in the third to 30.26 incles in the first guarter. The annual average of rainy days in shanghai during eight years was 124 ; 50 wet days occurred in winter, and 69 in summer ; the ammal rainfall averages 43.66 incles, 14.06 in winter and 29.60 in summer; the heaviest shower was on the 94 th October, 1875 , when 7 inches fell in $3 \underline{1}$ hours. The mean degree of humidity is from 7 (i in the winter to 80 in the summer months. Eirthquakes occasionally occur, but have not been known to inflict any serious injury.

Description

The streets of the English and French Settlements all run north and south and enst and west, mostly for the whole length of both settlements, crossing each other at right angles. They were when first laid out twenty-two feet wide, but have since at very great expense been mostly made much wider. Under the now Regulations power to compel the sale of land reauired for public purposes has been secured. Notwithstanding the soft mature of the soil the roads are now kept in remarkably good order, at least the main thoroughfares. The Municipal Council now leases a stone quarry at lingchiao, in Chekiang, about 150 miles south-west of Shanghai, from which they obtained about 27,828 tons of good stone and 3,385 toms decomposed sand and stone for roal making in 1903 . Owing to the nature of the ground, expensive piling or concrote fuondations are necessary before any foreign building can he erectel, and all stone has to be brought from a long distance. The Soochow Creek, between the English Settlement and Hongkew, is now crossed by seven loridges, four of which are adapted for carriage trathic, and the French concession is connected with the other Settlement ly eight bridges crossing the Yangking-pang. Six new bridges were erected in 1901 to connect the extended Settlements. It is proposerl to culvert and fill in the Creek between the General and French and to make a broad throughfare along its line, but the scheme is in abeyance. There are several good driving roads extending into the country, two leading to Sicawei, a distance of about six miles, and -one to Jesstich by the banks of the Soochow Creek, for five miles. $\Lambda$ scheme for the construction of a road from sicawei to the hills, eighteen miles, has been sanctioned and there is every prospect of its soon being made. Another broad thoroughfare, Yangtsepoo lioad, runs by the side of the river for five miles, which it is intended ultimately to extend to Woosung. The termini of Jessfield lioad and Yangtzepoo Road now mark the limits in their separate directions of the Foreign settlement. Several other roads have been proposed, but, although foreigners are prepared to pay high prices for the laml, the opposition of the ofticials has hitherto prevented their construction. Now, howerer, by the granting of the extension of the Settlements the Municipal Council has the right to buikd and police roads in certain adjacent districts. At the time the 'Japings approached Shanghai some roads for the passage of artillery were made by the Britisl military authorities at the expense of the Chinese Government, one of them extending for seventeen miles into the country; but, excepting those close to the settlement, they have now been turned into ploughed fields. The foreshore in front of the settlement has been reclaimed, raised, turfed, and planted with shrubs, and forms a delightful and spacious promenarde. The trees planted some years ago having now attained a good height, and several more imposing buildings having been completerl; the English and French Bunds form as magnificent a boulevard as any in the East.

Many foreign houses, nearly all of them with several mow of garden ground, have been, and more are still being, erected near the outside roads, especially on the Bubbling Well, Sicawei, and Sinza roads, which are the main outlets from the settlement, and from which most of the other rouls branch off. These roads are planted with trees on both sides, forming fine avenues of about five miles in length. A small but well laid-out, and admirably kept Public Garden was formed about 18688 on land recovered from the river in front of the British Consulate. It has been considerably extended in area by reclaming the foreshore. A general Public Garlen, intended for Chinese, eight mou in extent, by the bank of the Soochow Creek, was openel in December, 1890. There is a public conservatory well stocked with flowers and fems. A l'ark measuring 364 by 216 feet is laid out in Hongkew. The Public liecreation Ground has also been thoroughly drained, turfed and laid-out, in spaces not devoted to sport, with flower-beds.

Immense sums have been waster in various attempts to drain the settlements, principally from the want of skilled direction; but the great difticulties in this matter, arising from the low lying and level nature of the ground, have now been fairly overcome, though very much work of this nature has still to be undertaken in the recently acquired area. 'The settlements are well provided with telephonic fire alarms. The desire of the Municipal Councils to keep the monopoly in their own hands retarded for many years the inauguration of water works, but a public company is now established, which furnishes a continuous supply of filtered water at moderate rates. $\Lambda$ separate system of waterworks for the French Concession is being inaugurated, and Chinese waterworks, to supply the mative city, were completed in September, 1899. The electric light was introduced in 1882, and are lamps are erected on all the principal thoroughfares and wharves. In 1893 the Municipality purchased the property and business of the Electric Company, but the administration of the Electric Light Department has not given entire satisfaction and in 1809 the Municipal Council advertised for tenders for the purchase of its plant and the introduction of a private service. The French Municipality has an excellent electric light service and the native Bund is lighted by a Chinese Electric Light Company.

Shanghai can boast of several tine buildings of various and varied styles of architecture. Trinity Cathedral, erected from a design by Sir Gilbert Scott, is said to be one of the dinest specimens of modern ecclesiastical architecture to be found out of Europe. The foundation stone was laid on 16th May, 1866, and the church was opened for public worship on lst August, 1869. It is Gothic of the thirteenth century, 152 feet long, $58 \frac{1}{2}$ feet wide, and 51 feet from the floor to the apex of the nave. The structure was not completed, however, until 1892, when the spire was erected, the cross being placed on the top on the 4 th October of that year. It attains a total height of 160 feet, and, like the body of the edifice, is built of red brick, with stone dressings. There is a fine loman Catholic Church in the French Concession called Sit. Joseph's, built in 1862, and another in Hongkew known as the Church of the Sacred Heart. There are also the Union Church on the Soochow Creek, a handsome church with spire and bells in Juman Roarl belonging to the American Methodist lepiscopal Mission, a chapel belonging to the London Mission, and one to the American Episcopalians, and a very pretty and prottily situated Seamen's Church at Pootung (latterly disused except for the purposes of a mortuary), besides several mission chapels for natives. The Jesuit Fathers have an extensive mission estabishment and orphanages at Sicawei, where a mission has existed for over a hundred years. The present church was built in 1851. To this mission is attached a museum of natural history, ete., and an astronomical and meteorological olservatory. In connection with the latter there is a time-ball on the Firench Bund and the Fathers hope to introduce Marconi's system of wireless telegraphy between Sicawei, Shanghai, and Woosung for signalling purposes. Winder the direction of this institution, a complete system of meteorological observations, embracing the whole of the Chima Seas, is now carried out. The Shanghai Club occupies a largeand elaborate building at one end of the English Bund. It cost $£ 42,000$ and at that is saici to have ruined three contractors. It was opened in 1864 and has passed through a varied and peculiar history. The present buidings of the British Consulate and Supreme Court at the other end of the lBund were opened in 187:. Near to them is a fine Masonic Hall recently rebuilt. Amongst the other conspicuous buildings may be mentioned those occupied by the Hongkong and Shanghai lamking. Corporation, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, and the Imperial Chinese lailway Administration. The Lyceum Theatre, situate in Museum Road, is a fair building seating 700 persons, opened in fanuarv. 1874, and extensively altered and improved during 1901. The memhers of the (feman (Concordia) Club have also a handsome little theatre attached to their premises in the Canton Roarl. A new Custom House was completed in 1893 on the site of the old building on the Bund. It is in the Tudor style, of red brick with facings of green Ningpo stone, and has high pitched roofs covered with red French tiles. The buildings have a frontage on the Bund of 135 feet and on the Hankow Road of 15 F feet. In the centre of the main building in clock tower, supplied with a fourfaced clock striking the Westminster chimes, risos to a height of 110 fect, and dividesthe structure into two wings. The elevation is a very handsone one. Mr. John Chambers was the architect, and the new building adds an imposing feature to the Bund. Another fine building is the Central Police Station in loochow lioad, large and spacious, of red brick with stone dressings, but lacking frontage and surrounding space to set it off to full advantage. The new Town Hall and Public Markets were completed in 1899, and form the dirst block of buildings erected out of public funds for the public use. They occupy a prominent site, which is bounded ly four roads; the principal front being upon the Nanking roar?, the main thoroughtare of the British Settlement. The plan divides the block into two portions, the moiety facing Nanking Road being for use by the European community as a Town Hall and Market and the portion in rear as a Chinese Market. This latter is an airy open building 156 feet by 140 feet, two stories high, constructed entirely of iron and steel with concrete floors and a roof glazed in such a manner as toadmit the north light only. $\Lambda$ four-way staircase connects the two floors and is surmounted by an octagonal dome 40 feet diameter. The front building is of red brick with stone dressings. The lower floor consists of the European market 150 feet by 80 feet, and an arcade 156 feet by 45 feet employed for the same purpose. A special and striking feature of the building is the handsome staircase entered from Nanking lioad and leading to the Town Hall on the first floor. The walls and arches of this staircase are finished in clean red brickwork with stone dressings, the steps being of concrete with stone handrails and ballusters, and encaustic tile floors to halls and landings. The Town Hall is also used by the Shanghai Volunteers for Drill purposes. It presents an imposing appearance, being 156 feet long, 80 wide, and 26 feet high to the tiebeams of roof, a massively timbered gallery crossing one end. The thoor is of teak laid on steel joists and concrete. The open timbered roof is ceiled under the purlins almost up to the apex, with ribbed panels. The windows are of cathedral glass and the joinery and dado in this room wre of polished teak. It is heated by large Amprican stoves, and special attention has been given to the ventilation. Adjoining this Hall are other large rooms used for public mectings, a Volunteers ${ }^{-}$ Club and other purposes. The buildings are lighted thooughout by incandescent electric lights, the Town Hall having six 300 candle power incandescent lamps besides the numerous side lights. The whole of the buildings form an effective group-although the narrowness of the streets on the East and West sides considerably detracts from the possibility of obtaining a good view of the block. They took about eighteen months to erect and have been built from the designs and under the superintendence of Mr. C. Mayne, c.e., the Municipal Engineer, and Mr. F. M. Gratton, F.r.f.biA., of the firm of Morrison and Gratton of Shanghai, as joint architects and engineers. A New Mixed Court, an imposing structure, was completed in 1899. A monument to the memory of Mr. A. M. Margary, of the British Consular service, who was murdered by Chinese in Yuman, was unveiled in June, 1880, and a statue of the late Sir Harry l'arkes, British Minister to l'eking, was crected in 1890. $\Lambda$ bronze monument in memory of the heroic death of the crew of the German gunboat Iltis, lost in a typhoon off the coast of Shantung on 25th July, 1896, was erected on the Bund, at the end of the l'eking road, in November, 1808. The principal louildings on the French Concession are the Municipal Ifall and the Consulate. A bronze statue of Admiral l'rotet, who was killed when directing an attack on Nan-yan on 17 th May, 1862, stands in front of the Municipal Hall. The Public Markets of the French Concession are largo and well built and are perfect as regards sanitary arrangements.

The Council of the French Settlements voted in 1902 the monont of 90,000 Taels for the building of a street tramway-line from the Place de l'Est via the French Bum and the Rue de Consulat to the French Camp, but not a rail has yet been laid. Nor is the tramway scheme in the International Settlement in a much more advanced state. A contract was entered into with a British firm early in 1903, hat owing to general financial depression the firm asked for an extension of time which the council refused to grant and the company thereupon abandoned the concession. Fresh advertisements for tenders were accordingly published.

Institutions

Among the institutions of the place may be mentioned the Voluntcer Defence Force, under the command of Major W. M. Watson (West Riding legiment) with Major Brodie A. Clarke as second in comminnl. It consists of Staff 11, Light Horse 39, Artillery 68, " $\Lambda$ " Company 87, " 13 " Company 53, German Company 45, Customs Company 59, Japanese Company 50, Reserve Company 87, Medieal Staff 13, Maxin Gun Company 46, Signalling Company 20, total of all rams 586. These numbers are exclusive of the Band. Originally formed in 1861 the Volunteer Force gradually went to decay, until the fear of attack after the Massacre at Tientsia in 1870 caused its revival with considerable vigour. It again dwindled in numbers, but the last re-organisation under Major Holliday proved successful and in 1900, during the China crisis, the membership of 300 was more than trebled and inclucled an American and Naval Companies since disbanded. The annual inspection was made in 1904 by Lieut.-Colonel C. N. Watts, of the Hongkong Garrison, and the Corps was awarded high praise. The infiantry is armed with the Lee-Metford rifle. A separate Company of Volunteers under the orler of the French Consul-General was formed in May, 1897. The Fire Brigade, which is entirely volunteer with a paid departmental Engineer, has a strength of 71 and consists of four Engine and one Hook and Ladder Companies. It attended 104 fires in 1903. It is pronounced to be one of the most cefficient volunteer brigades in the world. There is now a Public Health Laboratory at which bacteriological investigations and chemical analyses are carried ont, vaccine lymph prepared, and the lasteur treatinent of rabies undertaken. The Municipal Nursing Home has existed for seven years and given much satisfaction. The Victoria Nursing Home has 25 beds and had 262 indoor cases in 190\%. It also undertakes outdoor cases. There is a Hospital for foreigners, the building for which, although only completed in 1877, is alrearly found inadequate and severad additions have been made. There are also several Hospitals for natives and three Municipal Hospitals for infectious diseases. The other public institutions may be enumerated as, a Subscription Library containing about 20,000 volumes, a branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, with the nucleus of a Museum, a Masonic Club, a Sailors' I Iome, a Polytechic Institution for Chinese, a Seamen's Library and Muscum, a Wind Instrument Band of thirty-five men, paid by the Municipality, which gives concerts in the l'ublic Gardens every day during the summer months, a Tiace Club, possessing a course of a mile and a quarter, and which holds race meetings in May and November, a Country Club on the Jubbling Well Road, Parsee, Portuguese, and Custons Clubs, also Pony l'aper Hunt, Cricket, Ritle, Yacht, Baselaall, Racquet, Golf, Skating, Football, Swimming and various other Clubs, Philharmonic and Choral Societies, English and French Amateur l)ramatic Societies, and other institutions for ammsement and recreation. There are sixteen Masonic borlics, with over 500 mombers. In $187(6$ a District Grand Lorge for North China was constituted, with Shanghai as its headquarters.

Industries

There are five Jocks at Shanghai. The one at Tungkaloo, opposite the city has a length of 380 feet over all, with a depth at siming tisles of 21 feet: the Old Dock at Hongkew is 400 feet long and 18 feet deep at springs; the New Jock at lootung, it the lower end of the harbour, measures 4 fo feet on the blocks, 50 feet wide at bottom and 134 at top, is 80 feet wide at entrance between pierheads, with a depth at high water springs of 22 feet; the works connected with this dock cover an area of 16 acres; the Cosmopolitan Dock, on the lootung side about a mile below harbour limits, is 560 feet long on blocks, and 82 feet wide at entrance. The International look is a new and larger dock. All ste:mers and mostsailing vessels now discharge and load at the various public and private wharves. The premises of the Associated Wharf Companies have a frontage of about three-guarters of a mile. The Chinese Govermment has an Arsenal, Dock, and shipbuilding establishment at Kaou Chang Miao, a short distance above the native city. It commenced ass a small rille factory in 1867. The Great Northern 'Telegraph Company's cable was laid to Shanghai in 1871, and that of the Eastern Extension Company in 1884, there heing now three distinct lines of communication with Euroje. An overland line to 'Jientsin was opened in December, 1881, subsequently extenderl to Peking, and in 1894 connecterl with the Russian land lines through Siberia to Jurope. There is also a line west to Kashgar and south as far as Larokay on the I moman horder, there comnecting with the French Tonkin lines and to Bhamo, connecting with the Burmah line. During the operations in 1900 , the Allied Powers found it necessary to be independent of the Chinese landlines, and submarine cables were laid comnecting Shanghai with Kiaochow, Weihaiwei, Chefoo, and lort Arthur. A railway eonstructel liy a foreign company was opened to Woosung in June, 1876 , hat after ronning for sixteen months it was purchased and taken up liy the Chincse Authoritics. During the short time it was ruming the passenger traftic alone covered the working expenses, leaving sulficient profit to pay a small dividend. Towards the close of 189: consent was given by the Throne for the construction by the provincial authorities of a line of railway from Shanghai to Soochow, a distance of about eighty miles. This is now in course of construction, the portion between Shanghai and Woosung having been opened to traftic on Ist September 1898. The extension of the line from the present Woosung teminus, across the creek into Woosung proper, is now being made, the final terminus to be Princess Wharf, immediately adjoining the old forts. The Shanghai terminus is ton far from the Settlement to permit of the lines boing of much use in handling cargo from Woosung. The line is to be extended to Chinkiang and Nanking. A scheme for Tramways in the settlement has often been put forward, hut up to 1896 was refused sanction by the ratepayers. Tenders are now however being considered. There are five locally owned lines of steamers running on the coist and the river Yimgtsze. Many manufactories under both native and foreign auspices have sprung up of late years, and would have done so in large numbers long ago had it not been that the native athorities offered strong opposition to any manufactures under the control of foreigners and prevented the importation of foreign machinery. Although the right under the Treaty to import machinery is quite clear, the Jritish Govermment hesitated to enforce it; but the Japanese, in the treaty of 1895 which closed the war, oltained the insertion of a clase specially authorising its importation. The consequence is that five cotton spinning and weaving companies have been floated, one under the auspices of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson © Co., one under those of the American Trading Company, one under the management of Messrs. Ilbert \& Co., one by Messrs. Arnhold, Karberg \& Co., and one by Messis. Fearon, Daniel \& Co., who have built mills of from 40,000 to 60,000 spindles each. With the number of mills working and others in course of construction, the place is rapidly assuming the appearance of a thriving district in Lancashire. At the present time there are nine Cotton Mills in operation, with about 167,000 spindles, and four Chinese-ownel, with about 146,000 spindles. It is probahle, however, that not more than an averige of 60 to 70 per cent of the foreign-owned spindles are at work at one time, taking slack and busy periorls together. The mills however, have not proved so profitalile as was expected owing to difficulties connected with the supply of the native raw material and the increased cost of labour. In consequence of this Messrs. Fearon, Daniell \& Co's. Yah Loong Mill was closed and the machinery sold by public auction in December, 1901. Approaching Shanghai from Woosung the extensive mills of the Shanghai Cotton Cloth Administration (a native-owned business) meet the eye-the old premises were destroyed by fire in 1893, and the present buildings were completed in 1895. These mills were the first erected in Shanghai, and the late ex-viceroy, Li Hung-chang, had a considerable interest in them. Above these on the river side are the mills of Ilbert \& Co., Jardine, Matheson \& Co., and Arnhold, Karberg \& Co., referred to above; while on the opposite or Pootung shore stands the large and busy mill of the International Cotton Manufacturing Co. There are also a number of ginning factories, foreign and native owned. Much of this cleaned cotton is exported to Japan. Of Silk Filatures Shanghai has 25 , with a total of 8,000 basins, of which five were foreign managed. The export in 189.5 was 6,276 bales of one picul ( 133 l lbs. each), 5,293 piculs in $1896,11,429$ piculs in 1897, 8,037 piculs in $1898,12,919$ piculs in $1890,7,654$ piculs in $1900,14,738$ piculs in 1901 and 12,338 in 1902 . One only of these Filatures is the property of a private firm; the others being owned by Foreign or Chinese Companies. These Filatures which give employment to 20,000 Natives are scattered over the Hongkew and the Sinza districts, with the exception of a large one of 300 basins at Jessfield- the Hing Chong Filature. Of other industries we may note Hydraulic l'acking Factories, a native owned laper Mill, two Chinese owned Match Factories, turning out between them some 80 cases, containing each 100 gross of boxes, per day. $\Lambda$ large foreign llour Mill (for grinding mative wheat, which it is said makes excellent flour), two Kerosene Tank Oil and l'inning, establishments and works, and various other industries which are fast increasing in number. Shanghai bids fair to soon outrival Bombay as the largest manufacturing centre in Asia.

The "Astor House" in Hongkew, the "Central" in the British, and the "Hotel des Colonies" in the French Concession, hesides many second-class houses, give hotel accommodation equal to that of any port in the East. There me six daily newspapers, the Aonth China Daily Sews, The Shanghai Times, The Shanghai Daily Press, ind J'Echo de Chine, morning, the Shanghai. Mercury and the China Gozette, evening; also five weeklies, the North Chinu Merald, Celestial Empure, Ostasiutischr Lloyd, The Union, and Sport and Gossip. Thereare four native daily papers, the Shun-pro, the IIu-pon, the Sin-wan-peo, and the Universal (riaefte, the latter representing the heform movement. These are soll at the prices of ten and cight cash, equal to about a farthing. Some of them have a circulation of 10,000 per lay. In one matter, that of postal accommodation, Shanghai is perhaps over-supplied, there being Iritish, lirench, American, Japanese, German, Russian, and Imperial Chinese Post Oftices. The latter was organized by and is at present being conducted under the auspices of the Maritime Customs. The Municipal Local l'ost was in 1898 incorpomated with it. It undertakes the transmission of small sums of money and accepts the registration of letters. It will probably be some years. before the dificulties inevitable in a country like China are overcome, and forcigners are, justly or unjustly, doubtful as to the inviolability of their correspondence. It is understood that China will apply for admission to the Postal Union. Shanghai was made a port of Registry for British ships in 1874. All foreign hongs and even private houses have to give themselves fancy Chinese names, by which only they are known to the natives. The system is, however, found to have its conveniences. No less than 5,323 jinrickshas, 6,680 passenger and cargo wheelbarrows, 683 ponies, 577 horse carriages ply for hire in the Settlements, besides large numbers outside. Of private vehicles. there were licensed in 190:3, 4,503 rickshaws, 837 carriages, 5 motor cars, and 1,116 ponies. The water conveyances licensed numbered about 818 foreign cargo boats, 9,631 nativecargo boats, 485 ferry and tow boats, 16,220 other loats, 2,045 sampans and 87 steam launches. There are 21 native theatres within the Anglo-American Settlement.

The currency of Shanghai is the tael weight (equal to one and a third ounces. avoirdupois) of silver cast into "shoes" of fifty taels, more or less. The foreign banks issue notes of the value of one dollar and upwards for both taels and dollars. Smaller transactions are conducted in clean Mexican dollars, smaller subsidiary provincial silver coins and copper cash. There are eight foreign and numerous native banks in the Settlement. In 1896 the Imperial Chinese Bank, under Chinese and European. management, was opened by Imperial Decree.

Trade and Commerce

Shanghai is the great emporium for the trade of the Yangtsze and Northern and Corean ports, and to some extent for Japan. The total import and export trade of 1868 amounted to sixty-five million taels. It steadily increased each year until 1881, when it reached Hk. Tls. 141,921,357, but afterwards showed a great decline, the total for 1884 having been twenty per cent. less than that of 1881. There has since, however, been a rapid recovery, the total trade in foreign bottoms, import and export, for the last eight years, as given by the Customs Statistical Department, being:-

SOOCHOW

州䧰 Su－chaw

Soochow，the capital of the province of Kiangsu，lies about eighty miles west ．and a little north of Shanghai，with which it is comected by excellent inland water－ ways．The city is a rectangle，its length from north to south being three and a half miles and its width from east to west two and a half．It lies not far from the －castern shore of the great l＇aihu lake．Past its walls runs the southern section of the Grand Canal，which joins Hangchow to Chinking ；and in every direction spread creeks or canals，affording easy communication with the numerous towns in the surrounding country．It is an important manufacturing centre，with a population of over half a million．Its two chief manufactures are satins and silk embroideries of various kinds．In addition，it semls out silk goods，linen and cotton fabrics，paper， lacauer ware，and articles in iron，ivory，wood，horn，and glass．Since the opening －of the port manufactures on foreign principles lave been introduced and there are now two cotton mills and several silk filatures．Before the Taiping rebellion Soochow shared with Hangchow the reputation of being the finest city in China，but it was almost entirely destroyed by the rebels，who captured it on 25 th May， 1860 ．Its recovery by Major（afterwards General）Gordon on 27 th November，1863，was the first effective blow to the rebellion．Since that disastrous periol it has recovered itself greatly and is once more populous and flourishing，though it has not yet attained to its former pitch of prosperity．It was declared open to foreign trade on the 26 th September，1896，under the provisions of the Japanese treaty．The Foreign Settlement is under the southern wall of the city，just across the Canal，and is ia strip of land about 1d miles long and a quarter of a mile broal．Some new roads have been made in this Settlement．The western jortion has been reserved for a Japanese settlement． The government has made a good carriage road along the Canal bank extending the whole length of the Settlement，and as far as the North－west gate of the city，on which carriages and rickshas ply，and on fine days the roal is crowded with people from the city，amusing themselves，walking and driving．The Chinese and European school was opened in 1900．The net value of the trade of the port passing through the Foreign Customs in 1903 was Tls． $3,084,628$ as against $2,526,209$ ，in 190\％，Tls．2，345，070 in 1901， and Tls． $1,173,945$ in 1900 ，but this represents only a smail portion of the total trade of the port，most of which passes through the Native Customs．

CHINKIANG

江鎮 Chin－liding

The port of Chinkiang（or Chên－kiang－fu），which was declared open to foreign trade wy the Treaty of Tientsin，is situated on the Yangtsze，albout 150 miles from its mouth， and at the point where the Grand Canal enters the river．

The history of Chinkinng possesses but few features of interest．The town，as a translation of its name implies（＂liver Guard＂），was at one time a post of considerable importance from a military point of view，when all the rice－tribate from the south of China was transported to l＇eking by the interior route．The British forces captured the place in July，1842，and as the cutting off of supplies always operates with great effect， the commanding situation thus secured was not long in producing the desired result upon the Central Government，for the＇lreaty of Nanking was sigined a month afterwards． The Taiping rebels entered the town in April，1853，and continued to occupy it till 1857， when they had to evacuate it from the same cause which had made the Government yield tifteen years before．

The city lies between one of the mouths of the Grand Canal and the right bank of the Yangtsze．Most of the houses are built on level ground，but the surrounding hills lend a pleasant appearance to the locality，which is considerably enhanced by the bluff scenery of the island of＇I＇s＇io－shan．When the city was abandoned by the rebel forces， its destruction was very nearly complete，and it has even now hardly recovered its former prosperous aspect．The city is enclosed by walls and defended by rather formidable looking batteries commanding the river approaches．The foreign settlement occupies a tract of land extending from the mouth of the Canal along the bank of the river．The little settlement has a neat bund，is provided with a clul，and has small Protestant and Catholic churches．It was the scene of a formidable riot on the 5 th February，1889，when about half the foreign houses and buildings were destroyed by a native nob．On December 23rd 1904，a big subsidence of the river bank occurred carrying away some godowns at the lower end of the Bund，and a large number of Chinese were drowned．The population of Chinkiang is estimated at 140,000 ．

The foreign imports have shown a continuous advance，the net value in 1903 being Tls． $21,073,263$ ．The net value of the trade of the port for 1903 amounted to Tls． 34，439，707．

NANKING

管江 Kiäng-ning

The city owes its present name, "Southern capital," to having been many times the capital of the Empire, the last occasion being in the Ming dynasty at the commencement of the 15th century. It is also known as Kiang Ning Fu, being the chief city of the prefecture of Kiang Ning, and the seat of government for the provinces grouped under the designation of Kiang Nan. In official documents it is not considered proper to call the city Nanking, since the Government acknowledges but one capital. Besides Kiang Ning Fu, an elegant Chinese name commonly used is Kin Ling or "golden mound." From the ath or 6 th century b.c. to the present there has been a walled city at this place. Nanking was specified in the French Treaty of 1858 as one of the Yangtsze ports to be opened to trade, but was not formally opened until May, 1899.

Nanking is situated on the south bank of the Yangtsze, 4.5 miles beyond Chinkiang and 205 from Shanghai. From the river little cim be seen of it except the long line of lofty grey brick walls which encircle it. The walls have an elevation varying from 40 to 90 feet, are from 20 to 40 feet in thickness, and 22 miles in circumference. They enclose a vast area, a large portion of which is wilderness or uncultivated land. The inhabited portion lies towards the south and west, and is several miles from the banks of the river. Whatever of architectural beaty or importance belonged to Nanking perished or was reduced to a ruinous condition at or before its occupation by the Thiping rebels. The world famous Porcelain Tower, the most beautiful pagoda in China, was completely destroyed during this period of its history, and now only broken and scattered bricks remain of the structure that was once the glory of Nimking. It stood outside the walls on the south side of the city. The celebrated mathsolem of the Emperor Hung Wu, founder of the Ming dynasty (who died in 1398), with other tombs and monuments, known as the Ming Tombs, are just outside the eastern walls. There are many other interesting ruins in or near the city, including the remains of Hung Wu's Palace. Nanking was first brought into notice among Europeans in 1842, in which year the first British Treaty with China was signed here. During the Taiping rebellion no place suffered more. It was first taken by assault by the Taipings on the 19 th March, $\left.18{ }^{5}\right)^{3}$, and after sustaining a prolongerl siege was recaptured by the Imperial forces on the 19 th July, 1864, a fatal blow to the rebels.

Although Nanking has recovered to a small extent from the prostration which attended its ill-treatment during the rebellion, it has never yet attaned any commercial importance, but a brilliant future is predicted for the port if the ralway schemes are carried ont. "A new and bri!limat era" wrote the Commissioner of the Imperial Chinese Maritime Customs in his report for 1900 ""should dawn upon the port of Nanking, on account of its excellent position as a terminus for the railways which will bring down the immense mineral and other wealth of the provinces of Anhwei, Honan, and Shansi. The distance from either Honan or Shansi is about the same to Nimking as to Hankow, and the engineering dificulties of a railway down to the river opposite Nanking are no greater than those of a line to Lankow. The great arlvantage, then, which should secure to Nanking its position as the outlet for these rich provinces is the fact of its being so much nearer the sea than Hankow and accessible to the deepest dranght ocean vessels at all seasons of the year. It is therefore only natural that a line should have been projected from the mineral tields of Shansi to the village of P"u-k'ou, on the other side of the river to Nanking, as mentioned in the 1899 Trade Report. Fet Anhwei, with its terminus at $\mathrm{I}^{\prime} \mathrm{u}-\mathrm{k}$ 'ou, is also in contemplation. 'lhese two lines, if built, should revolutionise commercial conditions at Nanking, while the line from

For length and quality of service Remington Typewriters defy competition.

Shanghai to Nanking should also give an impetus to commercial life．＂The construction of the railway from Shanghai to Nanking by the British and Chinese Corporation，and its extension from P＇uk＇ou，on the north bank of the Yangtsze under the joint enterprise of the above corporation and the Peking Syndicate，may now be considered as fairly begun．The Naval College，a large pile of buildings，was opened in 1890．A dozen teachers and instructors are employed，including three foreigners．The Nanking Uni－ versity was founded in 1888 by the Central China Mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church，and is now an imposing and well－appointed school，with a roll of 158 scholars． The Arsenal and l＇owder Mills，for many years in charge of foreigners，are now entrusted to native direction．They are situated just outside the South Ciate．The Kiangnan Mint has been closed in conseguence of financial difficulties．The missionaries support three hospitals and a number of schools．A macadamized roal has been built from the steamer landing clear through the city to the Tung－I＇si Gate in the south wall，a distance of eight miles．The carriages and jinrickshas which have been introduced are much appreciated by the people，and it is proposed to construct similar roads to other parts of the city．British，American and German consulates were openerl in 1900. As the seat of the viceregal government，and by virtue of its historic associations， Nanking is of importance，and will，no doubt，now that it has been opened to foreign trade，regain a rlegree of its lost prestige．The net value of the trade of the port for 1903 was T＇ls． $7,352,525$ against Tlls． $6,790,685$, Tls． $4,620,077$ in 1901 and Tls． $3,868,595$ in 1900.

The abandomment of the present business quarter of the port for some other site has been seriously considered in consequence of the sudden collippse of portions of the river bank．In Jinuary 1903，a portion of the bank belonging th the British firm of Butterfield \＆Swire suddenly collapsed into the river，carrying with it an iron godown full of cargo and about 150 Chinese coolies lost their lives．Where the godown formerly stool there are now seven fathoms of water．A month later about 200 feet of the Customs bunding collapsed in a similar way．The probable cause of these catastrophes is that the current of the river had washed out a stratum of quicksand some 40 feet below the bank．

This port was opened to foreign trade，by the Chefoo Convention，on the 1st April， 1877．It is situated on the river Yangtsze，in the province of An hwei，and is a half－way port between Chinkiang and Kewkiang，though nearer to the former．It has the appearance of a thriving and busy town，and is admirably located for trade．This is mainly owing to the excellence of its water communication with the interior．A large canal，with a depth of five to six feet of water in the winter and ten to twelve feet in the summer，connects the port with the important city of Ning－kuoh－fu，in southern An－hwei， fifty miles distant．Another canal runs inland for over eight miles in a south－westerly direction to Taiping－hsien，an extensive tea district．This canal，which is only navigable in the summer，passes through Nan－ling and King－hsien，where the cultivation of silk is carried on，and may some day be of importance．The silk districts of Nan－ling and King－hsien are situated within fifty miles of Wuhu．Besides the canals leading to Ning－kuoh－fu and Taiping－hsien，there are two others comunnicating with Su－an and Tung－pó．

It will be seen from the above enumeration of the facilities for water carriage from Wuhu，that it is calculated to prove an emporium for commerce．The net value of the foreign imports for the year 1903 was Hk．Tls． $8,676,833$ compared with Tls． $6,190,263$ ，in 1902 and Tls． $5,851,240$ in 1901．The increased value of the trade in 1903 was due rather to higher values than to increased quantities．Coal may some day become a considerable article of export from Wuhu，both Native and Foreign capital having been directed to the great，coal fields of the province．The China Merchants＇Steam Navigation Company are interested in several coal districts and have expended large sums in the opening of their mining property；the output has thus far been small，owing to the lack of proper machinery and management．The Chin Kang Company，a wealthy native syndicate，have a government permit to open mines in several districts and have been prospecting with a view to developing their property in the near future．A number of smaller companies are operating at present with the sanction of the above corporation，to whom they pay a royalty．Two Companies representing Foreign capital－the Yangtsze Land and Investment Com－ pany，Limited，and the I Li Coal and Mining Company，Limited－have purchased a number of the most valuable mining properties in the immediate neighbourhood of Wuhu．Their mines are in some cases situated within short clistances of navigable streams．The Commissioner in his report for 1903 mentions that preliminary work in the mining concessions of the London and China syndicate has demonstrated the existence of iron，copper and coal which promise a large profit on the opening and working of mines，and the full development of the mining sites included in the concession is likely to he at once proceeded with．There is a large trade in timber in Wuhu，but that，like all other trade，is in the hands of the Chinese．The preservation of egg yolk and albumen is an industry which was started in 1897，and has been carried on with some success by two establishments since 1890．Under favourable conditions，it is thought Wuhu could supply $6,0 c 0$ piculs of preserved yolk and 800 piculs of albumen，eggs costing from $$ 6$ to $$ 8$ per 1,000 ．The net value of the trade of the port for 1903 was Tlls． $24,542,783$ compared with Tls， $19,090,828$ in 1902，Tls． 13，289，752 in 19$) 1$ and Tls．18，080，948 in 1900.

The town is fairly well built，with rather broader streets than most Chinese cities possess，and is tolerably paved．The tract of land selected for the British Settlement， though admirably suited for the purpose，with good deep water frontage，has not yet been availed of，and there are few foreign houses in the place．The population of Wuhu is estimated at 80,750 ．This city was the scene of formidable anti－missionary riots in June， 1891.

KEWKIANG  江九 Kü－biang

Kewkiang（now more gencrally written Kiukiang）is situated on the river Yangtsze near the outlet of the loyang Lake，and is a prefectural city of the province of Kiang－si． It is distant about 187 geographical miles from Hankow and 445 miles from Shanghai， Kewkiang was，hefore the Rebellion，a busy and populous city；but it was occupied by the Taiping robels in 1853，and before it was given up to the Imperial troops was almost entirely destroyed．When the foreign settlement was established there，how－ ever，the population soon returned，and has continued to increase rapidly：it is now estimated at 55,000 ．

The city is built close to the river，the walls running along the banks of it for some 500 yards．Their circumference is about tive miles，but a portion of the space enclosed is still unoccupied．The city contains no feature of interest．There are several large lakes to the north and west of it，and it is backed by a noble range of hills a few miles distant．The foreign settlement lies to the west of the city and is neatly laid out．It possesses it small bund＂lined with trees，a club，a small Protestant church，and a lioman Catholic cathedral－opened three years ago．

The idea which led to the opening of Kewkiang was，no doubt，its situation as regards communication by water with the districts where the Green Tea is produced．But the hopes entertained respecting the port havenever been wholly realised．The total quantity of Tea exported in 1903 was 240,717 piculs，against 206,943 piculs，in 1902 and 167,597 piculs in 1901．Kewkiang is the port from whence the ware motle at the far－famed por－ celain factories at Kin－te－chén is shipped．The specimens sent to the Paris Exhibition in 1900 secured a silver medal，in competition with European porcelain．The export of Chinaware last year was 51,513 piculs，which is less by 3,000 piculs than the export in 190：2，but only fwice during the last ten years has the quantity exeeerled 50,000 piculs． The net value of the trade of the port for 1903 was Tls． $22,0,35,794$ against 19，910，5．13，in 1902 and Tls．16，86：3，211 in 1901.

HANKOW

口澲 Han－kau

Hankow is situated on the river Han at the point where it enters the Yangtsze，and is in lat． 30 deg． 32 min .51 sec ．N．，and long． 114 deg． 19 min .55 sec ．E．It was formerly regardel as only a suburb of Hanyang，which it immediately adjoins，and which is a district city of the province of Hupeh，but Hankow has outstripped the older city in wealth and importance．＇These two towns lie immediately facing the city of Wuchang－fu， the capital of the province，which is built upon the south bank of the Yangtsze． Hankow is rlistant from Shanghai about 600 miles．

Attention was first drawn to Hankow as a place of trade by Huc，a French missionary．Captain Blakiston，in his work＂The Yangtsze，＂gives the following correct description of the place and its surroundings：－＂Hankow is situated just where an irregular range of semi－detached low hills crosses a particularly level country on both sides of the main river in an east and west direction．Stationed on Pagoda Hill， Hinyang，a spectator looks down on almost as much water as land even when the rivers are low．At his feet sweeps the magnificent Yangtsze，nearly a mile in width；from the west and skirting the northern edge of the range of hills already mentioned，comes the river Han，narrow and canal like，to add its quota，and serving as one of the highways of the country；and to the north－west and north is an extensive treeless flat，so little elevated above the river that the scattered hamlets which dot its surface are without exception raised on mounds，probably artificial works of a now distant age．A stream or two traverse its farther part and flow into the main river．Cirrying his eye to the right bank of the Yangtsze one sees enormous lakes and lagoons both to the north－west and south－east sides of the hills beyond the provincial city．＂

The port was opened to foreign trade in 1861．The British Settlement is located at the east end of the city，which it joins，and is，together with the lace Course，included within the city walls，which are quite modern，having been built at the time of the Taiping lebelion．It is well laid out，the roads being broad and all lined with well grown trees．The Bund affords a very fine and pleasant promenade，and has an imposing appearance from the river．There are a large loman Catholic and small Protestant and Greek churches，the latter a rather handsome structure built by the Russian residents．Several Trick Tea factories owned by Russians are located in the Settlement．A capital clul，with tennis and racquet courts，bowling alley，billiard and reading rooms，library，de．，is kept up．The river steamers go alongside hulks noored close to the shore；ocean steamers anchor in mid－stream．The current is very strong in the river．The native city of Hankow presents no distinctive features． Like all Chinese cities it is a crowded agglomeration of narrow lanes．The popula－ tion of Hankow is estimated at 800,000 ．Cotton cloth mills establisherl by the Viceroy Chang Chih－tung commenced running in 1892，and large ironworks at Hanyang have also been established．In August，1895，the Wuchang Mint was establisherl．With the exception of the territorial designation，the coinage is identical， with that of the C＇anton Mint．The Mint has had to be considerably enlarged in recent years to enable it to keep pace with the demand．

The local manufacturing industries include Govermment ironworks and arsenals， and cotton and silk weaving．The Govermment ironworks are manufacturing rails and other accessories for the Pei－Han railway．There is a quasi－ofticial coal－mining com－ pany in connection with the Ironworks，the pits being at Ping－hsiang in Kwangsi．The coal is brought down in lighters from the railhead，fifteen miles above Changsha．The Wucharg Cotton and Hemp mills together with the silk filature were leased by the Viceroy in 1902，to a company of Chinese capitalists for 100,000 taels a year，for a period of 20 years．Apart from the Hemp mill which has never been operated since it was erected，the concern is doing a flourishing business．

During the last few years foreign interests at Hankow have undergone a marked development，the chief factor in prorlucing the growth being the steady progress of work on Lu Han Railway，a trunk line comecting Hankow with leking，the contract for which was let to a Belgian syndicate in 1897．The project had been cliscussed for some years previously，and in view of the importance the port will derive from direct railway communication with the capital and from the anticipated opening up of the country in other directions，Gemany，France，Russia，and Japm have since 1895 acquired concessions，and the British concession has been extended．Thus， while there was formerly a lound of only half a mile in length，in front of the British concession，there is now a continuous line of concessions measuring in all over two miles of river frontage．Messis．Vrarl \＆Co．a few years ago imported and erecterl，on the Wuchang side of the river，machinery for crushing Antimony Ore，which is dried，packed in hags，and exported ahroad．These have recently been taken over by Messis．Carlowitz \＆Co，who are making large additions to the plant． Antimony，Lead and Zine Ores are crushed．A large lusiness is also done by a mateh factory as well as by Albumen factories．Messis．Armhold，Karberg \＆Co．，a German firm，agents for the Shell Transport Company，Limited，of London，have erected on the foreshore，several miles below the Foreign Concessions，Oil tanks for storing hulk Oil， to be timed on the premises．＇l＇wo tanks have been erected，each with a capacity of 2,50 ）tons of Oil．l）uring the low－water season small tank－steamers will bring the Oil from Shanghai．The Royal J）uteh l＇etroleum Company，Langkat，has followed suit and erecter an installation．

Tea is the stiple export．The export in 1903 was 426,156 piculs which though less than in the previous year by about fifty thousand piculs，stands considerably above the figures for provious years．About one－half the tra exported from Hankow goes to Chi－ nese ports．Opium was imported to the extent of 207 piculs as ngainst 19 ，piculs in 1902； 276 piculs in 19：31 and a like quantity in 1900．It is computed that 70 per cent． of the opium used at this port is native grown drug；the import of the foreign article is declining．The trade under the transit pass system is larger at Hankow than at any other port，its value in 1903 being Tls． $9,074,498$ ．The net value of the trade of the port in 1993 amounted to Tls． $99,12,500$ ，against Tls． $73,811,178$ ，in 102 ；Tls． $62,219,698$ in 1901，and Tls． $57,050,639$ in 1900.

YOCHOW

Yochow, with a population of 15,000 to 20,000 , is situated in latitude $29^{\circ} 23^{\prime} \mathrm{N}$., and longiturle $113^{\circ} 8^{\prime}$ E. (Greenwich), at the outlet of the Tungting Lake. Past it ebbs and flows practically the whole of the trade of Hunan, which, however, adds nothing to the prosperity of the place, as it simply passes by after having paid its inward and outward taxes. The city is the gateway of the province and nothing more.

The province of Hunan has been to foreign commerce what Tibet has been to the explorer-a Forbidden Land-and its importance has loomed up to the mind with all the charm of the unknown. Its people, too, have had a reputation for savage ferocity beyond all other Chinese. 'Ihe people are certainly independent, and are anti-foreign with all the feeling caused loy the undoubted valour of the myriads of soldiers they have supplied to the Empire during the last forty years, and by the dense ignorance created by their haughty seclusion ; but a recent traveller in Hunan, a missionary of over thirty years' experience, has returned deeply impressed with their manly and selfrespecting character, and other missionaries hold the same opinion. Railway engineers who have been working in the province rccently have enjoyed an unexpected freedom from molestation, thanks to the stringent orders issued of the Imperial Government and provincial authorities. They are intensely patriotic, but their patriotism is rather for Hunan than for the Empire at large.

The province is rich in many forms of wealth, though the inhabitants say, with a proudly humble depreciatio:, that it consists of "three parts mountain, six water, and one arable soil." One of the main staples is rice, of which nearly a million piculs are sent out of the province, to Hupeh and Kueichow, in an average year. The Hunan tea sent to Hankow amounts to alout six hundred thousand half-chests a year. The timber passing down past (hangteh is valued officially at six million taels a year, and is probahly worth more. There is also a large production of cotton. The mountain distriets contain large fields of coal, both anthracite and bituminous; iron also is known to exist. Sulphur, antimony, nickel, and other minerals are even now exported, and great possibilities of revelopment are undoubtedly to be found.

The local trade of the city of Yochow is of no great importance, and it is not likely that there will be much development even after the port has been opened to foreign residence. It is as the gateway of Hunan that the place will obtain any importance-the point at which transhipment must take place from the steamers plying to and from Hankow to the junks or other light-draught craft carrying the goods to the true commercial centres of Hunan, viz., Changsha and Siangtan on the Siang River, and Changtehon the Yuen River, both rivers emptying into the Tungting Lake. The population of these cities cannot be ascertained, but travellers report that each extends for about five miles along the river bank. Above Yochow the navigation presents no difficulties except those arising from shallow water. The so-called Tungting Lake-a lake in summer, but rather a system of wide, shallow, meandering channels separated by vast alluvial flats in winter -is utilised for navigation only along its Eastern edge on the direct line from Yochow to the mouth of the Siang. The har of this river has from three to four feet of water at the low-water stage, while that of the Yuen is said to have less than three feet; the latter is generally entered by junks through the winding channels of the delta of the Siang, the direct approach across the lake being neglected, probably because with an unfavoutable wind the junks now engaged in the trathe must have a bank from which to track, but possibly also because it may not be easy to find the chamel. British and Japanese survey parties have recently been at work in the lake. Steam launches now run through from Hankow to Changsha and Changteh with cargo and passengers ; from Itankow to Yochow under River l'asses, and from Yochow to Inland places under Inland Steam Navigation liules. No transhipment of cargo at Yochow is necessary, a single likin payment of about 2 per cent. ad valorem freeing the goods from any further taxes or delays en route. The carrying trade is still in its infancy; but full scope is now given to foreigners and Chinese alike to develop it.

The city of Yochow is perched on a bluff in a very picturesque way. Its site is, however, not ardapted for a transit trade, and it offers no shelter for small craft. The port has, therefore, been opened at Chenglin, five miles to the north and only a mile from the Yangtsze, where a small creek provides the needed shelter for cargo-boats, and a good anchorage is found for steamers．Here the Chinese Government has set－ aside a place for a cosmopolitan settlement，for which they themselves will provide roads，police，etc．；the site contains level ground for business purposes，well raised，but not too high，above floor limits，while higher ground gives good and healthy sites for foreign houses．Work on the formation of the settlement and bunding operations were commenced in 1900，and a new Custom－house and quarters have been built．Yochow is describerl by the Customs Commissioner as＂doubtless the healthiest town in the Yangtse Valley．＂In 1900，really the first open year of the port，the net value of the trade was Tls．143，827，and in 1901 the value was Tls． 400,509 ．In 1302 the value of the trade amounted to Tls． $1,230,215$ ，while in 1903 it amounted to＇Tls．3，473，241．

SHASI

布沙 Sha－si

Shasi is one of the ports opened to foreign trade under the Japanese treaty of 1895 ，the olficial declaration of the opening being dated the 1 st October， 1896 ．The port is about 85 miles below Ichang and is situated at the crossing point of two most important routes of commerce in Central China，namely，from east to west and from morth to south and vice versa．The population，according to a census taken in 1896，amounted to 73,400 ，and the floating population，of which no account is kept， may be estimated at 10,000 more．The town itself is much like other native towns of its size．It lies below the level of the river，from which it is protected by a huge embankment which runs for miles above and below the town．Formerly Shasi was an important distributing centre，hut the opening of Ichang to foreign trade diverted much of the traffic to the last named port．［t was hoped that when Shasi itself was opened it would regain its importance as a point of distribution，hut the experience now gained shows that the development is likely to be slow．On the 9th and 10 th May， 1898 ，a serious anti－foreign riot occurred at Shasi．The Customs（）ffice and the re－ sidence of the Commissioner，the Customs boats，the premises of the China Merchants＇

Company and their hulk，the office of the Foreign Board，the Japanese Consulate，the premises occupied by the Native agents of Messrs．Buttertield and Swire and Messrs． Jardine，Matheson \＆Co．，and a number of newly－erected Chinese houses were burnt by the mob，kerosene oil being used to feed the conflagration，and the Foreign residents were driven out of the port，narrowly escaping with their lives．The Custom House was re－opened on the 1st July of the same year．In August，1898，an area of 3，800 Chinese feet in length，ly 800 to 1,200 in breadth，lying along the river side beluw the town， was assigned to Japan as a Japanese concession．The British Consulate was withdrawn in January，1899， 13 ritish interests being placed under the care of the Consul at Ichang． The estimated value of the trade of the port coming under the cognizance of the Forcign Customs was in 1903 estimated at Tls． $2,417,679$ against Tls．1，508，179 in 1902， Tls．1，112，609 in 1901 and Tls．530，759 in 1900．The bulk of the carrying trade is how－ ever carried on by junks，which do not come under the control of the Foreign Customs．

ICHANG  昌宜 1．Chang

Is one of the four ports opened to foreign trade on the 1st A pril，1877，in accordance with Clause 1，Section 3，of the Chefoo Convention．

Ichang is situatec in lat． $30^{\circ} 44^{\prime} 25^{\prime \prime} \mathrm{N}$ ．，long． $111^{\circ} 18^{\prime} 3 \cdot 4^{\prime \prime} \mathrm{E}$ ．，on the left bank of the river Yangtsze，about， 393 miles ahove Hankow，and some ten miles below the entrance to the great Ichang gorge．The navigation of the river to this port is com－ paratively easy for vessels of light draught，but great care is necessary for all ves：els when in the nightbourhood of Sundiy Island，owing to the shifting sand banks．The anchorage is off the left bank，opposite the foreign residences，and is good，except in freshets，when the anchors should be sighted every two or three days．The port is the centre of a hilly country，the productions of which are rice in the valleys，cotton on the higher grounds，winter wheat，barley，and also the tungtzu trees，from which the ordi－ nary wood oil is obtained by pressing the nuts gathered from the trees．In the sheltered valleys，anongst the momitain ranges west of the city，oranges，lemons，pomelos， pears，plums，and a very sunerior quality of persimmons are grown and find a ready market in the city and at Shasi．Ichang has increased in importance since the opening of Chungking．All cargo for the latter port is landed here and tranferred to chartered junks．In the same way cargo brought down in chartered junks from Chungking and intended for the lower river and coast ports is shipped here on river steamers，which make regular voyages to and from Hankow．

Native opium is largely grown from here westwards，and is increasing in quantity and improving in quality．The export of opium in 1903 represented a value of over Tls． $10,000,000$ ．The climate of Ichang is drier than that of the lower river ports－ summers very warm，winters dry and pleasant．The native population is estimated at about 35,000 ．The foreign residents ate few in number，educaterl native agents representing the four or five foreign houses doing business here．Fine new Consular and Customs buildings and shipping oftices have recently been erected and have improved the appearance of the settlement very much．A German Post Office was opened in 1903．
＇The net value of the trade of the port，excluding transhipment cargo，was in 1903 Tl．s．3，189，566，against Tls．2，527，814，in 1902，Tls．2，638，955 in 1901 aud Tls． $1,8: 8,0 \% 0$ in 1900.

CHUNGKING

處重 Chung－king
The city of Chungking，situated in lat． 29 deg． 33 min .30 sec ．N．，long． 107 deg. 2 min ．E．，may well be described as not only the commercial capital of Szechuen，but of the whole of Western China．The foreign import trade centres here，and is then distributed by a smaller class of trading junks up the various rivers of the province， All exports－yellow silk，white wax，hides，leather，feathers，bristles，rhubarb，musk， opium，and the large assortment of Chinese medicines－are received，assorted，repacked， and shipper to Ichang，Hankow，and Shasi，consignments to the latter port being trinshipped there into smaller junks，and forwarded to the southern provinces，via the Tung Ting lake．

The city occupies the end of a high and rocky bluff forming a peninsula，at the junction of the river Kia－ling with the Yangtsze， 1,400 miles from the mouth of the latter．The principal streets of the city，in which are many fine shops，are on the side of the Yangtsze．It is surrounded by a crenelated stone wall in good repair，which is some five miles in circumference，pierced with nine gates．This wall was built in 1761，replacing an older one．The climate of Chungking is depressing，the summer being hot and damp，the winters raw and clilly，with thick fogs from November

to March．Spring and autumn can indeed hardly be said to exist．The ordinary rise of the river is about 75 feet；in 1892 it rose 901 feet，and on 6 th August 1898 to 101 feet，on 2nd August，1903，it rose to 93$\}$ feet the water not being able to force its way fast enough through the gorges．According to a Chinese report the river rose 120 feet in 1878．An extraordinary landslip occurred in September， 1896 ，some distance below Chungking，which forms a dangerous rapid and greatly interferes with traffic on the river．Operations are now in progress for the removal of the obstruction．On the left bank of the Kialing and facing Chungking，extending below the junction of the two rivers，is the walled city of Kiang－leh－ting，formerly within the district of Li Min Fu，but now incorporated in Chungking Fu．These two cities and the large villages in their immediate neighbourhood are estimated to contain a population of about 300,000 ．

The port was deelarel open to Foreign trade in March，1891，but business did not actually commence until the 18 th June，since which date a large trade has been dono both in imports and exports，carried in foreign chartered junks．The net value of the trade in 1903 was Tls． $29,222,120$ ；in 1902 Tls． $24,679,739$ ；Tls． $24,208,728$ in 1901，and Tls． $24,452,05 \mathrm{C}$ in 1900 ．Rebellious disturbances in recent years have adversely affected trade，but in 1903 the province enjoyed immunity in this respect and in consequence trade improved．

The Yangtsze is navigable for steamers from Ichang，not only to Chungking，but as far as Sui－fu，where the Min river joins the Yangtsze，hut before the Japanese war，steamers were not allowed to ascend above Ichang．By the Japanese Treaty of 1894，however，the right of steam navigation to Chungking was secured，and in the spring of 1898 the voyage was successfully accomplished by Mr．A．Little with the small steamer Leechuen，which，however，being of limited power，had to he tracked up the rapids in the same way as junks．On 6th May，1900，the two light－draught British gunboats IFoodcock and Woodlark arrived from Ichang，having left that port on 5 th April．The return journey occupied 25 steaming hours．On 12 th June，the Yangtsze Trading Company＇s steaner，the Pioneer，commenced her maiden voyage and arrived at Chungking on goth June．This steamer was afterwards purchased by the British Government．Several steamers have since been luilt for the Upper Yangtsze， and in J）ecember the German steamer S＇uihsiany was wrecked on her first voyage sixty miles above Ichang．The Commissioner of Customs in his report for 1901 wrote－＂The navigation of the Yangtsze between Ichang and Wan－hsien for merchant steamers is unammonsly considered insuperable by all those with whom I have discussed the subject，whose practical knowledge of the river entitles them to be named authorities．The difficulties ind olostructions to be overcome，the delays at the different rapids，and consequent expense to the ship，are of such a nature as to preclude all hopes of profit，although the actual feasibility of getting to Chungking by steam has already been demonstrated by the S．S．Picneer and by gun－boats．＂

HANGCHOW

州杭 Háng－chau
Hangchow，the capital of the province of Chekiang，is situated 150 miles south－ west of Shanglai，and 127 miles south of Soochow，on the Chien－tang liver at the apex of a bay which is too shallow for the navigation of steamers．The mouth of the river is，moreover，periodically visiter lyy a bore，or tidal wave，which further endangers the navigation．Haining is the best place for observing this famous bore， which is formed by the north－east trade wind leaping up the water of the lacific on the China coast and causing enormous tides．Hangchow lay is shaped like a funnel， and the mass of water rushing up，more and more concentrated as it alvances，is sud－ denly confronted by the current of the river．The momentary check causes the water to assume a wall－like formation；then，growing to a heigit of 15 ft ．at spring tides and gathering momentum with the immense pressure behind，forcing its volume into the comparatively narrow waterway，it tears past the sea－wall with a roar like thunder at a rate sometimes reaching 15 miles an hour．Before the Thiping rebellion Hangchow shared with Soochow the reputation of being one of the finest cities in the Empire， on account of its wealth and splendour，but it was almost destroyed by the rebels． It has since rapidly recovered and is once more popmous and flourishing，though it has not yet regained its former pitch of prosperity．The population is estimated at 750,000 ，including suburbs．As a manufacturing centre Hangchow takes place even before Souchow．Its three great trades are silk weaving，including several kinds of crape and gauze，the production of fans of all kinds，and the making of thin tin foil，from which are formed the imitation ingots of silver，burnt in such immense quantities by the Chinese．In addition，it sends out thread，string，colours，drugs， lacquer，and many other articles in small quantities．The communication by water with shanghai is particularly good，and might he much improved with very little trouble by a small imount of dredging at a spot in the Grand Canal twenty miles from Hangchow．Ningpo，about 120 miles distant，can also be reached by boat from Hang－ chow with several transhipments only：it is quicker to go wat Shanghai．Hangehow was declared open to foreign trade on the 26th September，1896，in accorlance with the terms of the ，Japanese treaty．Stean launches ply regularly to and from Shanghai and to and from Soochow with passenger boats in tow，making the trip in from 18 to 4 hours． One of the sights of Hingchow is the famous western like，dotted with islets crowned with shrines and memorial temples，and spamed by canseway joining island to island．The general picturesque cifect is heightened by temples，pagodas，and similar monuments judiciously placed in effective spots，while the slopes of the hills bordering the lake on the west are bright with azaleas，honey－suckle，and peach－bloom，and clusters of bambons，several kinds of conifers，the stillignia，camphor tree，and maple in rich profusion，all help to make the scene ide：lly perfect．

The site selected for the Foreign Settlement extends for half a mile along the east bank of the Grand Canal ：it covers over half a square mile and is ibout four miles from the city wall．The Japanese concession arljoins it on the North and is about the same size．The Custom House and Commissioner＇s and Assistants＇residences are built on the C＇ustoms Lot，and an imposing I＇olice Station has also been put up．A British Consulate has been built on the opposite side of the Japanese Concession，not on the settlements．On the west side，opposite the Settlement，a cotton mill，owned by Chinese and built and worked on western lines，is in operation．It was working in 1903 night and day，and turned out $3,000,000 \mathrm{lhs}$. of yarn；the company has built a large factory for pressing oil out of cotton seed．A native－owned steam silk filature has not been working for several years and is now used as the head office of the Chehkiang Lottery．Flour mills have been put up and are working intermittently．$\Lambda$ comphor company has been formed under official patronage and a monopoly for the trade has been granted to it．The commorlities chiefly dealt in are opium，tin，Japanese copper， kerosine nil，soap，sugar，prepared tobacco，varnish，paper fans，silk piece goods，raw silk，and tea．The principal article of export is tea，about 70,000 piculs per year．The tea comes from Anhui and lingsuey near Shathsing and from the neightourhood of Hangchow，where the valuable Langching tea is grown．Silk，paper fans，raw conton， medicines and tinfoil are also exported．The imports of foreign goods from Chinese ports amounted to T19． $4,354,082$ in 1903，against Tls． $3,669,297$ in 1902 ，and the exports to Tls． $8,203,026$ against 7ls． $7,125,445$ in 1902，The net value of the trade of the port for 1903 was Tlls．15，621，761 against Tls．14，309，483，in 1902，Tls．12，105，667 in 1901，and Tls． $9,433,771$ in 1900 ．Trade is improving generally．

Halfway between Hangchow and Shanghai is Kashing，where the grand canal is entered．Kashing is i Customs Station under Hangehow and was first opened in 1898 for collecting duties on foreign opium owing to fiscal arrangements being against the collection at Hangehow．It now collects duties both on imports and exports and has become quite an important factor．

Two Chinese steamboat companies and one Japanese operate between Shanghai and Hangchow，and one Chinese and one Japanese between Soochow and Hangchow， each giving a daily service．Thirteen foreign missionaries were murdered at Chiuchow on the Chientang river in 1902．Cholera in 1902 killed 10,000 people．

NINGPO  波密 Ning－po

Ningpo is situated on the river Yung，in the province of Chekiang，in lat． 29 deg． 55 min ．N．，and long． 121 deg． 22 min ．E．It was one of the five ports thrown open to foreigners in 1842．Foreigners had，however，visited Ningpo at an early date． Portuguese traded there in 1522；a number of them settled in the place in that and succeeding years，and there was every prospect of a rising and successful settlement soon being established．But the lawless acts of the Portuguese soon attracted the attention of the Government，and in 1542 the Governor of Chekiang ordered the settlement to be restroyed and the population to be exterminated．A large force of Chinese troops soon besieged the place，destroying it entirely，and out of a population of 1，200 Portuguese， 800 were massacred．No further attempt at trade with this port was made till towards the close of the 17 th century，when the East India Company established a factory at the island of Chusan，some forty miles from Ningpo．The attempt to found a trade mart there，however，proved unsatisfactory，and the factory was abandoned after a very few years＇trial．The port was deserted by foreigners for many years after that．When hostilities broke out between Great Britain and China in 1839，the fleet moved north from Canton，and on the 13th October，1841，occupied Ningpo，and an English garrison was stationed there for some time．In March，1842，an attempt was made by the Chinese to retake the city，but the British artillery repulsed them with treat slaughter．Ningpo was evacuated on May 7th，and，on the proclamation of peace in the following August，the port was thrown open to foreign trade．

Ningpo is built on a plain，which stretches away to a considerable distance on cither side．It is a walled city，the walls enclosing a space of some five miles in cir－ cumference．The walls are built of brick，and are about twenty－five feet high．They are fiftcen feet wide at the summit，and twenty－two at the base．Access is obtained to the town hy six gates．A large moat commences at the north gate and runs along the foot of the wall for about three miles on the landward side，until it stops at what is called the Bridge Gate．The main strect runs from east to west．Several of the streets are spanned by arches erected in memory of distinguished natives．Ningpo has been celebrated as possessing the fourth library of Chinese works，in point of numbers， which existed in the empire．It was owned by a family who resided near the south gatc．The site occupied by the foreign residences is on the north bank of the river． The population of Ningpo is estimated at 255,000 ．

The foreign trade at Ningpo has never been large．This is owing to a considerable extent to the proximity of Shanghai ；the nativeguilds preventing direct dealings with foreigners．A Cotton mill was established in 1896，and commenced work in June of that year．Of Tea，there were exported in 1903， 115,346 piculs，against in 94,122 piculs， 1902，and 178.004 in 1896，the falling off being due to a diversion of the Fychow tea trade，which formerly passed through this port，but is now forwarded to Shanghai via Hangchow．The net value of the trade of the port was Haikwan Tls． $22,240,093$ in 1903 ；＇Tls．19，359，264 in 1902，Tls．16，964，355 in 1901，and Tls．15，277，380 in 1900.

There were Boxer troubles in the ling－yang district，several native Christians being murdered in 1900，and all the missionaries left Wenchow，where，however，the officials were able to maintain order．The Roman Catholic Missionaries have a conspicuous－ looking Cathedral in the Western part of the city．The English Methodist Mission has a handsome church，capable of seating about a thousand people，also a hospital and dispensary．In 1903 the same Mission further erected it tine college at a cost of $$ 20,000$ ，containing sleeping accommodation for over a hundred students and teaching accommodation for more than two hundred．

There is no foreign settlement at Wenchow，and the foreign residents are a mere handful，consisting almost entirely of officials and missionaries．$\Lambda$ large quantity of native opium is produced in the vicinity of Wenchow．There is a considerable native export trade in wool，charcoal，and bamboos，brought down the river on rafts from Ch＇u－chow．The annual value of the trade is estimated to be about $\$ 3,000,000$ ．The shops and yards engaged in it are situated in the west suburb，where immense grantilies of bamt：ons and poles are kept on hand．Wenchow is also celebrated for its oranges，which rank second important in the export trade． The total export of T＇ea in $190: 3$ was 38,935 piculs against 26,411 piculs in 1902 and 13,097 piculs i ，1901．The value of the net trade of the port coming under the cognizance of the Foreign Customs for 1003 was Hk．Tls． $2,589,333$ against Hk．Tls． $1,916,355$ ，for 1902，Hk．Tls．1，460，789 for 1901，Hk．Tls．1，459，630 for 1900.

SANTU

Santu was voluntarily opened to foreign trade by the Chinese Government on the 8th of May，1809．It is a port in the Samsah Inlet，some 70 miles north of loochow． A large part of the tra shipped from Fonchow comes from the surrounding districts， and is now shipped to that port．It is possible that the future will seo direct shipments to Europe from Siantu．The harbour has been described as the hest and safest on the China Const．The new port has，practically，waterways to the Cities of Fu－an，Ning－te， and Fu－ning；and，when an effort has been made to divert the existing junk trade to steamers and to exploit the hinterland，the place should forge ahead．

The climate is healthy, the heat of Summer being always tempered by sea breezes. Capital shooting in wild-fowl, partridge and pheasant may be found from November until April, and tigers are said to be fairly numerous on the mainland. The Osaka Shosen Kaishare rumning a regular steamer to Foochow throughout the ycar, whilst during the sea season (May-October) other companies are represented. The Samsah Inlet, on account of its picturesque scenery, has been described as a miniature Inland Sea of Japan. The Basin was surveyed by H. M. S. Waterwitch in 1899, the work covering an area of 400 square miles, and an Admiralty chart has been published. A public board under the joint control of the Chinese authorities and the Commissioner of C'ustoms controls the making of roads, extension of settlement, etc., wharfage rlues of 2 per cent. being levied for this purpose. $\Lambda$ jetty over 500 feet in length was erected in 1900 . The province is believed to be rich in mineral resources and the port is considered to possess good openings for foreign capital. The net value of foreign inports in 1903 was Tls. 26,101 against Tls. 12,738 in 1902. The net value of the trade of the port for 1903 was Tls. 1,959,069 against Tls. 1,520, 704 in 1902.

FOOCHOW

州前 Fun-chan

Foochow (or Fuh-chau-fu) is the capital of the Fokien province. It is situated in lat. 26 deg. 20 min .24 sec . N., and long. 119 deg. 20 min . E. The city is built on a plain on the northern side of the river Min, and is distant about thirty-four miles from the sea, and nine miles from Pagoda Island, where foreign vessels anchor.

The attention of foreigners was early attracted to Foochow as a likely place where commercial intercourse could be profitably carried on in the shipment of Bohea 'Tea, which is grown largely in the locality. Before the port was opened, this article used to be carried overland to Canton for shipment, a journey which was both long and difficult. The East India Company, as early as 1830, made representations in favour of the opening of the port, but nothing detinite was done till the conclusion of the Treaty of Nanking in 18.2 . The early years of intercourse with the natives were anything but what was anticipated. The navigation of the river was difficult, there was no market for imports, and several attacks by the populace rendered the port an undesirable place of residence for some time. It was not until some ten years after the port had been opened that there was much clone in the export of tea from the interior, but after that the quantity shipped increased largely, and Foochow became one of the principal tea ports in Chima. Since 1880, when the tea trade of the port reached its highest figure, the export being 737,000 piculs, the jrosperity of the place has been on the wane, and in 1003 the shipment of this its staple product was 236,404 piculs only, including 44,053 piculs of brick tea. The Commissioner of Customs in his report for 1902 said: "It is evident that the tea trade in Fukien is in a very critical condition, leing in the very unenviable position of depending for its prosperity on the shortage of other teas. Unless something is done in the way of assimilating the modes of cultivating the plant and preparing the leaf in China to the methods in vogue in India and Ceylon, the tea trade must decline." Similar advice has constantly been pressed upon the native planters with no appreciable result so fir.

T'wo years ago extensive mining concessions were granted in the north and west of the province of Fukien to a Chinese and French syndicate with a view to mining for goll. A French mining engineer of high repute has marde it careful survey of all the gold fields at Shao-wu liu and reports them very valuable and all worth working. A company with a capital of one and a quarter million dollars has been formed to work the mines.

The city is built around three hills, and the circuit of the walled portion is between six and seven miles in length. The walls are about thirty feet high and twelve feet wide at the top. The streets are narrow and filthy, but the number of trees about the official quarter of the city, and the wooded hills enclosed by the walls, give a picturesque appearance to the general view. Two well-preserved pagolas stand within the city walls. Near the east gate of the city are several hot springs, which are used by the natives for the cure of skin diseases and are believed to be very efticacious. The Foochow people excel in the manufacture of miniature monuments, pacoclas, dishes, etc., from what is called "soap stone," and in the construction of artificial flowers, curious figures of birds, etc. A few miles above the city the river divides into two branches, which, after pursuing separate courses for fifteen miles, unite a little above fagoda Anchorage. The foreign settlement stands on the northern side of the island thus formed and which is called Nantai. A bridge across the river, known as the Long Bridge or Bridge of the Ten Thousand Ages, affords access to the city.

The climate of Foochow is mild and delightful for about nine months of the year, but in the summer it is rather trying, the range of the themometer then being from 74 deg. Fahr. to 98 deg. A refuge from the heat of summer can, however, be gained by a three hours' chair ride to the top of Kuliang, which mountain resort is now much frequented by the foreign residents. The thermometer indicates an average of 10 degrees cooler on the mountain than it is in Fonchow; the nights are always cool and blankets a necessity for comfort. Sharp Peak also affords a seaside and bathing resort which is much appreciated.

The scenery surrounding foochow is very beautiful. In sailing up the Min river from the sea vessels have to leave the wide stream and enter what is called the Kimpat lass, which is barely half-a-mile across, and enclosed as it is hy bohl, rocky walls, it presents a very striking appearance. The l'ass of Min-ngan is narrower, and with its towering cliff's, surmounted by fortifications and cultivated terraces, is extremely picturescue, and has been compared to some of the seenes on the lhine. The Yung Fu, a tributary of the Min, also affords some charming scenery, the hills rising very ahruptly from the river bank. The Min Monastery, the Moon Temple, and the Kushan Monastery, all occupying most romantic and beatiful sites, are fine specimens of Chinese religious editices, and are much resorted to by visitors. (Game abounds in all the ravines and mountains in the vicinity of Foochow, while tigers and panthers are common in the more remote hills, and some of these beasts have been killed within ten miles of the city.

On the 1st August. 1895, a fearful massacre of missionaries occurred at Hwasang, a village near Kucheng, 120 miles west of Foochow, nine ardults (eight of them ladies) and one child being killed and another child receiving injuries from which it died some days later.

Foreign vessels, with the exception of those of very light draught, are compelled to anchor at l'agoda lsland, owing to the shallowness of the river, which has been increasing of late years the difliculties of navigation; even at the anchorage the river is silting up in several. places. The limits of the port of Foochow extend from the City l3ridge to the Kimpai Jass. The Mamoi Arsenal, near J'agoda Anchorage, is an extensive Government establishment, where several good-sized gunboats have been built. The Arsenal was bombarded by the French on the $2: 3 \mathrm{~m}$ - 24 th August, 1884, and reduced to partial ruin, but has since leen restored. The establishment has now been reorganised, and is administered ly French experts. The construction of a new dock in connection with the Arsenal was commenced in November, 1887, on Losing Island. The dock is over 300 ft . long and has very powerful pumps and a good steel caisson. A small daily paper called the foochono beho is published. There is a (avernment mint in operation. In June, 1900, the port was visited ly the most disastrous floods known there in living memory, the river rising through heavy rains which overflowed and deluged the country, sweeping away villages and causing immense havoe and loss of life. The population of loochow is estimated at $6.50,000$.

The net value of the trade of the port coming under the cognisance of the Foreign Customs for 190$) 3$ was I'ls. $16,738,718$ against Tls. $15,292,890$ in 1902, 'Tls. $14,432,516$ in 1001, and Tls. 15,3 $31,82 \overline{5} \mathrm{~m} 1900$.

A MOY

門恶 Hici-mun

Amoy was one of the five ports open to foreign trade bofore the ratification of the Treaty of Tientsin. It is situated upon the island of Haimun, at the mouth of the Pei Chi or Dragon liver, in lat. 24 deg. 40 min . N. and long. 118 deg. E. It was the scene of trade with Western nations at a very early date. The Portuguese went there in 1544, but in consequence of their cruelty towards the natives, the Chinese authorities forcibly expelled them and burned thirtcon of their vessels. The English had commercial dealings there up) to 1730, when the Chinese Government issued an edict prohibiting trade with foreigners at all ports except Canton. They made an exception as regards Spanish ships, which were allowed to trade at Amoy. The vessels of other nationalities, however, continued to, visit the place and did so till the city was captured in 1841 . The Treaty of Nanking was signed soon afterwards, by which all foreigners were admitted to trade there.

In describing Amoy, Dr. Williams says:-"The island (upon which Amoy is built) is about forty miles in circumference, and contains scores of large villages besides the city. 'The scenery within the bay is picturesque, caused partly by the numerous islands which define it, sumounted by pagolas or temples, and partly by the high barren hills behind the city. There is an outer and an inner city, as one approaches it seaward, divided by a high ridge of rocky hills having a fortified wall running along the top. A paved road comnects the two. The entire circuit of the City and suburbs is about eightmiles, containing apopulation of 300,000 , while that of the island is estimated at 100,000 more. The harbour is one of the best on the coast; there is good holding ground in the outer harlow, and vessels can anchor in the inner, within a short distance of the beach, and be perfectly secure; the tirle rises and falls from fourteen to sixtcen feet. The western side of the harbour, here from six hundred and seventy-five to eight humdred and forty yards wide, is formed loy the island of Kulangsu. It is a picturesque little spot and maintains a rural population of 3,500 people. Eastward of Amoy is the islan? of Quemoy or Kinmun (Golden Harbour), presenting a striking contrast in the low foreground on its south shore to the high land on Amoy." The population of the city is, however, now estimatedat 96,000 .

Amoy ranks as a third class city. It is considered, even for China, to be very dirty, and its inhabitants are unasually squalid in their habits. There are several places of intorest to foreigners in the vieinity, and excursions can bo made to Chang-chow-fu, the chief city of the repartment of that name, and situated about 35 miles from Amoy. The island of Kulangsi is about a third of a mile from Amoy, and the residences of nearly all the foreigners are to be found there, although most of the foreign business is transacted on the Amoy side. There is a good Club in the settlement, adjoining which is the cricket ground. $\Lambda$ neat little Anglican Church has also been erected. $\Lambda$ Japanese Settlement was marked out in 1899. There is a granite dock at Amoy，being 300 feet by 60 feet，and is owned and managed by foreigners．Kerosine oil tanks，capable of turning out 4,000 tons a day，the property of the Royal Dutch Petroleum Company，have been erected．The foreign residents number about 280．A large fire occurred in October，1902，which destroyed over 1,000 houses and caused a loss of between three and four millions of dollars． The new houses and shopss which have been erected are of brick，two，and in some cases． three stories high．

There has always been a comparatively gool trale done at Amoy．There is frequent and fairly regular stemmer communication with Hongkong，Swatow，and Foochow．Direct communication with Maniln and the Straits Settlements is also maintained．The total export of Tea for 1903 was 7,115 piculs．There are large exports of sugar．The net value of the trade of the port coming under the cognisance of the Foreign Customs for 1903 was Tlls．16，980，, 898 against TIls．17，161，868 in 1902， TIs． $14,719,058$ in 1901 and T＇ls． $13,943,228$ for 1900 ．The island of Kulangsu was handed over by China as an International settlement on the 1st May 1903．In the opinion of the Commissioner of Customs，Kulangsu bids fair to hecome one of the most charming． little republics on the coast of China，while the tea imported amounted to 122,647 piculs，most of it coming from Formosa．

項汕 Shino-taw

Swatow, which was first thrown open to foreigners by the Treaty of Tientsin, is situated at the mouth of the river Hin, near the eastern border of the Kwangtung province, in lat. 23 deg. 20 min .43 sec . N., and long. 116 deg. 39 min .3 sec . E. It is the shipping port for the city of Cha'o-chow-fu, the seat of the local government, $3 \overline{5}$ miles inland, and Sin-Ho-l'a, forty miles farther up the river.

Sivatow is built on the northern bank of the Han, which forms part of an alluvial plain through which the branches of the river flow. The shore on the opposite side is bold and striking, the hills stretching away to the coast and forming what is known to sea-going people as the "Cape of Good Hope"; Pagoda Hill rises at the opposite side; and in a direct line from this lies the large island of Namoa.

The first foreign trading depot in this locality was inaugurated at Namoa, where the opium vessels used to anchor, but it was subsequently removed to Double Island, which is situated just inside the river and is four miles from Swatow. Foreigners here made themseives notorious in the carly years of the settlement by the kidnapping of coolies, and so strong was the feeling shown against them by the natives that no foreigners were safe far from Double Island, while they were strictly forbidden to enter Swatow, and it was not until 1861 that they could do so. In the country round Swatow the antipathy to foreigners was of much longer duration. The British Consul was held technically to reside at Cha'o-chow-fu, and subsequent to 1861 several ineffectual attempts were made to pass through its gates. In 1866 a visit was made under more farourable circumstances, but it is only within very rocent years that the population has refrained from monoyance and insult to foreigners within its walls. In 1862 tho lease of a piece of land was applied for and granterl to the British Government on the north bank of the river alout a mile from Swatow, bat so strong were the demonstrations of the populace against it that the matter fell through. Foreign residences, however, commenced to spring up here and there, and many of them are consequently somewhat scatteren, though the majority are in or near the town of Swatow. The yearly increasing traffic of the port has led to much over-crowding on the narrow strip of land on which it is built, and since February, 1877, no less than $21 \frac{1}{2}$ acres have been reclaimed from the sea, the greater part of which is now covered with shops and houses.

The climate of Swatow is reputed to be very salubrious. The town occupies, however, in unenviable position as regards typhoons, on account of being opposite the lower mouth of the Formosa Chamel, and it has on many occasions been subjected to all the violence of these terrible storms, which almost every year sweep across the lower coast of China. The population of Swatow is estimated at 3.5, 000 .

A Chinese syndicate with a capital of two million dollars has obtained the necessary :sanction for the construction of a railway from Swatow to Chio-chou-fu, and as there are no formidable engineering difficulties to encounter it is anticipated that the line will be completed in two years.

The foreign trade of Swatow has never been large, but of late years it has shown a slight increase. 4 considerable trade is chone in sugar. The China Sugar Refining Co. of Hongkong have a large sugar refincry here, but work has for some time been suspended. The import into this sugar-producing district of sugar from the Hongkong retincries showed an increase in 1902 that has been justly described as stupendous, the Hongkong prorlact being cleaner and even cheaper than the native product. The increase in the import, which is shown in the returns for 1902, as compared with the figures of the previous year, are given in the lieport of the Commissioner of Customs as follows:-"Mrown Sugar, from 215 to 5,397 piculs; white sugar from 909 to 14,532 piculs ; and refined sugar from 5,483 to 22,368 ." In 1903 foreign sugar did not do so well, the total import beign not more than 31,063 piculs. The export of Sugar in 1903 was 590,828 piculs of brown and 421,025 piculs of white. The returns show a steady derline in the last five years. A large beancake factory was also started in 1882. The net value of the trade of the port, coming under the cognisance of the Foreign Customs for 1903, was Tls. 43,792,227 against Tls. 44,590, 171 in 1902, and Tls. 44,425,745 in 1901.

CANTON

州度 Kwing－chav
Canton is situated on the Chu－kiang or Pearl liver，in latitude 23 rleg． 7 min .10 sec N．，and longiturle 113 deg .14 min .30 sec. E．，and is the capital of the province of Kwangtung．It is sometmes called the City of lams and the City of Genii，both of which names are derived from ancient legends．Canton is a foreign perversion of Kwangtung，its real name．One of the first cities in the Chinese Empire，it is also the seat of government for the province，mid is the residence of the Viceroy of＂The Two Kwang＂（Kwangtung and Kwangsi）．The Tartar General is likewise resident here， besides a number of other govermment officials of more or less distinction, including the Haikwan, or Superintendent of Customs, a post always held ly a Manchu.

Owing to its favoured situation, Canton became at an early date the Chinese port to which the tratfic of European countries was first attracted. The Portuguese found their way thither in 1516, and Arab navigators had been making regular voyages between Canton and the ports of Western Asia as early as the tenth century. The Jutch appeared on the scene about in hundred years later than the Portuguese, and these in their turn were supplanted by the English. The latter, towards the close of the seventeenth century, founded the very protitable trade which was conducted for nearly one hundred and lifty years by the Agents of the Last India Company, who established a lactory there in 1684, which was afterwards celebrated throughout the world. From 1684 the export of tea to England increased rapidly. The Company's monopoly terminated in 1834. In 1839 Great Britain was led to a declaration of war with China in consequence of the oppression to which foreigners were subjected by the native authorities, and Canton was menaced with capture in 1841. A pecuniary ransom was, however, received in lieu of the occupation of the city, and hostilities were for the time being suspended. The lesson, unfortunately, was without effect, and the arrogance of the Chinese authorities continued unabated. The British campaign in Central (China ensued, and the result was the signature of the Treaty of Nanking (August 29th, 1842), by which what was called the Co-Hong monopoly at Canton was abolished and four additional ports thrown open to foreign trade. Nevertheless, the provisions of the Treaty continued to De ignored in the City of Rams, and foreigners were still denied admittance within ius walls. The result of protracted annoyances and insults was that in October, 1856, Sir Michael Seymour, with the lieet, again opened hostilities, and some two months later a moi in retaliation pillaged and burned all the foreign residences. In December 1857, Sir Charles Straubenzee, in command of an expedition which hat been specially despatched from England, attacked the city, and it was taken on the 29 th of that month. The French also sent out an expedition, and the city was occupied by the Allied l'orces until October, 1861, a periorl of nearly four years.

The city proper extends to a breadth of about two miles, is about six miles in circumference, and is enclosed by walls about twenty fect thick and from twenty-five to forty teet high. The suburbs spread along the river for nearly dive miles. The entire circuit, including the suburbs, is nearly ten miles, the walls enclosing about six miles. What is called the New City now was formerly known as the Southern Suburl. The Western Suburb stretches for miles along the river. There are sixteen gates giving admission into the city, besides two water gates. Canton contains great attractions for foreign visitors in its numerous temples, pagodas, de., and in the many curio shops to be found there. As a specimen of Chinese architecture, the Chin Chew Club) is well. worthy of inspection, and the Examination Hall, the City of the Dead, the Execution Ground, the Gaols, the Arsenal, an ancient Water Clock, the Mahomedan Mosplue and the fine ancestral temple of the Chan family are among other show places. The French Mission have erecter a large and handsome Gothic cathedral, with two lofty towers surmounted by spires, in the city. The structure is entirely built of dressed granite. A Mint, constructed by the late Viceroy Chang Chih-tung, and furnished with a very complete plant, has been erected near the East Gate, commenced work in 1889, and now issues silver dollars and sul)sidiary coins, as well as copper cents. The buildings cover a large arei. On the opposite side of the river the Honam Temple and Monastery form the principalattraction and in the same neighbourhood the firing, sorting and sifting of tea, the preserving of ginger, and the packing of rattans, cassia, de. may be seen. The founding of bells, and the dyeing of paper and cotton fabrics are two of the chief industries of liatshan, some ten miles from Canton. There are large glass-works at Fatei, and paper-mills-these with up-to-date European machinery-near the village of Impo. At Shekwan, seven miles from Fatshan, are extensive potteries. The population of Canton is estimated at $2,500,000$, which is the last figure given in the Customs Trade lieports. A native official report in 1895 gave the population as 499,288 only ; but this was exclusive of the boat population and is believed to have been inaccurate as regards the land population.

When the fureign merchants returned to Canton to establish trade after the capture of the city by the Jinglish at the close of 1857, they found the l'actory and the buildings along the river in ruins. Recourse for accommorlation was consequently had to warehouses on the Ionam side of the river. Considerable discussion sulsequently took place as to the selection of a site for a permanent lbritish settlement, and it was eventually determined that an extensive mud flat known as Shameen should be filled in and appropriated. In 1859 an artificial island was created there, a canal constructed between the northern side of the site and the city, and solid and extensive embankments of masonry built. It took about two years to complete this undertaking, and cost no less than $$ 325,000$. Of this sum four-fifths were defrayed by the British, and one-fifth by the Frencli Government, to whom a portion of the reclaimed land was given. Up to 1889 most of the French concession remained unutilised, but in that year a number of lots were sold and are now built upon. The French also received a grant of the old site of the Viceroy's Yamen, on which the Catholic Cathedral has been erected. Shameen is pleasingly laid out, and the roads are shaded with well grown trees. Christ Church (Church of lingland) stands at the western end and there is als') a Roman Catholic one on the french Concession. There is good hotel accommodation. During an anti-foreign riot on the 10th September, 1883, sixteen houses and the Concordia Theatre on the settlement were burned ly the mol).

In conseruence of the clecline in the importince of Canton as a place of trade, caused principally by the opening of some of the northern ports, many of the merchants by whom lots were purchased there in 1861, at enormous prices, withdrew from Canton altogether. For many years the trade transacted there by foreigners has been limited, but since 1900 an appreciable increase has been noticeable. 'i'ea and Silk are the staple exports. The total export of 'Tea for the year 1903 was 26,573 piculs; for $1902,22,935$ piculs, for $1901,6,653$ piculs, and 10,713 piculs in 1900 . The extent to which this trade has fallen off will be seen on a comparison of the above figures with those for 1888, when the export was 131,141 piculs. The quantity of Raw Silk and Cocoons (exclusive of Refuse and Wild Silk) exported in 1903 was 38,149 piculs; in $1902,40,043$ piculs ; in $1901,33,553$; and in $1900,29,057$ piculs. These figures, however, which are taken from the Foreign Customs returns, do not give the total export, but only those in foreign vessels. Both Tea and silk are carried in large guantities to Hongkong by junk, for transhipment. The export of Sugar in 1903 was remarkably small, being only 57,464 piculs, against 154,512 piculs in 1902 and 159,657 piculs in 1901. Not since $189 \pm$ had the export of sugar fallen below a humdred thousand piculs. The import of sugar in 1903 amounted to 206,494 piculs. The net value of the trade of the port coming under the cognisince of the l'oreign Customs for 1903 was '1ls. 110,559,826 (the largest on record); for 1903 it was 'Tls. $79,744,707$; for 1901, 'Tls. $59,390,264$, and for 1900 Tls. $52,405,172$.

Ample means of communication exist between Canton and Hongkong, a distance of about nimety-five miles, ly foreign steamers plying daily, and a large number of native craft. There is daily stean communication with Macao and regular comnection with Wuchow and West Jiver ports and with Shanghai, Newchwang, and Kwangehauwan. The total tonnage for 1903 entered and cleared was $5,229,583$. The steam-launch trathic under the Inland Steam Navigation Regulation has proved a great suceess. though since rules were enforced in December 1901 compelling all Chinese launches to undergo inspection at the hands of an engineer appointed ly the Customs before obtaining licenses to ply, tho number of launches is not so large as previously. There is a safe and commodious anchorage within 150 yards of the river wall at Shameen. Canton was connected by telegraph (ann overland line) with Kowloon in 1883, and another overland line was completed from Canton to Lungchau-fu, on the Kwangsi ind Tonkin frontier, in June, 1884. The electric light and the telephone system have boen introduced into a portion of the city. $\Lambda$ projected railway between Canton and Kowloon received the Imperial sanction in 189 s and a preliminary survey was made, but there are no signs yet of a commencement of the work. The survey by an American syndicate of a railway route to connect Canton with Hankow was also made in 1890. Work upon the branch line from Canton to Samshui (about 30 miles) commenced in December 1902, and a length of ten miles, as far as Fatshan, was opened on November 15, 1903. The line has since been extended to Samshui. The completion of the railway to Samshui brings the West liver ports within easy distance of Canton, it being now possible to reach Wuchow in Kwangsi in less than twenty-four hours. Work on the grame trunk line has been started at both ends, and a section, about 12 miles long, from Canton northward to Ko 'Tong IUü was rapidly approaching completion, when in October 1904, on account of friction between the Chinese authorities and the constructor of the railway, work was entirely stopped. Belgian capitalists are now reported to have extensive holdings in the American-China Development Company, and, in consequence, a strong agitation has been aroused among the Chinese aiming at the cancellation of the concession and the construction of the line with Chinese capitalonly. $A$ concession for a line from Macao to Cianton was granted in November 1904 to a Sino-lortuguese syndicate after prolongel negotiations. In accordance with stipulations in the supplementiry commercial treaty between Great Britain and China, concluded in 1902, the various barriers or artificial obstructions to navigation in the Canton liver are now being removed，and it is expected that besides rendering the approaches to Canton safer and casier for shipping，the removal of the barriers will simplify work in connection with the proposal to improve the accommodation for shipping in the harbour．Extensive wharves and godowns have been erected at Pak Hin Hok on Honam Island，about two miles below Shameen，which enable ocean－going vessels of considerable draught to come up to Canton．

WHAMPOA  埴共 Whang-po

This village was formerly the seat of a large portion of the foreign trade with Canton, as foreign sailing vessels are not allowed to go farther up the learlliver. The trade in sailing vessels has, however, dwindled to very small proportions, and Whampoa is now almost deserted. Occasionally stcamers lighten their cargoes here to unable them to proceed up river to Canton. A branch of the Maritime Customs is stationed here. The large mud docks formerly belonging to the Hongkong and Whampor Dock Comjany were sold to the Chinese Govermment and have since been used for the gunboat squadron. A Government Torpedo School has been established here.

The village, known as Bamboo Town, is a dirty and unattractive place without any feature of interest, but the scenery around is picturesque and pleasing. Two lofty pagoolas on neighbouring eminences are conspicucus objects from the river. The tirst of these, called the Whampon lagoda, is buila on an island rising abruptly from the river to the height of 100 feet. It was erecterl about the year 1598, and is yery much out of repair. A goocl-sized tree grows from the brickwork at the summit. The other pagoda, called the First Bar Pagoda, is nearer to Cantom, and occupies a hill which is considered the gumrdian hill of the province. It was built between the years 1621 and 1628 as a palladium to the waterway of the provincial capital.

The importance of Whampoa is now a thing of the past．The place will always， however，possess some interest for foreigners，since the earliest recollections of foreign commercial intercourse with China are associated with it，all foreign ships being in old times compelled to anchor at Whampoa．

SAMSHUI  水 三 Sám-shwui

The 'Treaty port of Samshui, opened in 1897 under the Burmah Convention-ncarly forty years after Consul Harry Parkes' Last River Experlition-is situated near the junction of the West and North livers, in lat. 23 deg. 6 min. 30 sec. N., and long. 112 deg. 53 min . and 48 sec. E. The anchorage, known as Hokow, at which foreigners reside, was formerly an ordinary Chinese fishing village, with boat building as its leading industry, and a flooded state in summer as its characteristic peculiarity, but it is fast becoming a husy town. According to the Convention, the town of Samshui and Kongken (a dirty little village sleeping among the hills opposite Hokow) together constitute the port area. The formal opening took place on 4 th June, 1897, since which rate the net value of the trade of the poit coming under the cognizance of the Forcign Customs has grown to nearly three million talels. The junk trattic is simply enormous and the lekin station is the first in the province. The district city of Samshui itself is surrounded by an imposing wall built in the 6th year of Chia Ching of the Ming's (about A.D. 1560), the year after the place attained to the dignity of a magistrate's cure. Within the wall the houses are poor and the place is wanting in life-a condition in which it has remained throughout the present dynasty and in contrast (say the records) to its affluent state under the Mings. Without the North Gato stands an imposing temple, temp Chia Ching (circa 1800). Between the town and the river is a fine nine-storied pagoda-probably of the Ming dynasty.

The business focus of the district is Sainam, a large well-built town of no great antiquity, three miles distant, on the creek leading to Fatshan. The inhabitants are not lacking in enterpirse and there is a steam silk filature and a stean four mill. Here an interesting occupation is the tinning of rice-birds, soles and game. The rice birds are caught in reed patches at night in a bag net, into which they are swept by a rope drawn over the reeds. The season is short, lasting only for six weeks in the Autumm.

Three sets of steamer lines converge here, from C'anton, Fongkong and Macao respectively, and tomists in China can do many worse things than visit the West River, and should not fail to explore this port and its environs. Numerous steam launches carrying passengers or towing passenger boats ply between Samshui and neighbouring cities on the West and North livers and on the creek leading to Fatshnn and Canton. A railway line from Canton to Samshui via Fatshan was inaugurated on the 20 th Septeminer, 1904. Sofar there are only two daily trains each way and they are well patronized by Chinese passengers. In the Summer malignant diseases--fever, dengue, cholera, plague, ete.-may occasionally appear, as in every other place in China; hut in the Winter, the air is keen, bracing and clear. The waterways and surrounding country are picturesque and the adjacent heights (from 200 to 400 ft .) worthy of ascent. Game, especially smipe, duck and geese, is to be found in fair quantities. The temperature varies from $38^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$. to $100^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$.-dry in winter, damp in summer-but generally very supportable.

The Chinese Imperial l'ost Office with a Head office at Samshui is connected by steamers with Hongkong and by rail with Canton and with all important cities in the neighbourhood by steam launches or couriers.

There is no telegraph station at Samshui, but telegrams are forwarded via Sairam by mesiengers.

KONGMOON

阿江Kong－moon

Kongmoon was added to the list of Treaty Ports on 7 th March，1904，in accordance with the stipulations of Article X．of the Mackay Treaty．It is located some three miles upa creek on the West River，in the Kwangchow Prefecture of the Kwangtung Province in Lat． $22^{\prime} 34^{\prime} 49^{\prime \prime}$ N．and Long． $113^{\circ} 8^{\prime} 53^{\prime \prime}$ E．and is about 45 miles distant from Macao， 70 from Canton and 87 from Hongkong．The Creek on which it is built connecis the West River with the sea at Ngaimonn and is a narrow and tortuous stream，the lower reaches of which，near the main river，are lined with rafts，while further up in the vicinity of the town it is crowded with native craft of every description，thas rendering navigation for steamers difficult at all times，but especially so when the current runs fast during the summer months．The steamer anchorage is in the West River at the mouth of the Creek，opposite the Imperial Maritime Customs，but the town is included in the Port Limits．The population of Kongmoon is about 35,000 ，and it has the appearance of being a more populous centre as it extends for a considerable distance on both banks of the stream．Its proximity to Hongkong and Macao and its favourable situation as an outlet and distributing centre for the South－western districts of the Canton Delta augur well for its future prosperity and development．There is daily steam communication with Hongkong；regular connection with Macio；and consider－ able numbers of vessels trading under the Inland Wajers Regulations arrive and depart daily．There are also several large junks trading regularly to Hongkong， Macao and the island of Hainan．

The principal articles of Export consist of prepared tobacco, joss-sticks, stra wmats, palm-leaf fans, and fresil vegetables; and Imports are largely represented by dried fruits, foreign piece goods and foreign sundries, including a variety of Japanese commodities of a cneap nature. Large quantities of softwood poles are floated down in the form of rafts which are dismantled here. These mostly come from beyond Wuchow and also from the North River. The yearly value of this branch of the trade is estimated at about $$ 750,000$. There are two silk filatures in the town which afford employment to about 300 women each: the total out-turn of silk amounts to about 100 catties per day.

The unique opportunities presented for transport by the unrivalled waterways of the famous Delta have been well availed of by native enterprise and there is a large and lucrative passenger trade with Canton, Fatshan. Sancheong, Hongkong and Macao, &c. Large romy native passenger boats towed by powerful launches are engaged in this trade. About five such boats arrive from, and as many depart for, Canton daily, and although no statistics are avaifable it is estimated that about 500,000 passengers are carried annually to and from the provincinl Capital alone.

The surrounding country is picturesque, fertile ind highly cultivated, and the inhabitants are prosperous and industrious. Rice is, of course, the principal crop, but mulberry shoots ure very extensively cultivated for sale in the silk producing centres and large quantities of fresh vegetables ire exported to supply the Hongkong market.

WUCHO W－FU

府州梧 Wírchunu．fu

Wuchow－fu，openerl to foreign trade on June 4th，1897，ly the Special Article of the Burmah Convention，is situated on the Sikiang or．West liver at its junction with the Fu or Kuei（Cassia）River．By the steamer routes at present authorised it is distant about 220 miles from Hongkong and Canton．Wuchow is the limit of navigation for ocean－going steamers，but vessels drawing not more than five feet can reach kueihsien （ 150 miles beyond）during eight months in the year ；and Konghou（ 75 miles beyond） almost all the year round．The population of the city and suburbs is estimated at 50,000 ；it is steadily increasing，more especially in the riverine suburbs which comprise the business quarter．The annual inundations caused by the rise in the river－there is an arerage difference of 60 feet hetween the winter and summer levels－are a source of great inconvenience to the inhabitants and at times bring about a total cessation of business．To obviate this，the principal steamship offices，the foreign Custom House and the native Customs and Likin stations，together with numerous shops and hotels，are located on pontoons（locally known as Pais）moored alongside the river bank．The situation of Wuchow makes it the natural distributing centre for the trade between Kueichow，Eastern Ymman，Kuangsi，and Hongkong and Canton．The hopes that were entertained at its opening have not，it is true，been realised，chieffy owing to the depression of trade in these parts caused by the political disturlances in the Kuangsi province during the last few years．But once orfer is restored and the principal trade routes cleared of obstructions，Wuchow bids fair to become one of the principal trading marts in South Western China．The net value of the trade coming maler the cogni－ sance of the Foreign Customs in 1903 was Hk．Taels $8,267,12$ 4asagainst Hk．T＇iels 6，585，374， in 1902，and Tls． $7,496,243$ ，in 1901．Foreign imports（all from Hongkong）were in 1903 valued at Tls．5，534，525，and exports at＇Tls．2，627，591．The returns for the year 1904，indi－ cate a considerable advance on the above figures．The principal articles of export are timber，oils（aniseed，cassia，wood and tea）indigo，hides and live stock．＇The coal which should form one of Wuchow＇s largest exports，still lies buried in the surrounding hills． There is daily steam communication with Canton，the two steamers of the British West River S＇teamship Co．affording excellent passenger accommodation．The round trip from Canton takes four days：the bat leaving Canton on Friday momings remains orer Sunday in Wuchow．The direct trade with Hongkong is now carried on by eight cargo steamers．During the last three years a large native passenger trade has sprung up between Wuchow and up－river towns：launches leave daily during the summer months for Konghau，Kuaiping and Kueihsien，and weekly for Nanning． The only local industry worthy of mention is boat－building；when the river falls the foreshore is lined with matsheds where native craft of all descriptions，from a huge salt junk to a diminutive sampan，are constructed．Wuchow itself offers few attrac－ tions to the tourist，but the river scenery on the way up，especially between the Shui－ hing and Takhing Gorges，where the stream winds in and out among the green hills to form a succession of apparent lakes，is extremely picturesque，and has not altogether unjustly been compared to the lhine．Wuchow is connected by telegraph with Hong－ kong，Shanghai \＆e．；and the Imperial Chinese Post has recently established postal communication with all the prineipal towns in Kuangsi．

KOUANG－TCHEOU－WAN

洀州度 Kwáng－chau－wan

The lay of Kwangchau（or aceording to the French official spelling，Kouang tcheou） situated in the province of Kwang－tung，was ceded on lease with the surrounding territories by a Convention between France and Chinil，and occupied by the French on the 22 nd of April，1898．It is comprised between the 20 deg． 45 min．and the 21 deg． 17 min．north latitude，and the 107 deg． 55 min ．and 108 deg． 16 min. east longitude to a distance more or less of 230 miles of IIongkong，W．S．W．The two islands of Nao－tcheou and Tang－hai placed at the entrance of the bay make an excellent closed port into which entrance is by two narrow jassages．The port measures about 15 miles long，and for about half of its length it measures 3 or 4 miles in brealth，but it is much nurrower over about one mile and a half or two miles．The depth of anchoruge of 20 metres extends over a length of more than 10 miles and borders at the extremity of the bay the port of junks of Tchekam，an important commercial centre in constant relations with Macao，Hongkong，Hainan and Pakhoi．The neighbouring districts are much cultivated and it is believed mineral beds will be found．The new French territory is only separated from the valley of the West liver by chains of hills．Following the Convention of delimitation signed on the 16th of November，1899，between Mirshal Sou and Arlmiral Courrejolles，the territory of Kouang－tcheou－wan was placed under the authority of the Governor－General of Indo－China．It was divided into three circumscriptions．The superior adninistration of the territory is performed by a first class administrator in the civil service of Indo－China，assisted by three deputy administrators，each taking charge of one circumscription，residing at Tche－kam，Po－teou and Nao Tcheou．Each circumscription is divided into districts administered by the native authorities（Komg－hiu）．The chief place of the territory is the new town of Ma Tché，which is at the entrance of the interior port．The village of Fort Bayard，on the right bank of the river Ma Tché， contains important military installations，and on the left bank is the commercial port， with the estallishments of the civil administration and the special offices．

Kouang－tcheou－wan is a free port in which all commercial operations can be carried on without paying any duty．A regular li－monthly line of steamers join Kouang－tcheou－ wan to Haiphong and Hongkong，calling at Pakloi and Hoihow．Eight Steamers of French Chinese companies join Koung－tcheou－win with Hongkong，and another steamer makes the service between Kouang－teheou－wan，Macanand Canton．The com－ merce has already largely extendedsince the steamers entered this port in communica－ tion with the exterior ports，and it may be expected to devolop on a large scale．The Chinese population of the territory is about 189,000 ，and the superticial area is 84,244 liectares，containing $1, \cdots 33$ villages．

PAKHOI

旗托 Pak-hoi
Pakhoi is one of the ports opened to foreign trale by the Chefoo Convention in 1876. It is situated on the Gulf of Tonkin in long. E. Greenwich 109 deg. 7 min . ( $106^{\circ} 47^{\prime}$ of Paris), and lat. N. 21 deg. 29 min . The British Consul hoisted his flag on the 1st May, 1877, a French Consulate was established in December, 1887, and the foreigners were well received by the natives and continue to be respected even to the present day. Pakhoi is the port for the important city of Limchow, from whence considerable quantities of foreign piece goods, etc., were formerly distributed over the country lying between the West hiver and the seaboard, but now that the West River has been opened to steam navigation a part of the trade has been diverted to that route. The net value of the trade of Pakhoi in 1903 was Tls. 3,431,418, against Tls. 3,298,724, in 1902 and Tlls. $4,221,897$ in 1901. The Chinese town is situated on a small peninsula, and faces nearly due north. It stands at the foot of a bluff nearly forty feet high, which deprives it of the south-west breeze in summer, while in winter it is exposed to the full force of the north-east monsoon, which very often blows so hard for several day's that it naterially interferes with the loading and discharging of steamers in the harbour. The bluff, or the plain above the town, is level for miles, which makes riding both on bicycle and on horse-back a decided pleasure. The foreigners almost exclusively live on the bluff, which in former years was only dotted by a few European buildings, but has recently been ornamented with several new structures. From the bluff an extensive partly-cultivated plain develops, over which some sport is obtainable-snipe, plover, quail, and pigeons being found in large numbers, but duck and other water-fowl are not numerous. The climate is considered to be very salubrious. The estimated population of the port is 20,000 . No port in China is more easily approached and entered thin that of Pakhoi. The landmarks are conspicuous and unmistakeable. The channel is wide and deep and has no hidden danger to be avoided. The anchorage is a mile and a half from the Custom House. There is good landing at high water, but at ebb tide only for small boats. The construction of a railway by a French Company from Pakhoi to Nanning was authorised in few years ago, but the work on the project has not yet been commenced. A free School is now firmly established by the French Government to teach the French language to the Chinese and others，the number of boys attending this School now amounting to 50 ，with a tendency to increase．A French Medical Officer， who is attached to the French Consulate，also gives his attendance free to both Europeans and Chinese．A French Post Office and the German Consulate are the latest additions to the foreign institutions at Pakhoi．

HOIHOW（IN HAINAN）  州瓊 Kiung－chau  口海 Hoi－hau

Huihow is the seaport of the city of Kiung－chow（the seat of government in the island of Hainan，and distant from its portabout three and a－half miles）which was opened to foreign trade on the 1st April，1876．The position of the port，though geographically favourable，is topographically unsuitable for the development of any extensive com－ mercial transactions，vessels being compelled to anchor some two miles from the entrance of the creek or branch of the main river upon which Hoihow is situated．The tides are extremely irregular，and the anchorage is liable to the visitation of very severe typhoons，being morcover entirely unprotected from the north．The width of the Hainan Straits，between Hoihow and the mainland－the Lien－chau peninsula－is about twelve miles．As regards health，Hoilow compares favourably with other parts of Hainan，though fever and ague are said to prevail to some extent．The port is badly supplied with water．

The approaches to the shore are extremely shallow，so that loading and unloading can only be carried on at certain states of the tide．Despite this disadvantage， however，the advent of foreign steamers has given a considerable impulse to trade． The town itself contains about 30,000 souls，and is governed by it Tsan－fu，or Lieutenant－Colonel ；the population of Kiungchow being 50,000 ．The native mercan－ tile population，though respectalble，is by no means rich．No foreign settlement has as yet been formed，and with the exception of the Roman Catholic Orphanage， erected in 1895，and the American Presbyterian Mission Hospital and doctor＇s residence，the houses occupied by the foreign residents are Chinese converted into European halitations ly alterations and improvements ；H．B．M．Consulate obtained a site after fourteen years＇negotiations，and a consulate building has now been erected to the S．W．of the Hospital．Towards the end of 1897 a piece of land was granted and a French Consulate has been built on the Northern side of the river and facing Hoihow town．Since the beginning of 1899 a free school has been opened by the French Govermment for teaching the French language to the Chinese，and an officer from the Tonkin Medical Staff was detailed to this port for the purpose of giving the natives and others free attendance and medicine．l）uring 1903 a German Vice－ consulate was created．The foreign residents at present number about sixty－five．The net value of the trade of the port in 1903 was Tls． $4,530,372$ against Tls． $5,572,492$ ，in 1902 and Tls．4，429，866 in 1901，A large export trade in pigs，poultry，egss，bullocks and provisions is carried on with Hongkong．The postal service was at first conducted at the 13ritish Consulate only；when the Chinese Imperial Post was created，a branch of that service was also established at this port．In the beginning of 1900 a French Post Office was added；the public is therefore well provided for in that respect． Telegraphic communication with the other ports of the world is established through the line under Chinese administration，but the service is most wretchedly conducted， the line being more often interrupted than not．A harbour light，as well as one at Lamko（western entrance of the Hainan Straits），were opened in 1894；also one at Cape Cami in 1895．

MENGTSZ

This is a district city in south－east Yunnan，and together with Man－hao，a village on the left bank of the Red River，was opened to trade by the Additional Convention to the French Treaty of Tientsin of the 25th April，1886，signed at Peking on the 26th June，1887．The town is two days＇journey from Man－hao and about six days＇from the frontier of Tonkin at Laokay，and is beautifully situated，being built on a cultivated plateau twenty miles long by about twelve miles in breadth，encircled by picturesque mountains，and 4,580 feet above the level of the sea．It has a population of about

For length and quality of service Remington Typewriters defy competition．

12，000 persons，but was a place of much more importance，before the Mahommedan rebelliom，as the numerous well－built temples，many of them now in ruins，still testify． It is，however，a considerable commercial emporium even now，and is becoming an important centre for the distribution of foreign goods imported vid Tonkin．The French Consul hoisted his flag at Mengtsz on the 30 th $\Lambda_{\text {pril，1889，and the Customs }}$ station was opened＇in the following August．The estimated value of the trade coming under the cognisance of the Foreign Customs for 1903 was Tls．6，435，578 against Tls． $7,375,529$ for 1902 ，Tls．6，815，273 for 1901 and Tls． $5,402,330$ for 1900 ．The Chinese mer－ chants avail themselves largely of the arlvantages offered by the transit pass system． The value of goods sent into the interior under transit passes during the year 1003 amounted to Tls．2，75，000，showing a shrinking of half a million tats as compared with the returns of the previons year．The climate of Mengtsz is temperate and salubrious．Plague，which had nearly 1,000 victims yearly in the first half of the last decade，has been abjent from Mengts\％since 1899 ．During the winter good sport is obtained，snipe and wild fowl being abundant in the plain，and some pheasants and partriclges in the hilly districts．A new French Consulate was finished in 1893，new dwelling－houses for members of the Customs service in 1894，and in new Custom House in the spring of 1895．All these buildings are outside the East gate of the city．On the 22nd June，1899，a riot occurred，in the course of which the Custom．House and French Consulate were looterl．The Compagnie Lyonnaise Indo－Chinoise opened in 1899 a branch to Mengtsz．A railway from Laokay to Yunnanfu via Mengtsz is projected by a French Company，which has a capital of $4,000,000$ francs for this purpose．Surveys for the whole line have been made by officers deputed by the Tonkin Government and the work of construction is now in progress．Several houses for the accommodation of the Railway Mission have been built at Mengtsz since 1900 and as a sequel to the immigration，rents，wages and the cost of living for natives and foreigners alike have risen grealty．

越朘 Teng．－vuel
Tengyuel，situated near the western frontier of Yunnan in lat． 24 deg． 45 min ．N．，and long． 98 deg． 30 min ．E．，was opened to British trade under the Burma $A$ greement of 1897 modifying the Convention of 1894 relative to Burma and Thibet．It is a sub－prefectura］ walled town built in a rice valley，watered by the Tich Shui river，a tributary of the Tai－ping which joins the Irrawaddy a few niles above Bhamo，which place has been the principal frontier mart in Upper Burma for many years．The distance from Tengyueh to Bhamo by the ordinary trade route is about 160 miles，usually traversed in scven or eight days by pack animals，the only form of transport．In a straight line the two places are only 80 miles apart．The road at present used is for the greater part of the way a rough mule track，and in the rains（June to September）is often impassable． Arrangements have now been made to open the route via Kulika and Man－nsien，on the left bank of the Taiping，a route which will have the advantage of being open for mule traffic all the year round．The work is being done under the direction of the Burma Government Public Works Department at the expense of China．The present road from Bhamo as far as Talifu on the way to Yunnanfu，crosses a succession of mountain ranges varying from 4,000 to 10,000 foet in height，making any railway scheme distinctly chimerical，by this route at least．From Jengyueh to Yunnanfu the road is divided into 24 stages for pack animals and 12 for couriers．Owing to its elevation，over 5,000 feet，the climate of Tengyueh is temperate and healthier than any of the valleys on the way to Bhamo，many of which are rendered most unhealthy by malignant forms of malarial fever．Malaria is，however，very prevalent in the town during the rains．＂The rainfall during 1903 was 69.37 inches，about 60 of which fell during the months May－September．The Custom House was opened on the 8 th of May， 1902．The value of the trade up to the end of that yenr was Hk．Tls．661，695．The trade during 1903 showed is satisfactory increase，the total for the year being Hk ． Tls．1，715，653．The principal imports are yarn，cotton piece goods and raw cotton，while exports are chiefly represented by raw silk，orpiment and medicines．The import of cotton goods in 1003 exceeded in value one million taels．The only handicraft of importance in the town，which is now beginning to recover from the effects of the Mohammedan rebellion，is the manufacture of jade ornaments from stone imported from Burma．

SZEMAO

茅思 $S z-m i x$
Szemao，opened to the Tonkin frontier trade by the Gérard Convention of 1895， and to British trade by the Burmah Convention of 1896，is situated in the south－ western part of the Province of Yunnan in latitude 22 deg． 47 min .29 sec ．N．and longi－ tude 100 deg． 46 min ．E．It is a sub－prefectural walled town built on a gently rising ground overlooking a well－cultivated plain．The elevation is 4,700 feet above the seat fevel，and the population is estimated to be about 15,000 ．The climate is delightful，
the temperature rarely exceeding 80 degrees（Fahr．）during the summer and seldom falling below 50 degrees in the winter months．The plague，such a common visitor throughout Yunnan，is almost unknown in Szemao．The place is distant from both Yunnan－fu（the capital of the province）and Mengtsz 18 days，and from the French Laos frontier 6 days and from British territory about 12 days．It was opened in the early part of 1897，and so far has not fulfilled the expectations of its potential importance as a truding centre．The value of the trade of Szemao for 1903 was Tls．204，767，against Tls．183，6：32 in 1902，and Tls． 244,649 in 1901．No foreign traders reside at Szemao，the trade being entirely in the hands of local merchants，who have no agencies in either Tonkin or Burmah．The principal article imported is raw cotton，which comes from the British Shan States，particularly from Keng Tung and also from the Haut－Laos．A telegraph line from Tung Hai，viá Yuan Chiang and Pu Erh－fu，connects Szemao with the existing Chinese overland telegraphs， and another one from Szemao to＂Moung Hou＂（the first French post across the frontier） makes a junction with the Tonkin lines．A few years ago there was much talk about connecting Szemao by railway with Burmah，but as the trade will probably never be sufficient to justify such an expensive undertaking，the idea seems to have been given up．During the winter of 1898－99 the Burmah Yunnan frontier from Bhamo to the Kunlung Ferry，and from a point west of Meng Lem to the Mekong，was properly defined．There yet remains that portion of the boundary running through the territory of the Kawas，a savage tribe of head－hunters who are likely to give some trouble to the Frontier Commission．On the 9th February，1900，the British Consul，Mr．Litton accompanied by Major Kiddle，of the R．A．M．C．，and Mr．Sutherland，an official of the British Shan States，visited the neighbouring market of Meng－tung．There they were unexpectedly attacked by a number of Was，armed with guns and swords．Mr．Litton was knocked senseless，but was eventually saved by the bravery and presence of mind of a Chinese soldier ；his two companions were killed，and their heads borne in triumph to the village of a Wa chief．Reprisals followed，the escorts of the British and Chinese Commissioners acting in concert，and about 60 Wa villages were destroyed．Shortly after this the work of delimitation came to a standstill，as the Chinese were unable to accept the British conception of the proper frontier ：and in April the party broke up，after having decided to refer the disputed points to Peking．The future of Szemao is dependent largely on railway construction in Burma．If ever a line is laid from Mandalay due east to Kengtung，Szemao may hope to participate in the increased trade which better means of communication is bound to bring to this inland province．

HONGKONG

港書 Heung-kong

The Island of Hongkong (which gives its mame to the British Colony in South China) is situate off the coast of the Kwangtung province, near the mouth of the Canton river. It is distant about 40 miles from Nacao and 90 from Canton, and lies between 22 deg. 9 min . and 22 deg. 17 min . N. lat. and 114 deg. 5 min. and 114 deg. 18 min . E. long. The Chinese characters representing the name of the island (Heung Kong) may be read as signifying either Good Harbour or Fragrant Streams. By Conventions dated respectively 1860 and 1898 , further territory was ceded by China, consisting of upwards of 280 square miles on the opposite mainland together with the islands of Lantao, Lamma, Chungchow and others. The last concession is by way of a lease for ninety-nine years.

History ani) Government

Before the British ensign was hoisted on Possession P'oint in the City of Victoria in the year 1840 the ishand can hardly le said to have had any history, and what little attaches to it is very obscure. Scantily peopled by fishemen and agriculturists, it was never the scene of stirring events, and was little alfected by dynastic or political changes. It is alleged, however, that after the fall of the Ming dynasty in 1628 , some of the Emperor's followers found shelter in the forests of I Iongkong from the fury of the Manchus. The peninsula of British Kowloon has more clam to association with Chinese history. In the year A.b. 1287 it is recorded that the last Emperor of the Sung dynasty, when flying from Kublai Khan, the Mongol conqueror, took refuge in a cave in Kowloon, and an inscription on the rock above is said to record the fict. The inscription consists of the characters Sun!/ I'omy I'oi, meaning the Sung Dmperor's Pavilion. On the cession of the territory to (drat Britain the natives petitioned the Hongkong (hovernment that the rock might not bo blasted or otherwise injured, on account of the tralition comecting it with the Imperial personage above mentioned. In 1898, during the administration of Major-General Wilsone Black, a resolution was passed by the Legislative Council preserving the land oin which the rock stands for the benefitof the public in perpetuity.

Hongkong is a Crown Colony and was ceded to Great Britain ly the Chinese Govermment in 1841. In the tronbles which precederl the first war with China the necessity of having some place on the comst whence liritish trade might be protected and controlled, and where ofticials and merchants might be free from the insulting and humiliating requirements of the Chinese Authoritaes, became painfully evident. As early as 1834 Jord Napier, smarting under his insolent treatment hy the Viceroy at Canton, urged the Home (iovermment to send a force from lndia to support the clignity of his commission. "A little amament," he wrote, "should enter the (hina seas with the first of the south-west monsom, and on arriving should take possession of the island of Hongkong, in the eastem entrance of the Canton river, which is admirably adapted for every purpose." Twoyearslatersir (ieorge liohinson, endorsing the opinion of Lord Napier that nothang hat force could better the British position in China, advised "the occupation of one of the islands in this neighbourhool, so singularly adapted by nature in every respect for commercial purposes." In the early part of 18.39 affairs approached a crisis, and on the 2 nol Mareh, Captain Elliot, the Chief Superintendent of Trade, required that all the ships of Her Majesty's subjects at the outer anchorages of Canton should proceed forthwith to Hongkong, and, hoisting their mational colours, be prepared to resist every act of aggression on the part of the Chinese (iovermment. When the Jritish community left Cantom, Macao afforled them a temporary asylum, but theirpresence there was made the occasion by the Chinese (Government of threatening lemonstrations against that settlement. In a despatch dated fith. May, 1839, (Yaptain Flliot wrote to Lord I'almers-ton:-"The safety of Macao is, in point of fact, an oloject of secomdary moment to the Portuguese Govermment, but to that of Her Majesty it may be said to be of indispensable necessity, and most particulanly at this moment $;$ and he urged upon his Lordship "the strong necessity of concluding some immediate arrangement with the Govermment of His Most Faithful Majesty, either for the cession of the Portuguese rights at Macao, of for the effectual rlefence of the place, and its apropriation to British uses hy means of a subsidiary Convention." Happily for the permanent interests of British trade in China this suggestion came to nothing, and Great britain found a much superior lodgment at Hongkong.

The unfortunate homicide of a Chinaman during a riot at Hongkong between British and American seamen and natives precipitated events, and in view of the measures taken by the Chinese in reference to Maca, Captain Eliot felt that TIIL: Island of II ong-kong had not been long a possession of Great Britain when the need of facilities for repairing ships became of pressing urgency. Even in the early days of the Colony when the greater amount of tonnage passing through the pont consisted of sailing vessels. there required to be on hand always a staff of Blacksmiths and Carpenters ; but with the increased number of stean vessels which the opening of the Sues Canal introduced, and the continual growth of the port, the existence of large engineering shops became essential.

One of the eariest of these was that known as the Victoria loundry established in the Wanchai district ; these works catered not only for the repairing of ships and machinery, but vessels of considerable tonnage were corstructed there : the shipyard was fur years an object of interest to passers-by the Praya East, but the Government requirements necessitating the filling up of the creek whick ran throunh the property, and closing the drawbridge which then existed, the Company had to build their vessels in other parts of the Culony, and the Wanchai works became engineering shops entirely.

For nearly 20 years the works were in private hands and invariably successful, turning out handsome first-class steam launches and other craft, not only for local owners but for customers in other countries from Australia to Siberia: in every fort on the far Eastern seaboard, more especially in the Philippines, may be fuund vessels built at this famous yard. The works continued to expand, and in 889 the Company was incorporated under the style and title of Geo. Fenwick. & Co., Ld., since when progress has been such that the existing premises have become too small; every foot of space is occupied with plant and stock, and the various shops are crowded with powerful an I modern ma:hines: a staff of skilled Europeans is employed, and nothing but the best materials and workmanship is erer allowed to pass.

In order to cope with the increasing business it has now become necessary to transplant the entire works, there being no room for further extension on the Wanchai premises: an area of 5 acres has been purchased and the reclamation and construction of new workshops is being rapidly pushed forward.

The new site is situated at North Point near the Iron Pier of the Royal hutch P'etroleum Co, Ld. (which pier was erected by Geo. Fenwick © Co., I.d., a few years ago), and is conveniently reached by the Electric Trannway, rickshaw, or by launch.

The harbour frontage is 400 feet, with deep water for vessels of considerable tonnage to lie alongside whilst undergoing repairs. The Western side of the property forms a good shelter from typhoons and the refuge harbour of Causeway Bay is quite close.

The building and repaiting slips, being contiguous to the workshops. will enable the Company to turn out work quicker and cheaper than of late: pneumatic machinery and the morlern high-speed machine tools are being installed, it being the Company's intention to be up-to date in every respect.

In addition to Shipbuilding and repairing, with its allied trades of Engine-building and Boilermaking, Geo. Fenwick & Co., Ld., undertake constructional work such as roofs, bridges, iron wharves, hot-water and sanitary installations, and every kind of mechanical work: they also keep on hand a large stock of plates and other engineering materials for sale.

Many of the steam launches about the harbour of Hongkong are productions of this firm ; the steel wharf from which the visitor embarks for Canton or Macau was erected by them ; and if one desires to penetrate into the interior of China 200 miles above Canton, it may be done on a steel sternwheel steamer built by Geo. Fenwick & Co., Ld.
he ought no longer to compromise the safety of that settlement by remaining there. He accorrlingly left for Hongkong on the 24th August, 1839, Mrs. Elliot and her child having previously embarked. It was hoperl that his own departure, with the officers of his establishment, might satisfy the Chinese, but it soom became evident that they intended to expel all the English from Macao. It was accordingly determined that they should leave, and on the 25th August the exodus took place. The whole of the British community (with the exception of a few sick left behind in hospital) embarked, and under the convoy of H.M.S. Polage arrived safely at Hongkong. At that time there was, of course, no town, and the community had to reside on board ship. The next measure of the Chinese was to stop supplies of food ; the water also was reported to be poisoned, a placard being put up on shore warning Chinese against drinking it. This led to a miniature naval battle in Kowloon Bay. On the 4 th September Captain Elliot, in the cutter Louise, accompanied hy the Pearl, a small armed vessel, and the pinnace of the loluge, went to Kowloon, where there were three large men-of-war junks whose presence prevented the regular supplies of food. $\Lambda$ written remonstrance was sent off to the junk of the commanding mandarin. After six hours of delay and irritating evasion a boat was sent on shore to a distant part of the bay with money to purchase supplies, which the party succeeded in doing, and they were on the point of bringing their purchases away when some mandarin runners apporached and obliged the natives to take bark their provisions. The English returned with this intelligence, and Captain Elliot, greatly provoked, opened fire on the three junks. It was answered with spirit ly the junks and a battery on shore. After a dire of amost half-an-hour the linglish force hatuled off, from the failure of ammunition, for anticipating no serious results they had not come prepared for them. It was evident, however, Captain Elliot says in his account of the engagement, that the junks had suffered considerably, and after a delay of about three-quarters of an hour, they weighed and made sail from under the protection of the battery, with the obvious purpose of making their escape. By this time the English had made cartridges, and they drowe the junks back to their former position. Evening was now closing in, and in the morning it was decided, for reasons of policy, not to renew the attack. A complete relaxation of the interdict against the supply of provisions followed. Some little time after this event an arrangement for the resumption of the trade was amiver at, and there was a partial return to residence at Macao. The aramgement was of but a few weeks' duration, however, and ot the 3rd November a naval engagement took place off Chuenpee, when the Chinese retired in great distress. The British ships returned to Macao, arriving on the evening of the same day, and arrangements were immediately made for the ombarkation of those of ITer Majesty's subjects there who thought it safest to retire, and on the evening of the 4th November they arrived at Hongkong.

C'aptain Elliot considered the anchorage of Hongkong unsafe, as being "exposed to attack from several quarters," and ahready, on the 26th ()ctober, His Excellency had required the removal of the British merchant shipping to Tong-Koo, which he deemed safer. The shipping community did not share this opinion, and on the same day that the notice appeared an address signed by the masters of thirty-six vessels was presented to Captain Elliot requesting that they might be allowed to remain at Hongkong. On the 8th November H. M. Plenipotentiary replied, athoring to his former decision. Therenjon another remonstrance was addressed to him, signed by "twenty firms, the agents for Lloyd's, and for eleven Insurance Offices." Captain Ellint, however, still adhered to his decision, and a few days afterwards the removal to Tong-Koo took place.

In 1840 the expedition arrived, and Hongkong became the headquarters of Her Majesty's forces.

On the 20th January, 1841, J. M.'s Plenipotentiary issued a circular to British subjects annomeing the conclusion of preliminary arrangements between the Imperial Commissioner, Ke-shen, and himself. One of the terms was stated in the circular as follows :-"1.-The cession of the island and harbour of Hongkong to the British Crown. All just charges and duties to the Empire upon the commerce carried on there to be paid as if the trade were conducted at Whampoa." On the 26 th Jamary, the island was accorlingly taken formal possession of in the name of Her Miajesty Queen Victoria. The treaty was subsequently repudiated by both parties, and it was mot until the conclusion of the Nankug I'reaty in 1842, that the Chinese Government formally recognised the cession of the island. In the meantime it was hed hy the British-who had come to stay -und on the Ist May, 1841, the Public Notice and Declaration regarding the occupation of Hongkong was promulguted. On the $\bar{t}$ th May of the same year; 1841 , the first number of the Ilomykmy lidaztte was published, printed at the American Mission Press, Macao. This first number contained the notitication of the appointment (dated 30th April, of Captain William Caine, of the 26 th (Cameronian) Regiment of Infintry, as Chief Magistrate, the warrant being under the hand of Charles Elliot, Esquire, Her Majesty's Plenipotentiary, etc., etc., "charged with the Goverument of the Island of Hongkong." Captain Eilliot's idea was that the island should be held on similar terms to those on which Macao was at that time held by the Portuguese, and the Chief Magistrate, instead of being charged to administer British law, was authorised and required "to exercise authority, according to the laws, customs, and usages of Chima, as near as may be (every clescription of torture exceptel), for the preservation of the peace and the protection of life and property, over all the native inhabitiants in the said island and the harbours thereof"; and over other persons according to British police law. The first land sale took place on the 14 th June, and building thereafter proceeded rapidly, the population of the new town at the end of the year being estimated at 15,000 . ()n the Gith February, 1842, Hongkong was formally dechared a free port by sir Henry Pottinger, who had succeeded Captains Elliot as Plenipotentiary. Until the signing of the treaty, however, the ultimate fate of the new settlement remained in doubt. Sir Robert leel, when asked in the House of Commons whether it was the intention of Her Majesty's Government to properly colonise the place or give it up, declinel to answer what he deemed an unparliamentary question during a period of open war with the country by whom the cession of the island was both made and repudiated. The Treaty of Nanking, however, settled all doubts. On the 23 rdj June, 1843 , Ke-ying, the Chinese Lmperial Commissioner, arrived in Ilongkong, for the exchange of the ratifications of the traty, and the ceremony took place in the Council Room on the 26 th of that month, and immediately afterwards the Royal Charter, dated jth April, 1843, erecting the island into a separate colony, was read, and Sir Henry Pottinger took the oaths of office as Governor. At first progress was rapid. The (Queen's hoad was laid out for a length of between three and four miles, ind buildings rose rapidly. But a check was receivel owing to the unhealthy conditions which were developed loy the breaking of the malarious ssil, and in 1844, soon after the arrival of Sir John Davis, who assumed the Government in June, the advisability of abandoning the island altogether as a colony was seriously discussed. Mr. Montgomery Martin, H.M.'s Treasurer, (lrew up a long report, in which he earnestly recommended the abandonment of a phace which, he believed, would never be habitable for Buropeans, instancing the case of the 98 th legiment, which lost 257 men by death in twenty-one months, and of the Royal Artillery, which in two years lost 51 out of a strength of 135, and gave it as his opinion that it was in delusion to hope that Hongkong could ever become a commercial emporium like Singapore. Sir Jonn Davis, in a despatch dated $\Lambda_{1}$ rril, 1845, strongly combated Mr Mirtun's pessimistic conclusions and expressed a firm belief that tine alone was required for the development of the colony and for the correction of some of the evils which hindered its early progress. Sir Joln (who died in November, 1890, in his nincty-sixth year) lived to see his predictions most amply verified, and in after years must have reflected with satisfaction on the fact that his views had prevailed in Downing Street. (On the 26th May, 1846, the Hongkong Clah house, situated in Queens Road Central, at its junction with Wyndham street, was opened with a ball, and was oecupied by the Club for over fifty years, being vacated in July, 1897, when the Club, moved inte new and more comnorlious, premises on the New Praya. Sir John Davis resigned in January, 1848, and left the colony on the 30th Mareh of that year, Major-Ceneral Stavely administering the government until the arrival, in few weeks later, of Sir George (then Mr.) Bonham. During Sir George Bomham's administration, which lasted, with two intervals, until April, 1854, the colony continued to progress, but the garrison and residents still suffered severely from malaria. On the 13 th A pril, 1854, Sir. John lowring tonk the oaths as Governor, and held the reins until May, 18i9. Sir John Bowring was the last Governor who united that office with that of Minister l'lenipotentiary and Superintendent of Jritish Trade in China. During his administration various public works were carried out, and the bowrington Canal constructed. In September, 18:9, Sir Hercules liobinson arrived and assumed the administration. In 1860 the peninsula of Kowloon was phaced under British control, and soon afterwarls became a great camp, the English and French troops of the Allieal lexpeditionary Force being for some time cuntered there. The principal work effected during the Government of Sir. Hercules Rohinson was the construction of the original jraya wall, in commection with which an extensive reclamation of land from the sea was male. Prior to that time the marine lot-holders had the entire control of the sei frontage of their lots. and no public roal properly speaking existed along the water frontage. In 1862 the Clock Tower wis completed, and the llongkong Mint was erected, but owing to the loss attending the working of this institution it wats closed early in 380., a step that was subsequently much regretted, as the minting of subsidiairy coins would have soon rendered it remunerative. In March, 1865, Sir Hercules Robinson left the Culony, and Mr. Mercer, Colonial Secretary, became Acting Governot until the arrival, in March, 1866, of Sir Richard Graves MacDomell. In November, 1867, a great fire occurred, which swept the whole district between the Queen's Roml and the Paya, from the Cross Roads to the Harbour Master's Oflice. During Sir lichard Maclonnell's vigorous administation the revenue of the Colony, which had fallen much below the expenditure, was angmented by the imposition of the stamp duties and other measures. One of His Excellency's last oflicial acts was to preside at the opening, in Fehruary, 1872, of the Tung Wir (Chinese) Hospital. In April, 1872, Sir Arthur Kemedy anrived and assumed the reins of Govermment, which he held with such tact and dexterity that he acquired the title of "good Sir Arthur," and a bronze statue of him was erected in the Public Gardens. Under liis administration the Colony prospered, but the year 1874 was made memorable in Colonial amals by one of the most destructive typhoons which has ever visited it, causing emormous damage and the loss of thousamds of lives. The peaceful reign of Sir Arthur Kemnerly was followed by the stormy arministration of Sir John P'ope Hemessy, who arrived in April, 187T, and leít in March, 1882. In this interval the trade of the Colony increased greatly and Governor Hennessy accumulated a large surplus, but public works made little progress, the Breakwater at Causeway bay being the princhal work completed during his ahministration, while the Observatory was projected. On Christmas Day, 1878 , it fire broke out in the Central District of Victoria which destroyed 368 houses and entailed enormous loss on the community. On Sir John's departure Sir William (then Mr.) Marsh, the Colonial Secretary, assumed the Govermment, and affairs proceeded placilly until the arrival, in March, 188:3, of Sir George Bowen. His advent was the signal for great activity in the prosecution of public works, amongst others being the Tytam Witerworks, the Victoria College, the Lunatic Asylum, the Observatory, and the enlargement of the Govermment Civil Hospital. He was also the means of securing to the residents the privilege of nominating two of the unofficial members of the Legislative Council. Sir (eoorge Bowen left Hongkong on the 19th December, 188i", and mother interregnum followed. Mr. Marsh admmistered the government until April, 188\%, when he retired from the service, and Major-General Cameron assumed the reins until the arrival of Governor Sir William G. Des Vaux in October of the same year. The Colony steadily progressed, though naturally with some fluctuations in its prosperity, until in 1889, when, writing to the Secretary of State on its condition and prospects, Sir William Des Veux was able to remark, with obvious satisfaction:-"It may be doubted whether the evidences of material and moral achievement, presented as it were in a focus, make anywhere amore forcible appeal to eye and imagination, and whether any other spot on the earth is thus more likely to excite or much more fully justifies pride in the name of Englishman." After that date a period of deep depression, arising partly from the fluctuations of exchange, partly from ower-speculation, and partly from other causes, was experienced, and continued for dive years. Sir William Des Vaux resigned the fovernment on the 7 th May, 1891, and in the absence of the Colonial Secretary Major-Genctal l)ighy Barker was sworn in as Acting Governor. Sir William lobmson was appointed Governor and arrived in the Colony on the 10th December, 1891. The year 1894 will be memorable in the amals of the Colony as the most disastrons year of the plague. This disease, which is endemic in Junnan and some years previously had appeared at lakhoi, made its appearance that year at Cantom, and from there was introduced to Hongkong. The Colony was declared infected on the loth May, and the mortality rapidly increased until at one time it reached more than a hundred a day. Energetic measures were taken to cope with the disease, a system of house to house visitation being established by means of which all cases were promptly discovered and at once removed to hospital or, where death had already taken place, buried, and every house in the Chinese quarters was whitewashed and fumigated. Special hospitals were erected and the medical staff was augmented by arditions from the Army and Navy and the Coast Ports. The Colony was especially indelated to the Shropshire Tight Infantry for the services of about three hundred volunteers from the liegiment, who were engaged in the house to house visitation and cleansing. Captain Vesey, S.L.I.I., while engaged in this work contracted the disease and died from it, and one sergeant and four privates also suftered from it. The other corps of the Garrison as well as the Navy likewise lent valufolle assistance. Amongst other measures taken to combat the clisease, a portion of the Taipingshan clistrict, where the cases were most momerous, was cleared of its inhabitants, for whom accommodation was provided elsewhere, and the property in the condemned area was sulssequently resumed by the Crown, the intention being that it should be reconstructed in accordance with sanitary requirements. The disease reached its climax on the 7 th. June, when 107 deaths and 69 new cases were reported. After that date its virulence decreased, and on the 3rd September the proclamation declaring the Colony infected was withdrawn. The total number of deaths recorded was 2,547 . In the meantime the trade of the Colony had suffered severely. Large numbers of the natives fled, it being estimated that the population was reduced at one time by no less than 80,000, and the usually busy Queen's Road appeared almost deserted. As the disease waned the population returned, business was gradually resumed, and with the withdrawal of the quarantine imposed at the other ports vessels resumed their regular calls at Hongkong. In 1896 the disease again made its appearance, but was much less virulent than in 1804, and in 1898 there was another visitation, in comection with which two of the sisters of the Government Civil Hospital lost their lives, having contracted the disease while in the discharge of their cluties. The year 1899 saw still another visitation, the number of deaths amounting to over 1,400 and it recurred in 1900 and 1901 , the outbreak in the latter yeur giving rise to an agitation for remerdial mosures. In 190 only sporadic cases occurred to the number of 540, but in 1903 the number of cases arorin exceerled 1,400 , desper a vigorous policy of sanitation which has heen carried out since special commissioners (Mr. Oshert Chadu ick and 1)r. Simpson) were sent out from Jngland to advise on the best means of improving the health of the city of Victoria. Their report was presented to the Government in $\Lambda_{p}$ ril, 1902. The returns for 1904 were, happily, agan light, the cases numbering only olo, but of these 495 were fatal. Sir Willian Rohinson left Hongkong on the 1st February, 1898, and until the arrival of Sir Henry llake on 25 th November, 1898 , the Govermment was ardministered by Major-General Wilsone Black. In 1900, on the despateh of the China Experitionary Fore from India, Hongkong beame the base from which troops and supplies were sent forward. Prior to the arival of these troops, a foree drawn from the (darrison was despatched to the front, and the Hongkong legiment were retained for service in North China during the whole of the campaign, only returning to the colony in December, 1901. In October, 1902, the Hongkong Heginent were paraded for the last time in the colony, handed over their colours to be placed in St. John's Cathedral, and embarked a few days later for India, where they were dishanded. Sir Henry Blake departed on leave for England at the close of 1901, and rluring his absence (until September, 1902) Major-General Sir William Gascoigne administered the Government, and earned great popolarity. Owing to a very short rainfall in 1901, and a prolonged drought lasting until May, 1902, a serious water fimine occurred, reducing the inhabitants to great straits, and forcibly bringing !ome to the Administration the urgent need for increased water storage, which is now being provided. [n November, 1903, Sir Henry Blake left the Colony on appointment to the governorship of Ceylon, and the Mon. Mr. F. H. May, c.m.f. was appointed Administrator pending the arrival of Sir Matthew Nathan, K.c.m.(., who arrived on the 29 ,h July, 1904 and at once assumed charge of the administration. In his inaugural address His Excellency declared that the construction of the Kowloon to Canton Railwily would be one of the foremost oljects to le attained.

[^23]The Government is administered by it Governor, aided by an Executive Council of five oflicials and two unofficials. The Legislative Council is presided over by the Governor, and is composed of the Oificel Commanding the 'Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attomey-(deneral, the Treasurer, the Registrar-Genemal, the Jirector of Public Works, the harbour Master, the Captain Superintemdent of Police, and six unofficial members, one of whom is elected hy the Chamber of Commerce and another by the Justices of the leace. The other four, two of whom are Chinese, but british suljects, are appointed by the Govermment.

Finances
The revenue for 1903 was $\$ 5,238,857$, being an increase of $\$ 337,784$ on the revenue of the previous year, and the ordinary expenditure was $84,7 \cdot 4,838$. The revenue expected in 1904 was. $8(5,763,391$, the remarkable increaso being due mainly to a new lease of the opium monopoly which brought to the 'Treasury the sum of $\$ 1,975,000$ as compared with $\$ 750,000$ per annum under the old lease. The Colony has a small public debt, a loan of $£ 200,000$ having been contracted in 1886 . Another lom of $\dot{2} 200,000$ was contracted in 1893, and in 1894 the uncedeemed balance of the first lom was converted from 4 per cent. clebentures into $3 f$ inseribed stock, thus hringing it into uniformity with the loan raised in 1893. The public debt now stands at $£ 341,800$, repayment of which is provided for by a sinking fund, which hits $£ 226,69314 \mathrm{~s}$. $2 d$. to credit.

The amual rateable value of the city of Victoria for $1904-5$ is $$ 8,3+2,470$, while for the whole Colony the assessment is $80,890,521$, which represents an increase of 1303 per cent. on the rateable value of the previous year.

1)rscleiption

The island of Hongkong is about 11 miles long and from 2 to 5 miles broarl; its circumference is about 27 miles. It consists of a boken ridge of lofty hills, with few valleys of any extentand scarcely any ground avalable for cultivation. The only valleys worthy of the nume are those of Wong-nai Chung and Little Hongkong, both of which are remarkably beatutiful and well wooded, being in fact the only pints where any considerable arborescent vegetation was formerly to be found. The island is well watered by numerous streams, many of which are perennial. The city of Victoria and suburbs are supplied with water from the lokfolum, Tytam, and Wong-nai Chung reservoirs. The first-mamed, constructed in 1866-69, has a storage capacity of sixty-eight million gallons, while the 'Tytam reservoir, constructed in 188:3-88, and extendel in 1896, has an area of about 29 acres and a storage capacity of about three humberd and ninety million gallons. From the Tytam reservoir the water is conveyed into town by means of a tumel a mile and one-third in length and a conduit along the hillsidesome 400 fect aloove the sea level and nearly four miles in length, on which it fine roard-called the bowen Road-has been formed, which commands the most chaming views of the city and the eastern district, and is a favourite resort of pedestrians. In many parts the conduit is carried over the ravines and rocks ly ornamental stone bridges, one of which, above Wanchai, has twenty-three arches. The Wong-nai Chung reservoir, completer in 1899, has a capacity of twenty-seven million gallons. A byewash reservoir of about thirty million gallons capacity, situated immediately below the overflow of the 'Iytam reservir, was completed in 1903, and a scheme is in hand for the construction of a dam at 'I'ytam Tuk to impound 194 million gallons.

The natural proxluctions of the Colony are few and unimportant. There is little land suitable for tillage, and nothing is grown but a little rice and some vegetables near the outlying villages. There are large granite quarries, both on the islam and in Kowloon, and there is a small export of this stone. A led of fire clay exists at leep Water Bay, and bricks and earthenware pipes are manufactured from it. The forests now growing up and in course of being planted may one day become a source of revenue, when sutficiently extensive, from the periodical thimings.

The approaches to the prort are fairly well lighted. A lighthouse on Green Island lights the western entrance of the harbour, the light being a fixerl dioptric one of the fourth order, visible at a distance of fourteen miles. It is proposed to replace this light by the one now at (ape l'Aguilar which has been idle for nearly eight years. The eastern approach is indicated by a group Hashing dioptric light of the first order, visible at a distance of twenty-two miles, erected on Wiaglan Island. while a smaller light on Cape Collinson assists navigators to make the Ly-ee-mun Pass. A lighthouse on Gap Rock, about thirty miles to the south, was completed and first displayed its beacon on the 1 st April, 1892; it is connecterl with the port by at cable, and the approach of vessels is signalled from it to the Post Office.

The harbour of IFongkong is one of the finest and most beautiful in the world, having an area of ten square miles, and, with its diversified seenery and varied shipping, presents an animated aud imposing spectacle. It consists of the sheet of water hetween the island and the manland, and is enclosed on all sides by lofty hills, formerly restitute of foliage, but the island slopes are granlually becoming chothed with young forests, the result of the afforestation scheme of the Govermment The city of Victoria is magnificentiy situated, the houses, many of them large and landsome, rising, tier upon tier, from the water's edge to a height of over four hundreal feet on the face of the l'eak while many buildings are visible on the very summit of the hills. Seen from the water at night, when lamps twinkle among the trees and houses, the eity, spreading along the shore for upwards of four miles, affords a sirht mot readily to be forgotten.

Nor on landing are the favourable impressions of the stranger dissipatedor lessened. The city is fairly well built, the roads and streets are for the most part almirably made and kept, and many of the thoroughfares delightfully shaded with well grown trees. The European business quarter occupies the middle of the city, from Pottinger Street to the Naval Yard, but with the exception of this limited area almost all the lower levels, especially the Western Jistrict, are covered by a dense mass of Chinese shops and tenements. The Botanic Gardens are situated just above Govermment House, and are tastefully laid out in terraces, slopes, and walks, with parterres of flowers. $\Lambda$ handsome fountain adorns the second terrace, around which many European children and their amahs resort daily. There is a hand stand, presented by the Parsee community (but nover now occupied by a band), some avinries, orchid houses, and fermeries, and seats are provided in every spot where a view is obtainable or shate afforled by the varied folinge. A fine bronze statue of Sir Mrthur Kennedy, Governor of the Colony 1872-6, erected by public subseription, stambs above the second terrace looking down on the fountain. It was unveiled in November, 1887, by Governor Sir William Jes Voux. The chief public luihling is the City Hall, erected in 1866-9 by subseription; it contains an elegant theatre, numerous lacke romms used for halls and public meetings (in one of which known as St. (feorge's Ifall, is a fine portrat of the late Queen Victoria, presented by Sir Thomas Jackson, Bart, in igoo), an excellent and valuahle Library, and a Museum gradually increasing in importance. In front of the main entrance is a large fonntain presented in August, 1864 , by Mr. John Dent, a former merchant of the Colony. Eastward of the City Hall is a dine open space or lung in the shape of the larade Ground south of the road and the Cricket Ground on the north. The latter is furnished with a neat Pavilion, and the turf is kept in perfect orderThe Government Offices, Supreme Court House, and Post Othice are very plan and most inadequate edifices, but new Law Courts are in course of erection, and a new Post Office on a site with frontages on the Praya, Perder Street and Des Voux liond is now being built. A tine bronze statue of the Duke of Connaught, presented by Sir C. P. Chater to the Colony, occupies a site in front of the new Law Courts and was unveiled by Sir William Gascoigne on the ath July, 1902. (Goverment House occupies a commanding situation, in picturesque grounds pleasingly laid out, in the centre of the city. Victoria Gaol is a large and massive structure, with its main entrance from Arbuthnot lioad. The Police Barracks and Central Station adjoin the Gaol, as cloes the Magistmacy, a small and inconvenient structure. The Police Force numbers over 92 !, of whom 133 are Europeans, 307 Iudians, and 421 Chinese. A Refomatory was built and opened in 1900 at Canseway Bay, the cost of erection being borne by Mr. E. R. Belilios, C.M.G.; but the building has not been used for the purpose, the idea having provedinpracticable. The Junatic Asylum consists of two small huildings, one for Europeans and the other for Chinese, below the Bonham Road. Jhe Govermment Civil Hospital is a lavge and well designed building affording extensive accommodation, situated in the wastern part of the town. The Alice Memonial Hospital, situated at the corner of Hollywood Road and Aberdeen Street, is a useful and philanthropic institution, which is also the headquarters of the Hongkong College of Merlicine for Chinese; affiliater with it is the Nethersole Hospital on Bonham Rome The Royal Naval Hospital occupies a small eminence near Bowrington. The Military Hospital, a fine range of buildings, occupies a commanding position on an eminence above Bowen Road; it is now noaring completion. The Queen's College, a handsome and commodious structure, which stands on a tine site having its chief frontage on Stanuton Street, is the home of the chief Govermment educational institution in the colony. It was opened in 1889. The Belilios P'ublic School for Girls, in Gough street, is the chief centre of female education. The Tung Wa Hospital, a Chinese institution, which has been of great utility in the Colony, was considerably enlarged in 1903, and a well-designed I'lague llospital for Chinese, situated at Kemedy Town, was also built at the expense of the Chinese community. The banracks for the garrison are extensive, and constructed with great regard to the health ind comfort of the troons, and the huildings belonging to the Niaral Establishment are substantial and spacious. The chicf cantonments lie on both sides of the Queen's Road, between the Cricket (iround and Arsenal Street, Wanchai. A commodious (ientral Market situated between Queen's load Central and Des Voux Rom, was opened in 189\%. The building of the Hongkong and Shanghai Jank is large, handsome, and massive, and would do credit to any city. It occupies a fine site next to the City llall, and has frontages on Queen's lioad and Des Voux hoarl. The exterior walls and elegant liuted pillars are of dressed granite, and the offices on the Queen's liond frontage are crowned with a large dome. An extensive reclamation along the city water frontage from West Point to Murray lioal initiated by Sir C. I'. Chater, c.m.a., was completed in 1903, the total area reclamed from the sea beine approximately 65 acres. Of this area $33 \% 3$ acres constitute buiking land, the remainder being occupied by rowds and operi spaces. The total cost, including roconstruction of Govermment piers, was $\$ 3,362,325$. The various sections as they were realy were rapidly built upon. On the eastern section a handsome luilding for the Hongkong ('lut was finished in 1897, and was oecupied in July of that ycar. Near the Club stamds the Jubilee statue of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, the erection of which was postponed until this site became available; it was unveiled on the 28 th May, 1896. The statue represents Queen Victoria in in sitting posture and is of hronze under a stone canopy. The Clock Tower, near Pedder's Wharf, was erected by public subscription in 1862, and the illuminated clock was presented to the Colony by the firm of Messis. Jouglas Lapraik \& Co. It is proposed to re-erect it some day on a new design at the head of the new lier at the foot of ledder's Street, which was opened on the woth December, 1900, and named Blake Pier in honour of Governor Sir Henry JBlake.

The chief religious haildings are: St. John's ('ithedral (Anglican), which was erected in the year 1842, occupies a commanding site above the Parade Ground, and is a Gothic church of considerable size but with few pretensions to architecture. It has a square Lower, with pimates, over the western porch, and possesses a peal of bells. A new chancel was built, in 1869-70, the foundation stone of which was laid by the late Duke of Edinburgh on the 16th November, 1869. Jjolihoro, another to the memory of the Hospital Nisters who died in 1898 while in execution of their duty during an outbreak of plague, and the stained clerestory windows of the chancel, presented by Lady Jackson in 1900, are the chief adomments of the interior. The choir stalls, pulpit, and bishop's throne are fine samples of Chinese carving in teakwood. It also possesses a tine three-manual organ containing 47 stops erected in 1887. St. Peter's (Seamen's) Church, at West l'oint, close to the Sailors' Home, is a small brick Gothic erection with a spire. It also has a stained glass window, presented in 1878. St. Stephen's Church, for Chinese, was built in 1892. It is a neat building in red brick with white facings, with a tower and spire about 80 feet high, standing on the l'okfolum Romd side of the Church. Mission compound. Union Church, a rather pleasing edifice in the Italian style of architecture, with a spire, and contaming acommodation for about 500 persons, formerly stood in Staunton Street, but was rebuilt, in 1890, on the plan of the old building, on a new site above the Kennerly lioard, together with a parsonage arljoining. This church possesses an organ, and the three rose windows are filled with stianed glass. A Wesleyan chapel stands at the junction of Qucen's lioad and Kennerly Road; this was enlarged in 1904. The Roman Catholic Catherlral situnted in Glenealy ravine, near the Butanic (Gardens, is a large structure in the (iothic style and is a rather imposing huilding. It was opened for worship in 1888. $\Lambda$ campanile tower with a small spire summounting it was completed in 1904 to receive a new peal of five bells. St. Joseph's Church, in Garden liond, is a neat edifice arected in 187; on the site of one destroyed by the great typhoon of 1874; St. Anthony's Church on the Jonham Road, near West Point, is an ugly structure, erected in 1892 by the muniticence of a late P'ortuguese resident; St. Francis' Church, at Wanchai, and the Church of the Sacred Heart, at West Point, are small and unattractive structures. The Jewish Synagogue is a new building, exected in 1901, on the northern side of the Robinson Roarl. It is a plain but rommy relifice with two squat towers surmounted by spirets. The entire cost of the Church was horne by Mr. Jacoh Sassoon. There are two Mahomedan Mosques, one in Shelley Street and the other at Kowhom, the latter being for the accommodation of the men of the lndian Mahomedan regiments quartered on the peninsula. A Sikh temple was; in 1902 , erected near the Wanchai Road approach to the Happy Valley. There are also several l'potestant mission chapels. St. Joseph's College, a school for boys managed by the Christian Brothers (Roman Catholic), oceupies a large and handsome building on a prominent site below liohinson liond. The Italian Convent, in Coine hoad, educates a large number of girls, and brings up many orphans gratuitously. The Asile de la Siante Enfance, in Queen's Rom East, is in the hands of French Sisters, who receive and train up numbers of Chinese foundlings. Other demominations likewise support charitable establishments, conspicuous among which are the Diocesan Home and Orphanage, the Berlin Foundling Hospital on Bonham lomat, which has a plain little chapel att:ched (in which services according to the Lutheran creed are held), the Baxter Vernacular School, the Victoria Fiemale Home and Orphanage, de. The Protestant, Roman Catholic, Pasee, Jewish, and Mahomedan Cemeteries occupy sites in Wong-nai Chung Valley, and are kept in good orler. The Protestant Cemetery is almost a rival to the Public Cardens, being charmingly situated and admirably laid out with fountain, flower berds, and ornmental shrubs. The principal Chinese cemetery is on the slopes of Mount Davis, near the Pokfolum liond, and is dismally bare and injudicionsly crowded.

Electric tramways now run through the City of Victoria from Belcher's Bay to East Point and Happy Valley, and thence on to the village of Shaukiwan, a total length of $9+$ miles. A cable tramway has since 1888 given aceess to the leak, and is worked with great success, both financially and otherwise. The City terminns of this interesting little line is at St. John's Place. During the past year powers have been obtained for the construction of another tramway to the l'eak, starting from Battery Path and boceeding up the Gilenealy lisvine to a point close to the terminus of the existing line.

The annual races are held at the end of February, under the anspices of the Hongkong Jockey Club, on the Lace Course in Wong-nai Chung Yalley at the east end of the town, a beatiful spot enclosed by fir-clad hills. On this occasion the whole colony makes holiday, and the stands and course are crowded with one of the most motley collections of humanity to be seen in any part of the world. Gymkhanas also take place monthly during the summer. A new Crand Sitand and other buildings have recently been erected and the enclosure properly laid out. A regatta is held in December in the harbour, but it does not evoke the same enthusiasm as the races. Athletic Sports are also got up every year by the residents and the garrison, and occasionally swimming matches and boat races take place. There is an Amateur Dramatic Club, the members of which give several performances in the City Hall Theatre during the seasom. There are two large Chinese Theatres, where the Chinese drama is almost constantly on view. ## Inidustizes

Manufactures are yearly increasing in importance. There are three large sugar retineries : the China Sugar Refining Co's estahhshments at East l'oint and at lowrington, and the Taikoo Sugar liefinery at Quarry Bay. In connection with the first-mamed Company there is also a large Distillery, where a considerable quantity of rum is manufactured. There is an Ice Factory at Bowrington, a large Rope Factory in Belcher's Bay, Steam Siw Mills at Bowrington, a Glass Manufactory and a Match Manufactory at Kowloon, a Feather Cleaning and l'acking Establishnent at Kennedytown, a Soap Factory at Shaukiwan, a Match Factory at Hungham, and two or three Engineering Works. The works of the Hongkong and China Gas Company are situated at West Point and at Yammati, and those of the Hongkong Electric Company at Wanchai. The city is illuminated partly by gas and partly by the electric light, the latter having been introduced at the end of 1890 . Among the industries pursued ly the Chinese are glass blowing, opium boiling, soap making, vermilion and soy manufacture, tanning, dyeing ; beancurd, toothpowder, and cigar making, boat building, &c., de.

There is excellent Dock accommodation in the Colony. The Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Company, Limited, have threo extensive establishments, one at Hungham, Kowloon, one at T'ai Kok 'Isui, and the third at Aberdeen on the south side of Hongkong Island. The establishments of this company are fitted with all the best and latest appliances for engineering and carpenter's work, and the largest vessel in H.M's Navy has been recciver into the No. l Dock at Hungham. The docks and slips are of the following dimensions:-Hungham:-No. 1 (Admiralty) Dock-inf feet in length, 80 feet in breadth at entrance at top) and 70 feet at bottom, and 30 feet depth of water over sill at ordinary spring tides. The approaches to the Docks are perfectly safe and the immediate vicinity affords capital anchorage. The Docks are substantially built throughout with granite. Powerful lifting shears with stean purchase at Hungham and Cosmopolitan 1)ocks stand on a solid granite sea wall alongside which vessels can lie and take in or out boilers, guns and other heavy weights. The shears at Hungham are sapable of lifting 70 tons and the depth of water alongside is 24 feet at low tides. There are other establishments at which shiplbuilding and foundry work is carried on, and some good-sized steamers have been litunched in the Colony. His Majesty's Naval Yard likewise contains machine sheds and fitting shops on a large scale, and repairs can be effected to the machinery of the British men-of-war with great expedition. A large extension of the Nival Yard is in progress, including an important reclamation on the foreshore, the construction of a dock and erection of various works. At Quarry Bay extensive works are also in progress by Messrs. Butterfield diswire, for the construction of clocks, slips, and wharves, which it is expected will be in full working order before the end of 1906.

The Peak District

A well-made but rather badly graded mountain road learls up to the summit of Victoria Peak, with numerous other paths hemehing off from it at Victoria Gap along the adjoining hills. A tramway, on the wire rope system, runs to the victoria Gap, where the stationary engine is fixerl, the lower terminus being close to St. John's Catherlral. It was opened to traffic on the 30th May, 1888. ]assengers can alight at the Kennedy, Bowen, and Plantation Roads, where stations are provided for their accommodation. Within the past few years the number of bugalows and houses on and about the Peak has increased so much that they now form quite a considerable alpine village. The Military erected in simatorium on the heights near Magazine dap in 1883, and in 1897 acquired the hamdsome and commodious Alount Austin Hotel for the same purpose. The l'eak Club, which had been longed in temporary quarters for several years, has now been domiciled in a neat buidding just below Craigiebum Hotel. It was erected in 1902. The Peak Church, an unpretending structure after the similitude of a jelly mould, was opened for worship in June, 1883. Comfortable accommolation for visitors is afforded at the leak and Craigieburn Hotels. A fincly situated private Hospital has been erected at Victoria (Gap), just above the I'eak Hotel. The Victoria (Jubilec) Hospital for Women and Children, occupying a breezy site on Barker Moad, was opened by Sir Henry Blake om November 7th, 1903. Yet another hospital, to be named "The Matikia Hospital" is being erected at the southern corner of Slount Kellett, at a cost of about $$ 350,000$. The expunse of erection and maintenance are borne by the estate of the late Mr. Granville Sharp, who devoted the bulk of his fortune to provide such an institution for the benefit of persons needing it who are of European or American hirth.

The road from Victoria (iap westward leads to Victoria Peal, which is 1,823 feet nbove the sea and rises almost abouptly behind the centre of the city of Victoria. On the summit is placed the flagstaff, from which the apporoch of the mails and other vessels is signallerl. Not far from the summit of the Peak, on a most commanding site, stands Mountain Lodge, the summer residence of H.F. the Governor, which was erected in 1901. An excellent and well graded road, commencing on the Bowen lhoad, leads to Magazine Giap, near which a secomd hill village of foreign residences has been formed on the southern side of the hills at an elevation of about 900 feet above the sea. Another road leals from Victoria (hap) to lokfulum and $A$ berdeen, and at the side of this, ahout half a mile from the diap, it small granite cross has been erected. This bears the inscription :-"W. W. II. 1869" and marks the scone of a brutal murler there by a Chinese footparl, the victim being Mr. Holworthy, an officer of the Ordnamee Department, whom he felled with a bamboo ind robbed, inflicting fatal injuries.

The Rural Distriets

There are several villages on the ishand, the largest of which is Shan-ki Wan, situate in a bay in the Ly-ee-mun Pass, a great resort of Chinese fishing craft. Aberdeen, known to the Chinese as Shek-pai-wan, on the south of the island, possesses a well sheltered little harbour, also much frequented by fishing craft. Two large docks of the Hongkongand Whampoa Dock Company are situated there, and add to the importance of the place. P'okfolum, on the road to Aberdeen, about four miles from Victoria, was formerly a place of resort for Liuropean residents in the hot weather, and some elegant bungalows were erected in pleasint and picturesque situations, commanding finesea views and conl breezes, but since the development of the Peak district Pokfolum has been comparatively neglected. The sanitarium of the French Missions is located at Pokfolum, and is a fine building with an elegant chapel attached. The Dairy Farm is also situated there. Wong-mai Chung is snugly located at the head of the valley of that name and is the most accessible of all the villares from Victoria. Stanley, situnted in a small bay on the south-east of the island, was once tho site of a military station, bat the barrack buildings have been pulled down, and the village is now stationary. A cemetery on the point contains numerous graves of British officers and soldiers. One of the places most in favour with pedestrians who are not afraid of a good long tramp is the little village of l'ytam Tuk, nestling among trees at the mouth of the stream of the same name, which here enters Tytam liay, the most extensive inlet on the southern coast. Thereare good carriage romls from Victoria both to Aberdeen and Shau-ki Wan and bridle roads to Sitanley and Tytam, and as a memorial of the Jiamond Jubilee of the late Queen Victoria in now road round the body of the island was constructed. Saiwan is a small village picturesquely situated in Saiwan Bay, just outsile the dy-ee-mun l'ass, and is also much frequented by picnic parties. In the belief that it was a healthy locality, small barracks were erected there carly in the forties, hut the experiment proved most clisastrous, for in five weeks out of a detachment of 20 English soldiers five died and three more were removed in in dangerous condition. The buildings were therefore soon abandoned. Shek 0 is a small but prettily located village oceupying a small valley shut in from the water on the eastern coast, not far from Cinpe D'Aruilar.

Kowloon anjother Drpentenctes

Across the harbour is the dependency of British Kowloon. The peninsula was first granted in perpetual lease by the Kwangtmog Government to Sir Harry (then Mr.) I'arkes, but was definitely ceded to Cireat Britain in 1860 by drticle VI. of the l'eking Convention. It has an area of four square miles, and has latterly made considerable progress. Yian-mati, the principal village, has increased in population, and bids fitir soon to become an important town. There is is considerable Chinese junk trade at this place, and amongst other industries is a preserved ginger factory. The Military and lolice linle langes are at the back of and near the village, but will shortly be renoved to a site further back near Kowloon City. Gias Works were ercetex here in 1892, and the settlen portion of the peninsula is now lighted with gas. Waterworks were ostahlished in 1895, but the supply has become wholly insutticient for the rapilly growing population, and a new scheme, providing for the supply of a million gallons daily, is now being carried out. Thee regiments of Indian infantry are stationed at Tsim-tsia Tsui, where barracks and officers quarters are locaterl and a Mahommedan mosque has been erecterl. At Tsim-tsa Tsui, too, a number of European honses hare heen erected and numerons garlens laid out, and this portion of the penimsula, which faces Victoria, is gradually developing into a Juropean residential settlement. A fine bund, with a massive granite wall, has been constructed there, and an extensive range of godowns built and several fine whares mado for discharging cargo and coaling. An important rechanation scheme is now in progress to the eastward, extending to Hungham. On the 13th November, 1904 the foundation stome was laid of it Church, to be dedicated to St. Andrew. This edifice, which will he of Cothic design, with a graceful spire, is being erected at the sole cost of the Hon. Sir Panl (hater, (..M. (i. There was also laid on b)ecember 10th, 190t, the foundation stone of a new Lim:an Catholic church, the gift of Dr. S. A. Gomes. There are two hotels, one possossing large aceommodation. The Kowloon British School wiss erected in 1901 on liobinson lioad at the expense of Mr. Ho Tung. The Navy maintains a small naval yard, subsidiary to the principal establishment on the Honglong side. A well equippal Observatory is situated on Hount Elqin; and a large and handsome Police Station for the Witer l'olico occupies an eminence just above the privar. In front of this Station is a Thme Ball, which is dropped daily. A steam ferry plies regulany between Tsim-tsa Tsui modVictoria; ferry boats also run between Victoria and Yau-mar 'Ti and Hung-ham, where the principal docks of the Hongkong and Whampo Dock (O) are situate. The Cosmopolitan Dock and works, also belonging to the same Company, are situated at Fuk Tsun Heung, formerly known as Sam Shui Po. At Hok-ün are also situated the extensive works of the Green Island Cement Co., Ld., the patent slip and shipbuilding yard of Messrs Bailey and Murphy, and a large Match Factory.

In 1898 an agreement was entered into whereby China ceded to Great Britain for ninety-nine yars the territary behind Kowloon Peninsula up to a line drawn from Mirs Bay to Deep lay and the adjacent islands, including Lantan, the extent of the New Territory being about 376 square miles, namely, 286 square miles on the main land and 90 square miles on the islands. The ceremony of formally taking over the territory was fixed for the 17 th April, 1899, when the British thag was to lave been hoisted at T'aipohu, amp the day was declaredagenemal holiday. Attacks, however, having been made on the parties engaged on the preliminary arrangements, the mat-sheds erected for the accommodation of the police having been lournt, and other evidences of an organiserl opposition having heen given, it was deemed advisable toassmme full jurisdiction on the $16 \mathrm{t}_{1}$ April, on which date the Hag was hoisted by the Hon. J. H. Stewart Lockhart, C.M.G., Colonial Secretary. Military operations were found necessary to overcome the opposition, and on the 18 th April the rebels were completely ronted in an action fought at Sheung 'Tsun, their force numbering some 2,600 men. On the British side there were no fatalities and only one or two slight casualties; on the Chinese side a number were killed and wounded, bat the exact figures were not ascertanerl, those who fell were carried away by their friends. In the Convention it was provided that Kowloon City was to remain Chinese, but it having been established beyond a doubt that the hands of the Chinese officials were by no means clean in respeet of the disturbances which occurred on the taking over of the lased area, the Home Govermment determined to mark their sense of the duplicity of the Chinese in a suitable manner and orders were acomdingly issued to the military anthorities to seize Kowloon walled city and Shamehun. This was done on the 16 th May, 1899, 10 opposition boing encountered at cither place. The Ifongkong Volunteer Corps took part in tho expedition to Kowloon City. Shamchun, the other place seized, is an important town on the river of the sime name just beyond the boundary originally asreed upon. Unfortunately it has not been retained, having been restored to the Chincse authorities in November, 1899, and has become a resort for desperate characters. The New Territory unler British juriseliction is being developerl by the construction of roads; police stations have bein estahlished, and a system of administration by means of village communities organised. The headquarters of the administration are at Taipohu. The proposed railway from Kowloon to Canton, which will prass through the New Territory to Shamchun, will no doubt do much to develop it, and it is hoped that the construction of the line will soon be commenced. The principal islands and their populations are as follows :-Lanta, 7,940 ; Cheung Chau, 2,734 ; Lamma, 1,134 . The islands to the west of Hongkong contained 1,925 ; those to the east, $1,16 \%$. The total population of the New Territory in 1901 was 102,254 .

Of the ishands and islets in the waters of the Colony (exclusive of the above acquisitions) the most important is Stonecutter's Island, formerly known as Wong Chune-chow, opposite to and about three-quarters of a mile from the north-western extremity of the Kowloon peninsula. The island is an irregular ridge about a mile in length, am a little over a quarter of a mile broad. The Gunpowder Depot is on the eastern end, near the wharf; the principal eminences are occupied by batteries more or less formidable, and no one is allowed to land without a permit. The Quarantine Station is also located here. After the great typhoon of September, 1874, two or three thousand bodies of the victims found afloat were interred on Stonecutter's Island. Kellet's Island is a small rock near East Point, on which a fort fommerly stook, but which has been replaced by a small magazine. Green Island, at the western entranco of the harbour, has been planter with trees and now justifies its name all the year rouncl. A lighthousehas beenplacedon its south-western extremity. One'lree Island is a tiny rock near the entrance to Aherdeen. A Jynamite Depot has been erected on it. Aphehau, a considerable island opposite $A$ berdeen, of which harbour it forms part, has a populous fishing village un its northern shore facing Aherdeen. Lantan amd Lammar Islands were brought under British jurisdiction by the Kowloon Convention of 1898. The former has a considembly larger area than F̈ongkong, but both this island and Lamma are sparsely 1 opulated by agriculturists and fishermen.

Porulation, (Garrison, and Jefenctes

The total pepulation of the Colony, aceording to the census taken in January, 1901 numbered 283,975 , compared with 221,441 in Miny, 1891, and 160,402 in 1881. The resident civil population was composed as follows:-Europans ind $\Lambda$ mericans uther than Portuguese 3,860 , Portuguese 1,956, Indians 1,453; Eurasians 267, other races 903 , Chinese 274,543 . The mercantile marine numbered 2,181 , of whom 1,002 were British and Foreign and 1,180 Chinese. The Chinese floating population numbered 40,100. The amy numbered 7,640 , and the Navy 5,597 . The population of Victoria was 181,918, and that of the New Territory 102,254 . The estimated population of the Colony exclusive of the New Territory on June 30 th, 1903, was 326,081 .

The Garrison, according to the Estimates for 190t-1905, consists of Artillery : it0 of all ranks. Engineers: One company, consisting of 13 oflicers ind 194 men. Infantry: One battalion, 1,012 of all ranks. Army Service Corps: 5 officers and $2 t$ men. Joyal Army Medical Conps: 15 ofticers and 55 men. Colonial and Native Indian Corps: 4.4 companies of Infantry, four of Local Artillery, and one of Local Engineers ; all ranks, 5,689. Army Ordnance Department, 7 ; Army Ordnance Corps, 31 ; Army Pay Corps, 8. Total of all ranks, 7.793. There is also a Volunteer Corps consisting of one troop of Mounted Infantry, two companies of Gitrison Artillery, and one Company of Engineers. H. E. Sir Matthew Nathan has succeeded in forming a Volunteer Lieserve Association, composed of British resilents over the age of 35.

The approaches to the harhour are strongly fortified, the batteries consisting of well constructed earthworks. The western entrance is protected by three batteries on Stonecutters' Island and two forts on Belcher and Fly Points, from which a tremendous converging fire could be maintained, completely commanding the Sulphur Channel. Another small battery, on the hill above and west of Richmond Terrace, has a wide range of tire. The Ly-ee-min lass is defended by two forts on the Hongkong side and another on Jlevil's l'eak on the mainland, and if vessels survived that fire they would then have to face the hatteries at North Point and Ilunghom which completely command the eastern entrance. Another battery on the bluff at Tsim-tsa T'sui, Kowloom, commands the whole of the centre of the harbour. The batteries are armed with the latest breech-londing ordnance.

In addition to the fortifications the Colony possesses a small squadron for harbour defence. This consists of the obsolete turret ironclad Wivern, 9,750 tons, now dismantled and being used as a distilling ship, and six torpedo boats. The crews of these vessels are borme in the receiving ship Tremer, which is also the headquarters of the Commodore and his staff. The Naval Yard is an extensive range of workshops and offices east of the Artillery Barracks, and the Naval Authorities have another large establishment on the Kowloon side near to Yau-ma-Ti.

Climate

As intimater in earlier paragraphs, Hongkong formerly enjoyed a most unenviable notoricty for unhealthiness, and in years past the troops garisoned here suffered grievously from malarinl fevers. A great deal of the sickness in the ealy days of the Colony was believed to have been caused by excavating and otherwise disturbing the disintegrated granite of which the soil of the island mainly consists, and which appears to throw off malarious exhalations when upturned. It the present time, however, the Colony is one of the healthiest spots in the world in the same latitude. The influence of the young pine forests created by the Dfforestation Department and the training of nullahs on the slopes have no doubt been beneficial in checking malaria, and the attention latterly bestowed on samitation has not been without its due effect. The ammal death rate per 1,000 for the whole population in 1903 was 18.9 , as compared with 21.7 during the previous year and an average of 22 cluring the preceding five years. The death-rate among the British and Foreign races was 16.6, and among the Chinese 19.1.

The following table shows the fifteen years' means of the annual and monthly values of the principal meteorological elements, taken from the Observatory Report for 1898:-

MACAO

Macao is situated in 22 deg．11．min． 30 sec ．N．latitude，and 113 deg． 32 min .30 sec ． I．Iongiturle，on a rocky peninsula，renowned，long before the l＇ortuguese settled on it， for its safe harbour for junks and small vessels．The lortuguese，who had already settled on the island of Lampacao，and frequented for trading purposes Chin－chew， Lianpo，＇Tamao，and Sin－choan（St．John＇s Island，where Francis Xavier，the celebrated missionary，（lied），first took up their residence at Macao in 1557．Shortly after their arrival pirates and adventurers from the neighbouring islands commenced to molest them．The Chinese authorities were powerless to cope with these marauders，who went so far as to blockade the port of Cinton．The l＇ortugnese manned and armed a few vessels and succeeded in raising the blockade of Canton and clearing the seas．The town of Macao soon afterwards hegan to rise，ind during the eighteenth century trade flourished there，the difficulty of residence at Canton greatly contributing towards it． The East India Company and the Dutch Company had establishments in Nacao．

Historians are divided in opinion as to whether the possession of Macao by the Portuguese was originally due to Imperial bounty or to right of conquest．There can be no doubt，however，that it was held at a rental of 500 taels a year until（Aovemor Ferreira do Anaral in 1818 refused to pay the rental any longer，and forcibly drove out the Chinese Custom－house，and with it every vestige of Chinese authority．This bold stroke cost him his life on 22 nd August， 1849 ，for he was waylaid and burlarously murdered near the Barrier of Porta Cerco and his head was taken to Canton．The sovereignty of Portugal over the peninsula was，however，formally recognised hy China in the Treaty signed with Portugal in 1887.
＇The colony is separated from the large island of Heang－shan lyy an arch，built in the year 1870 at tho end of the narrow connecting sandy isthmus．Two principal ranges of hills，one ruming from south to north，the other from east to west，may be considered as foming an angle，the base of which leans upon the river or anchoring place．The public and private buildings，a cathedral and several churches，are raised on the declivities，skirts，and heights of hillocks．On the lofty mount eastwarl，called Charil，is a fort，enclosing the hermitage of Na．Sra．de Guia，and westward is lillau， on the top of which stands the hermitage of Na．Sia．da lenha；entering a wide semi－ circular bay，which faces the east，on the right hand stands the fort San Francisco；and on the left，that of N．Sra．da Bom l＇arto．Seen from the roads or from any of the forts crowning the several low hills，Macao is extremely picturesque．The public and private buildings are gaily painted and the streets kept very clean．

In the town there are several places of interest，apart from the fan－tan or gambling saloons．The Gardens and Grotto of Camoes，once the resort of the celebrated Portuguese poet Camoes，are worth seeing，as also the noble façale of the ancient Jesuit church of San Paulo，burnt in 1835，and the Avenidi Vasco dia Gama．The Cathedral is a large plain structure having no architectural pretensions，and the various parish churches are stucco edifices，ugly without and tawdry within．A subscription is being raised for the rebuilding of the Church of Sim Paulo，but it is doubtful whether the large sum required for the purpose will he ohtained；The foundation stone，however， was laid with great ceremony on Sumday，December 4th 1got．Dleasant excursions can be made to the Hot Springs of Yomak，about sixteen miles from Macao，accessible by steam lannch．In winter，snipe are to be found in the neighbourhood and afford good sport．

After the cession of Hongkong to the British，the trade of Macao declinerl rapidly and the coolie traffic subsequently developed there gave it a certain notoriety．This trafic，pregnant with abuses，was abolished in 1874 ．Tea continues to be an article of export，also fire crackers，tobacco and preserves．Fissential oils are also exported to some extent．There is likewise some trade in opium．Silk filatures， brick and cement works，and other factories have also been established．The commercial activity of the place，however，so far as the Portuguese are concerned，is a thing of the past．There is still a fair native trade carried on，the value of which，according to the Chinese Customs returns from Lappa，in 1903 amounted to Tls．11，723．935；the net total of the year＇s trade including the junk trade between Macao and Ilongkong is given as Tls． $20,078,314$ ．As the harbour is fast silting up，however，most of the nativo trade will soon desert the place unless efficient dredging operations are inaugurated．

Some work has recently been done in this direction，but the operations have been on a small scale．The Home Government have，however，approved of an extensivo seheme for the improvement of the harbour，but full details up to the time of public－ ation have not been announced Owing to its being open to the south－west breezes and the quietude always prevailing，Macao has become a frequent retreat of invalids and business men from Hongkong and other neighbouring ports．There are two well conducted hotels：the Boa Vista，and the Macao Hotel．While neighbouring centres of population have in recent years been visited by plague or other epidemics Macao has continued to enjoy absolute immunity．

The Hongkong，Canton，and Macao Steamboat Company runs a daily steamer between Macao and Hongkong，leaving the former port at 8.30 o＇clock a．m． and Hongkong at 2 p．m．Another Company runs a regular steamer daily between Hongkong and Macao．Between Macao and Canton there is a daily steam service，Sundays excepted．The distance from Yacao to Hongkong is $40 \frac{1}{2}$ miles， and to Canton 88 miles．Macao is connected with Hongkong by telegraph．The population of Macao，with its dependencies of Taipa and Colvuan，according to returns marle in 1896，was－Chinese， 74,568 ；Portuguese， 3,898 ；other nationalities， 161 ；or a total of 78,627 ．Of the Portuguese 3,106 were natives of Macao， 615 natives of Portugal，and 177 natives of other Portuguese possessions．Of the foreigners 80 were natives of Great Britain．In November，1901，an Envgy Extraordinary arrived from l＇ortugal，his mission being to arrange with the Chinese Government for a delimitation of the boundary of the Colony．The line of demarcation submitted by the Envoy included certain islands which the Chinese Government refused to acknowlerlge as being part of the lortuguese colony，and the Envoy，while not successful in gaining this point，secured a concession for a railway from Macao to Canton．The convention，however，did not meet with the approval of the Cortes at Lisbon，and Sen－ hor Branco came to the Last again in 1004．In November a new agreement was con－ cluded with the Chinese Government，but as we go to press it is announced that the Government at Lisbon regards the terms as far from satisfactory and refuses ratitication． A syndicate of Chinese and Portuguese capitalists has provided a capital of four million dollars for the construction of the line．A New Commercial Treaty，was arranged with China in November 1904．Since the Boxer trouble Macao has been garrisoned with European Portuguese troops．

INDO-CHINA

The l'rench possession of Indo-China lies between 8 deg. 30 min and 23 deg. 23 min . N. lat. and 97 deg. 40 min . and 107 deg. E. long. (l'aris), and comprises the colony of Cochin-China and the protectorates of Cambodia, Annam, Tonkin, and the Laos, the whole being under the direction of a Governor-General, who is assisted by the "Conseil Supérieur cle L'Indo-Chine." The latter is a moveable body, meeting in any of the chief towns according to the summons of the Governor-General; but Hanoi, the capital of Tonkin, has become the principal seat of the arlministration. According to a rlecree of the 8th August, 1898, the Council consists of the Governor-General, President, the General Commanding the Troops, the Commander-in-Chief of the China Squadron, the Lieutenant-Governor of Cochin-China, the Residents Superior of Tonkin, Annam, and Camborlia, a representative of the Laos Administration, five other officials, the President of the Colonial Council of Cochin-China, the Chairmen of the Saigon, Hanoi, and Haphong Chambers of Commerce, of the Cochin-China and Tonkin Chambers of Agriculture, the Chairmen of the Annanı and Camborlian Mixed Chambers of Commerce and Agriculture, and two native members appointed by the Governor-General. The full Council meets once a year, and provision is made for a permanent Commission to transact such business as may arise between the sessions.

The deltas of Cochin-China and Tonkin are fertile; Annam, connecting them, is a long mountainous tract, with a narrow littoral on one side, and a wild sparsely populated hill tract stretching to the Mekong on the other. Rice, cotton, sugar, seeds, tolpaceo, spice, and fish are the principal productions of the alluvial districts. The principal mineral production is coal, which is mined at Tourane, on the coast of Annam, and at Hongay and Kebao on the Tonkin coast. Other minerals, inclucing gold, silver, tin, copper, lead, fe., exist in the Protectorate and are more or less mined. The principal harbours are Haiphong in Tonkin, Tourane and Thuanan (for Hué) in Annam, and Saigon. The climate in general is hot and humid. The yoar is divided into two seasons, the wet and the dry.

The general loudget for 1902 amounted to $\$ 27,128,000$. A loan of $200,000,000$ francs was approved by the French Chambers in 1898 for the construction of railways in Indo-China, is follows:-Lines in course of execution (1) Haiphong to Viétri: This line was completed in 1902. Its length is about 158 kiloms. ( $97 \frac{1}{2}$ miles). (2) Hinoï to Ninh-Binh: This line is of a length of about 118 kiloms. ( 73 miles) and was to be finished in 1902. (3) Saigon to Tanlinh: This line will be 132 kiloms. ( 82 miles)long. The following works are now being proceeded with: Vietry to Laokiy, of a length of 225 kiloms. ( 140 miles); Ninh-Binh to Vinh, of a length of 215 kiloms. ( 133 miles); Tourane to Hué, of a length of 10 a kiloms. ( 65 miles) ; Panlinh to Lam-Biang and to Khanhoa, 468 kiloms. (200 miles) ; Hué to Quang-Tri, 83 kiloms. (53 miles) ; Laokay to Yunnansen, 460 kiloms. (285 miles).

The population is estimated at $25,233,000$, most of whom are Annamites, the Cambodians and Lantians coming next in about equal numbers. The Chineso number 150,000 , and Europeans amount to a little over 7,000 . TheTonkinese are larger and more robust than the Cochin-Chinese, and more intelligent and active. The Chinese have immigrated in large numbers to the south of Cochin-China, whore they have obtained almost the exclusive possession of industries and commerce. The Cam bodians are naturally apathetic. and have given way to the Chinese and Annamites. The Lantians and Mois, oppressed lyy their neighbours and by their mandarin system, are lazy, timid and suspicious. The Muongs, who occupy all the basins of the River Noire and Song-ma, are more handsome and robust than the Annamites. The Nunsresemble the Chinese and the Thos belong to the Kmer race.

The actual political situation of Indo-China is satisfactory in all respects. The spirit of the native population seems to improve yearly. Outside events, such as the operations in China, seem to have had no effect upon the imagination of the Annamites, and the fears once entertained as to the populations of the borders of China have proved unfounded. 'Ihe exhibition at Hanoï (Tonkin) opened in November, 1902, of all products, manufactures, industries, dc., from France, French colonies and Far Eastern countries, and was a pronounced success. The permanent Archeological Mission instituted by the decree of December 15, 1898, is now working under the new denomination of "Ecole Frangaise d'Extreme Orient." Its olject is the search for ancient articles of artistic or historical interest, and the charge and preservation of monuments of public interest. It also studies the philology of idioms, dialects, and ancient languages of Indo-China and neighbouring countries."

The total force of the French army in Indo-China is composed as follows : 17 regiments of Europeans ; 17 regiments of natives ; 18 batteries of European artillery ; and sundry units-altogether about 8,000 Europeans, and 12,000 Natives.

The trade of the Colony is rapidly increasing, the value having risen from 139,078,174 francs in 1888 to $428,956,000$ francs in 1902. The exports, which reached a value of $67,665,437$ francs in 1888 amounted to $185,267,000$ in 1902 . The principal article of export is rice, which amounted to $134,096,000$ francs in 1902. The total imports amounted in value to $39,388,286$ francs in 1888 , and to $215,163,000$ francs in 1902 , the large increase being mainly in goods importod from France, In the important item of piece goods, which seem to be the staple most severely hit by the differential tariff, the trade is being rapidly monopolised by France.

TONKIN

Anciently an inclependent kingrom, hut since 1802 a province of Annam, Tonkin is situated between lat. 19 deg. and 223 deg. N. and long. 102 deg. and 108 deg. 30 min . E., bounded on the north by China, on the west by the Laos country, on the south by Annam, and on the cast by the Gulf of Tonkin. The country near the sea is a rich alluvial plain, well watered loy numerous rivers, and produces large crops of rice, while sugar, cotton, spices, indigo, silk, and various other articles are also mised. It possesses valuable mines of silver, learl, antimony, and zinc, and gold ind copper are also known to exist. Concessions were granterl in 1887 for the working of the coal mines at Kebao and Hongay, and coal of good quality from the last-named is now largely exporterl. By the Treaty of IFue, dated the Gth June, 1884, the Annimite Government placed Tonkin under is Prench Protectorate, and its affairs are administered under the supervision of French Residents. It is, in fact, now practically a French Colony. Tonkin is divided into seventy provinces, namely, Quang-yen, Hai-duong, Bac-ninh, Thai-nguyen, Tuyenquan, Iong-hoa, Son-tay, Ha-noi, Ninh-binh, Hong-yen, Nam-dinh, Bac-kan, Bacgiang, Ha-nam, Hoa-binh, Phu-lien, Chai-binh, Van-lu, Vinh-yen, Yen-bai, and four military territories, viz.:-1st circles of Langson, Mon-cay, Van-linh; 2nd circles of Canbang, Bao-lac ; 3rd circles of Ha-giang, Bac-quang ; 4th circles of Lao-kay, Bao-ba. Hanoi, the capital, is the chief town of the province of the same name, and ippears on old maps as Ke-sho. The population is estimated at from about $15,000,000$. A railway was some years ago constructed from Phu Lang-Thuong to Langson, a distance of 64 miles, but it was little better than a tramway. The gauge of this line is now widened from 60 centimetres to 1 metre and extended to Hanoi, a distance of 45 kilometres, and a concession has been granted for a further extension from Langson to Lungchow, in the Chinese province of Kwangsi. The new railway running from Haiphong to Hanoi was opened in July, 1902.

The spimning factory established in Hanoi by the "Socicte Cotoniere de l'TndoChine," with a capital of $2,500,000$ fr., has 16,000 spindles in working order and is a prosperous concern.

HANOI

Hanoi, the capital of Tonkin, and now the seat of Government, is situated on the right bank of the Songhoi, or lied liiver, about 100 miles from its mouth. The city is built close to the river and extends about one mile along the bank. The first aspect for visitors arriving from Haiphong by train or river is not an ipposing one, as the fashionable portion of the town, the principal European centre, is situated further back. Here the broad and well kept streets plinted with trees, numerous imposing public and private buildings, present a very nice European town of modern style. The city is lighted ly electricity and abundantly supplied with good drinkable water by enormous waterworks. Three lines of electric tramways recently opened run through the town over a distance of eight miles. A special attraction is the "Petit lac," a lake of nearly half a square mile in the middle of the town, rendered picturesque by the quaint pagodas, occupying the small islands which adorn it and surromeded by promenades. Facing the lake there is tho Square l'aul Bert, with a fine bronze statue of Paul Bert unveiled on the 14 th. July, 1890 , and a bandstand in the middle. Close to the square there are the Mairie, Treasury, l'ost Oftice, Cercle Union, Bank of Indo-China, Residence Supérieur and the IIotel Metropole. Other public buildings, as the residences of the GovernorGeneral and Commander of the Troops, the Govermment Olfices, the Hospital and others are situated on what was formerly the "Concession," close to the river bank. There is a large Cathedral of the Lioman Catholics and ia liandsome small Protestant church. A new imposing palace for the Governor-General at the entrance of the Botanic Garden will shortly bo finished, and a new Theatre, Museunn, Palais de Justice, Terminus, etc., are in construction. There are two first-class I Iotels, the IIotel Metropole, recently opened, with a front of nearly 300 feet, the Hanoi Hotel and some smaller ones. The "Cercle de l'Union," Société Philharmonique and the Masonic lodge possess their own buildings. A new race course opened in 1890 has been formed just outside the new town. Several daily and perionlical French papers are published at Hanoi. The citadel occupies the lighest site and is surrounded by a brick wall twelre feet high, and a moat. It contains the buildings for the troops, arsenals, magazines, ctc., and the Royal Pagoda stands within its enclosure.

The ancient city is situated between the citarlel and the river and presents a novel appearance, owing to the singular architecture of the houses. Since the occupation by the French great improvements have been effected in the laying out of the town and the formation of roads and streets, of which over 50 miles are alrearly drained, electric lighted, and, even in the native city, well kept and very clean as compared with those of other Eastern cities. From the numerous temples and pagodas that of the "Grand Bouddha," situated on the shore of the large lake is the most important and interesting for visitors on account of its colossal bronze statue of the idol.

Halls of iron construction, each 160 by 60 feet, for the native markets have been erected in different quarters.

Export and Import trade is steadily increasing andlesidesmany importantmercantile houses there is also a development of industries in this town. A cotton-spiming mill, ico factory, match manufactory, paper manufactory, some distilleries, furniture-shops and a brewery are in full swing.

The transit trade will have the greatest development when the different mailway lines are opened which connect Indo-China and Tonkin with the Funnan. In July, 1902, the first part, connecting Haiphong with Hanoi, was opened and the line enters the capital by it magnificent bridge 5,100 feet in length. over the Red liver A railway runs from Hanoi to Dongdang, near the Chinese frontier, and rapid progress is being made with other lines. The Yunnan line has been opened for traffic as far as Yenbay, and will run this year to the frontier station of Laokay.

In November, 1902, a colonial exhibition on a large scale was opened at Hanoi and proved a great success. The Botanic Garden of Hanoi occupies a very fine site and is one of the nicest in the l'ar East. It contains over 3,000 various species of plants. The climate has undergone a very favourable change by many sanitary works executed by the French, such as drains through the whole European and native city, filling up of pools, marshes, etc. There is distinction of season; the summer begins in April, the winter about October. The highest degree of temperature in summer is $35^{2}$ centigrade, the lowest in winter about $6^{\circ}$ centigrade. The population of Hanoi is about 150,$000 ; 3,075$ of whom are liuropeans (exclusive of the military), 140,000 Annamites, 8,000 Chinese, 50 Japanese, and 200 Indians.

HAIPHONG

This is the shipping port for Hanoi, Hai-dluong, and Namdinh, the commercial centres of 'Tonkin. It is situated in lat. 20 deg. 51 min . N., and long. 106 deg. 42 min . E. on the two rivers Cua Camand Song Tam Bac, which are commectedlby two or more channels or creeks with that greatriver connecting Yumnan with the Tonkin Gulf, called the Song-koi. The town of Haiphong is about sixteen and a half miles from the lighthouse. The lighthouseat the entrance of the river Cual Cam on the island of Hon-1)o, is visible at a distance of about six miles. The entrance to the port is obstructed by two bars ; the outer one sand, the inner one mud. Haiphong is accessible, however, by vessels drawing from 17 to 18 feet and after the completion of the "Conpure de Dinh-vie" for vessels drawing up to 24 feet. There is plenty of water in the river. Vessels anchor about a quarter of a mile from the shore in from 40 to 60 feet of water. The lanks of the river are low and consist of alluvial mud, from which the gresent town has with great labour and expense been reclaimed.

Haphong proper is situated on the Cua Cium and on both sides of the Song Tam Bac, and is in the midst of an extensive rice swamp, with low lying swampy lind allaround it for miles, having in the distance the monotony relieved by rugged ranges of low limestone hills, and beyond these to the northward, at a distance of some sixteen miles, is a range of mountains, the loftiest, known as the GrandSummit, leing about 5,000 feet high. Most of the native buildings are wretchedly constructed of mud, bamboo, and matting, but a well built European town with broal boulevards, lighted by electricity, has sprung up and is fast assuming the aspect of a prosperous city. Industries are developing, a. cotton mill has produced yarn since 1900 and a cement factory has delivered cement and hydraulic lime since the end of 1901 . There is a very pretty theatre ${ }_{r}$ built in 1900 by the Municipality. The Hotel du Commerce is a large and handsome structure, its lofty mansard roof dominating every building in the town. There is a church attached to the Roman Catholic Mission. $A$ small dock and some fine wharres and gorlowns have been marle. A Public Garden of rather limited area with a band stand in the centre has been neatly laid out at the end of the looulevard l'aul Bert. The Cercle du Commerce, which is a well managed Club, has its domicile in the Boulevard Paul Bert, the Cercle Banian, another prosperous Cluh, has its house in Boulevard Sontay. The Race Course is about a mile from the town on the Do Son road. There are several newspapers published in the town. The population of Haiphong has not increased much since the year 1897, when it was of about 18,480 , of whom 900 were Europeans, 5,500 Chinese, 12,000 Annamites. 35 Japanese, and ${ }^{5}$ Indians. A regular service of river steamers is maintained between Hanoi and Haphong ly the Messageries Vluviales. Haiphong is connected ly submarine cable with Saigon and Hongkong. The town has electric light. Haiphong is becoming the centre of the Tonkin railways, a part of which were inauguraterl in 1902.

ANNAM

The kingdom of Amam is under French protection. Annam proper is a narrow strip of country between the sea and the mountains, the territory beyond which is occupied by aboriginal tribes who are practically independent. Annam is to Tonkin in native parlance as the girdle to the tunic, the latter being a broad and rich territory. Annam proper is a comparatively poor country, and is dependent for part of its rice suppiy upon Tonkin. The population of Annam is $5,000,000$. The King, Thanlı-Thai, attained his majority in 1897. Two rather violent typhoons were experienced on the coast of Annam in 1900. The tirst one in August and the second in September-October. Tourane suffered the most, the damage sustained being valued at about $$ 50,000$. The imports of Annam in 1899 amounted to $£ 161,000$ and the exports to $£ 264,000$. There are conl mines near Nongson, to the south-west of Tourane, and an export trade is being developed.

H U E

Hue, the capital of the kingdom of Amam, is situated on a small, scarce?y navigableriver named Truong Tien and called by the French the Hue river, which debouches on the coast in about lat. 16 deg. 29 min N., and long. 107 deg. 38 min. E. Hue is a walled city and has been built on lines similar to those of a fortified European town of the seventeenth century. It consists of two distinct parts-the city proper and the suburbs. The former stands in the middle of a square island, separated from the latter on three sides by a river and on the fourth by a canal. It is defended by a fortified enceinte, six kilometres in circumference, constructed by French engineers after the system of Vauban, and having six large gates. Within this enceinte reside all the Government officials. The walls are built of brick and are very lofty. Inside the outer enceinte is the citadel, similarly but less solidly fortified, and having eight instead of six gates. The six offices of the Ministry are in this quarter, as well as the Library, the Mandarins' College, the Courts of Justice, the Olservatory, and various arsenals and barracks. The palace of the Council of State, and numerous other edifices, all of an official character, stand within the second enceinte. Behind these buildings is a wall of brick, which traverses the citadel throughout, separating it completely into two parts. This wall, which encloses the royal palaces and harem, has three gates; that in the centre being in the form of a pagoda, gilt and adorned with elaborate carvings. The mass of the house and even the public buildings in Hue are, however, very mean and in a bad state of repair. The Royal palace, like that of Peking, has yellow tiles; those of the nobles are rerl. The population of the city and suburbs is estimated at 40,000 of whom about 800 are Chinese. The only Europeans are the French Resident and his suite. The mouth of the Hue river is defended by forts, which were taken by the French in August, 1883, when the Hue Government at once capitulated.

PROVINCES DE LANNAM   'IOURANE

   'IOURANE}

The port of Tourane is situated about forty miles to the south-east of Hue, the capital of Anman, but on account of the Thuan-an Baw it is accessible by sea for large craft luring only six months of the year, from the end of March to the end of September. The land route from Hue, about sixty-eight miles in length, passes over the Nuages range of hills and is an easy roud for horse and foot traffic. The extensive bay of tourane is surrounded by hills and affords anchorage to the largest vessels. The Government transuorts and the steamers of the Compagnie Nationale de Navigation and the Messageries Maritimes find an anchormge here at all states of the tide and in all weathers. The Tourane River, which has its source in the mountains of the interior, empties itself into the Bay. It is navigable only for small boats and junks, by which the traffic with the provinces of Quang-nam and Quang-ngai is carried on. The town, which is well built, extends for a length of nearly two miles along the left bank of the river. It possesses many public buildings, including the French liesidency, a fine Military Hospital, spacious and well ventilated Barracks, the Custom House, the Treasury, the Post Office, and the Municipal Offices, also a number of well appointed business establishments, amongst which may be mentioned the Bank de l'Indo-Chine, the Opium Farm, the Messageries Maritimes offices, the Gassier Hotel, the Courbet Hotel, etc. The Markets, built of brick and stone, are large and contain several hundred stalls. On the right bank of the river also there are a few buildings, which are included in the French concession. A silk filature has been established there. A quarter-of-an-hour's walk from this district is the village of My-khe, which has given its name to a magnificent beach much frequented by the European population. The trade of Tourane is considerable and several steamers a month arrive from Hongkong, taking full return cargoes of sugar, rattan, bamboo, areca nuts, silk, cassia, etc. The Messageries Maritimes and the Compagnic Nationale de Navigation have agencies at Tourane and the vessels of these Companies, together with those arriving from Hongkong, give a total of about a dozen entering the port every month. Besides these vessels a large number of large sea-going junks from China, Hainan, and the ports of Anmam, Tonkin, and Cochin-China carry on an active and considerable trade in the products of the country. Tea, coffee, and the mulberry tree are cultivated on a large scale in the neighbourhood and there are sevemal platations owned by Europeans. Less than an hour's journey by boat from the town are the Marble Mountains, an - object of interest for travellers, who should not jass through Tourne without paying them in visit. The population of Tourane is about 4,650 , of whom 100 are Europeans, . 50 Chinese, and 4,500 Amamites.

QUINHON

Quinhon was opened to foreign trade upon the conclusion of the treaty between France and Ammam, signed in March, 1874. It is situated on the coast of Annam in about lat. 13 deg. 54 min. N., long. 100 deg. 02 min . E. The entrance to the port is obstructed by a bar, which may be crossed, however, by any vessel with a draught not exceeding 10 to $16 \frac{5}{5}$ feet. The chief articles of export are salt, silk, crapes, beans, arachide oil and cakes, sugar, ete. The population of the province is one million; that of the port 3,000 , of whom about 20 are Trench civilians. The country is well cultivated, and the commercial prospects of the port are improving every year. A considerable trade is carried on, chielly with Hongkong, Haiphong, Saigon, Singapore, and 13angkok. "The trade is at present chiofly in the hands of the Chinese.

COCHIN-CHINA

Cochin-China is a French Colony. The province of Giadinh, of which Saigon is the chief port, was conquered by the Franco-Spanish fleet on the 17th February, 1859, but Lower Cochin-Chinal (comprising the provinces of Giadinh, lienhoa, and Mythe, and the Islands of lulo (ondor) was not definitely occupied until 1862, when it was formally surrendered by treaty; in 1867 three more provinces were conquered by the French and added to their possessions, viz., Chadoc, Hatien, and Vinhlong. The actual boundaries of Cochin-China now are : on the North the kingloms of Annam and Cambodia, on the Eastand South the China Sea, on the West the Gulf of Siam and Cambodia.

The Colony of Cochin-China is divided into seven large provinces, comprising in all twenty-one inspections. Besides Saigon, which is the capital of Cochin-China and at the same time of the province of Giadinh, the other chief towns bear the names of their respective provinces, Bienhoa, M tho, Chaudoc, and Hatien. The country is a vast plain with small hills on the West and some mountains on the Last and North; the three highest are Batlen 884 metres, Baria 493 metres, and the Mai mountains 550 and 600 metres in height. The principal rivers are the two Vaico, the Saigon liver, and the Donnai river. The lower parts of Cochin-China are wrinkled with small creeks or arroyos, giving easy and rapid communication to all parts of the country. Of late several canals have been opened. The magnificent river Mekong, which descends from the Thibetan mountains, after running through different territories, crosses Cambodia, enters the lower provinces of Cochin-China, by two branches, and empties itself into the China Sea by tive large outlets called respectively Cua Tieu, Cua Balai, Cua Cochien, Cua Dinh-an, and Cua Bassac.

The principal product of Cochin-China is rice. It is planted in almost every province except some of the northern districts. After this important grain the chief products are sugarcane, mulberry trees, pepper, betel-nut, cotton, tobacco, coprah and maize. China grass, sesamum, palma-christi, indigo, saffron, gum-lac, sapan wood, and cinchona also exist in pretty large quantities, with several other minor productions.

The principal salt pits are in the province of Baria. The forests contain large quantities of fine timber and abound with game of nearly every description, amongst which may be named elephants, rhinoceros, tiger, deer, wild boar, and elands, while amongst the feathered gime the peacock, partridge, snipe, jungle fowl or wildcock, pheasant, de., may be mentioned. The rivers and creeks swarm with fish of every description, and alligators abound in some.

In the chief towns of each province there is a citadel sufficiently garrisoned, and numerous military posts in the interior maintain and watch over the security of the inhabitants. The Annamites are a mace devoted principally to agriculture; they are not so industrious as the Chinese and are indifferent tiaders. The Chinese have the largest proportion of the trade in their hands.

The whole of the French possessions are now comprised under the title of Indo-China, and consist of the Colony of Cochin-China and the protectorates of Tonkin, Lans, Annam, and Cambodia, and are under the control of a Governor-General, who usually resides in Tonkin. The Govermment of Cochin-China is administered by $\Omega$ Lieutenant-Governor, who is assisted by a Privy Council composed of all the Heads of Departments as ofticial members and several mofticials. The Colonial Council of Cochin-China, some of the members of which are elected by the residents, consists of sixteen members, six of whom are natives. In the various arrondissements, moreover, councils have been introducer composed entirely of natives. The towns of Saigon and Cholon are ruled by Municipal Councils, the members of which bodies are partly French and partly native. The Chamber of Commerce at Saigon is also an otticial borly elected by the merchants and traders; formerly it was composed of French, foreigners, and Cininese, but in 1890 its constitution was altered and it is now an exclusively French body.

The population of Cochin-China by a recent census was $2,968,529$, of whom 4,323 were French suljects (exclusive of the troons, which were put down at 3,536 men).

The export of rice in 1902 was 801,500 tons, or 169,500 tons more than in 1901 Export of broken rice and rice flour was 150,000 tons, making the total export 951,500 tons. The surface of rice fields registered amounted in 1898 to $2,736,560$ accres ; in 1902 it amounted to 2,960,212 acres. It is in the suburbs of hachria, Giadinh, Gocong, Mytho, Bentre and Soctrang that the rice fields have been regained from the forest. Following the irrigation works projected, a great number of concessions were granted in recent years, especially in 1899 and 1900 , hy the Colonial Council of Cochin-China, some to villages, some to settlers. The fields granted to European settlers are only taxed according to their progress, commencing by one-fifth at the end of the fifth year, to which is alded another one-fifth at the end of each of the following four years. The Conseil Superieur, in November, 1900, adopted the following works to improve Saigon Harbour:-1. $\Lambda$ quay 1,091 metres ( $3,5 \% 8$ feet) long on the right bank of the river. This quay will permit the monring of nine vessels of 120 metres ( 39.3 feet) long. 2. A series of warehouses 25 metres ( 82 feet) broarl and 069 metres ( 3,178 feet) long, thus making a total surface of 24,225 square metres (260,611 square feet). 3. Railroads in front and at the back of the warehouses. The line of railway leading thereto will be connected with the Mytho and Cholon Railways. 4. Nbout 20 buoys will be established on the left bank of the river, and vessels will be moored on that side as they are now on the right bank. 5. A bridge, level with the ground, will be built in continuation of the street called liue d'Adran. The total expenses to be incurred for the improvements projectel are estimated at f.10,394,000 ( $£ 415,760$ ). A postal line of French steamers has been estahlished between Bangkok and Singapore, with a subsidy from the Goverument of Indo-China. The total shipping in the year 1902 amounted to 728 vessels of 998,619 tons register. The British llag accounted for 134 vessels of 209,929 tons.

SAIGON

Saigon, the capital of Cochin-China, is situated on the Saigon river, a tributary of the Donnai, in lat. 10 deg. 50 min. N., and long. 104 deg 22 min. E. It is about 40 miles from Cape St. James and is accessible to the largest vessels. Since its occupation by the French the climate has undergone a very favourable change, owing to different sanitary works in the town, such as drains, the filling up of pools, marshes, dic. The town presents a fine appearance, the roads and thoroughfares beng broad and regular. Amongst the pulbic buildings the Government House is the most remarkable: several millions of frames have been spent upon its construction and decoration. The other prominent public huidlings are the Palace of the Lieutenant-Governor, the handsome and imposing l'ost Office on the l'lace de la Cathedrale, the Custom House, the "Direction de I'Interieur," the 'Ireasury, the Land (Office, Public Works Department, the Schools, and the Supreme Court. The Military Hospital is a fine and handsome buikling, as are also the Arsenal, Barracks, and Artillery Park. There is also a stately Gothic Cathedral of large proportions, in front of which has been erected the statue of Monseigneur Pigueau de Behaine, bishop. of Adran, one of the first French missionaries who came to Cochin-China in the last century. A fine bronze statue of Gambetta stands in the Boulevard Norodom. There are two other Statues one of Francis Garnier on the Boulevard Bomard in front of the theatre, and another, that of Amiral ligault de (ienouilly, on the Rond point Riganlt de Genouilly. Saigon has two public gardens, the "Jardin de la Ville," which is maintained at the expense of the Municipalicy, and the lootanic Garden. The municipal theatre which was inaugurated in 1900 is a remarkable building erected at a cost over $2,000,000 \mathrm{fr}$. There is good docking accommodation, the Bassin de ladoub being one of the finest docks in the world, capable of receiving the largest men-of-war, and there are two floating lifts. Saigon has two stenm rice mills. Two new petroleum godowns built hy the Government at a cost of $\$ 18,000$ are situated at Rach Doii, on the banks of Saigonliver(half way to the town). They are said to be large enough to receive over 400,000 cases. The agents of Messrs. Samuel and Co., of London, have built two petroleum tanks at Nhabe at the point where the Saigon River flows into the Donnai.

The largest of these is estimated to receive 2,300 cubic metres ( 81,190 cubic feet) of oil. There are (without reckoning the troops) about 2,500 Europeans and about 182 foreigners, of whom there are about 40 British subjects (Europeans and descendants of Europeans).

The M. M. steamers call twice a month at Saigon on their homeward and outward trips. Easy communication is afforded with the principal towns of the interior by subsidized mail steamers, and there is a railway to Mytho. There is also a railway line to the town of Bien Hoa and beyond, and another to HocMon. On the 8th of March, 1902, the bridge of Binh-Loi was inaugurated over the river of Saigon, putting in direct communication the two rives des fleurs. It is a swing bridge and is of a total length of 276 metres supported by 6 piles (en maronnerie et a 2 -culees). All the principal towns of Cochin-China possess telegraphic communication, and a submarine cable unites the colony with Singapore, Hongkong, Haiphong, Amoy dc., The postal organization of the Colony is very complete and efficient; correspondence can be sent daily to almost all parts of the country. The Journal Officiel is published twice a week, and there are usually one or two other journals published, but they frequently change their titles, and lead a spasmodic existence. The Gia-dinh-bao is the native issue of the Journal Officiel.

CHOLON

This town, distant four miles from Saigon, with which it is connected by two steam tramwnys, is the seat of most of the Chinese tracle of the Colony. Cholon may be said to be the granary of Cochin-China, and is the seat of much commercial activity. Most of the rice mills are located in this place, there being no less than six worked by steam, and there are several large brickyards. The town, like Saigon, possesses a Municipal Council, composer partly of French, partly of Amnamites, and partly of Chinese. The population in 1897 was 67,712 .

CAMBODGE

Cambodia, the kingdom of the Khmer, extends from 101 deg. 30 min. to 104 deg. 30 min . longitude E. of Paris, and from 10 deg. 30 min . to 14 deg. latitude. It was reduced to its present proportions in 1860 by the amnexation of its two richest provinces, Angkor and Battambang, to Siam. Its area is about 62,000 square miles. It is bounded on the south-west by the Gulf of Siam, on the south-east by French Cochin-China, on the north by the French Laos, and on the north-west and west by Angkor and Battambang. The noble river Mekong flows through the kingdom, and after passing through French Cochin-China, empties itself, by a number of mouths, into the sea. The Mekong is the grand waterway of Cambodia, and, like the Nile in Egypt, lays the greater part of the country under water amually. greatly increasing its fertility. The soil of Cambodia is rich and productive, and rice, pepper, indigo, cotton, tohacco, sugar, maize, and cardamoms are cultivated. Coffeo and spices of all sorts could be grown. Among woods, ebony, rose, sapan, pine, iron, and other valuable sorts exist, no less than eighty different kinds of timber being found in the forests. Iron of goor quality has been discovered, and it is affirmed that there are gold, silver, and lead mines in the mountains. The tisheries of Cumborlia are very productive, and salt fish forms one of the chief articles of export.

Cambodia was once an extensive and powerful state, and proofs that it possessed a much higher civilisation than that which now prevails in the comtry are to be found in the architectural remnants of former grandeur. The noble ruins of the ancient city of Angkor are monuments of a people much sulperior to the feeble race which now inhabits Camborlia. The Cambodians differ entirely from their neighbours the Annamites, both in features and customs. Polygamy is practisel among them. The prevailing religion is Buddhism. The people are apathetic ind indolent, and have allowed the trade to fall into the hands of Chinese, of whom there are about 160,000 in the country. The entire population of the kingdom in 1893 was $1,000,000$. Slavery, since its abolition by the French Treaty of 1884 , lats almost entirely disappeared.

The Government of Cambodia is a monarehy under French protection. The present King, Somdach Pra Maha Norodom, succeeded his father King Ang Duong in 1860. In June, 1884, Norodom signed a new treaty wtih France, by which the administration of the country was handed over to French Residents. Since the convention of 1892 the native functionaries are appointed by the king, under the control of the French Administration, and are paid from the treasury of this kingdon.

Plunom-penh, the present capital of Cambodia and seat of the Government, is situated on the river Mekong, nearly in the heart of the kingdom. The king's palace is a large building, and the portion devoted to his use is built and furnished in European style. Firench functionaries have charge of the treasury, the administration of justice, customs, and public works and taxes. Pnon-penh has been considerably improved under the present rule, especially since the year 1889. Nany roads have been made and numerous sanitary works carried out in the town, such as drainage works, the filling up of pools, marshes, ett. Electric light and water supply throughout the town are established since 1900 . The new Treasury, in the ancient Khmer style of architecture, is a most remarkable building. The other prominent public buildings are the Post Office, Court, Hospital, Persomuel and liegistration Office, Commissariat of Police, new barracks for Marine Infantry, Public Works Office, Commercial Museum, Harbour Otice, and the Indo-China Bank and Messageries Fluviales agencies. The Resident Supérieur has a handsome residence in the city. The population of Pnompenh is estimated at 39,000 . Though the country generally is entirely undeveloped, trade at present is considerably extending. Cambodia has no seaport! of any importance, and the import and export trade passes through the port of Saigon. Customs dues have been imposed since July, 1887, with exemptions in favour of French goorls and shipping. The tariff is based on the general tariff of lrance, morlified in certain points. The port of Kampot can only be frequented by small native coasting vessels from Sian and by Chinese junks. Easy communication is afforded with the principal towns of the interior, Saigon, Angkor, and Battambang, and Stungtreng and Khone, in the Laos, by subsidized mail steamers of the Messageries Fluviales. Telegraphic communication exists between the principal towns of Cambodia and a land wire passing through Camborlia and Laos connects Cochin-China with Bangkok and Tavoy (Burmah).

The kingdom of Siam, of which Bangkok is the capital, extends from the latitude of about 20 deg. north to the Gulf called after itself. It is bounderl on the west by Burmah and the bay of Bengal, and on the east by the Mekong. Formerly the Lai Mountains were clamed as the eastern boundary, but in 1893 the French pressed the claims of Amnam to the territory between the mountains and the river, and the Siamese were compelled to retire. The most important part of the kingdom lies in the valley of the Menam, the country of the true Siamese. The boundaries of Siam on the Bay of Bengal reach from Burmah in a southerly line to the boundary between Perak and Quedah in the Malayan Peninsula in the latitude of 5 deg. south. The island of Junck Salong, containing enormous deposits of tin ore, is included in the territories of Siam. The boundary line runs nearly east from Perak across the Peninsula in about the same latitude between the provinces of Tringanu and Pahang to the China Sea, thence north to the head of the Gulf of Siam. The boundary between the Siamese States and those of Federated Malaya was delimitated in 1900 in aceordance with at treaty signed at Bangkok by the Siamese Foreign Minister and the British Minister Resident, in November, 1899. That treaty settled the old dispute about the boundary of the Siamese State of Raman by a compromise, Britain getting about half the territory she lad claimed on lehalf of Perak. The kingdom also comprises the greater part of the ancient domain of Lao and the rich and valuable possession of Battambong, once a part of the kingdom of Camborlia. The various dependencies and outskirts are peopled by a variety of races, some sui generis, others illustrating every form and shade of the trinsition between the original race and the Annamites on the east, and the Malays and Jurmese on the south and west. The former capital of Siam was Ayuthia, situated on the Menam river (literally the " Mother of Waters"), about 90 miles from its mouth. In 1767 a series of bloody and desperate combats between the Siamese and the liurmese culminated in the capture and destruction of that city by the victorious Burmese general and the consequent exolus of the conquered. They moved down the river about 60 miles, and there founded the present populous and flourishing city of Bangkok. The chief of the Siamese Army rallied the seattered troops, and, building a walled city at Toutaboree, declared himself King under the title P'ya T'ak. In 1782 D'ya Tak became insane, and the kingiom passed to his most distinguished general, named Chao P'ya Chakkri, who founded the present dynasty, of which His Majesty the present King (the 40th reigning monarch in Siam of whom we have any record) is the tifth in regular descent. Therevenue of Siam for the year ending 31 st March, $190^{\circ}$, is estimated at Ticals $47,500,000$. The finances of the country have recently been undergoing reorganisation, for which purpose a European tinancial adviser was engagedin 1896 . At that time the revenueaccounter for waslittlemore 'Ticals $18,000,000$ but the amount has since steadily increased, though the taxes have been reduced. The present Financial Adviser and Comptroller-General was formerly Accountant-(ieneral in Burma, and was lent by the Indian Govermment. 1 proposal to adopt the gold standard was mooted in 1899 , but rid not come to mything till November 1902 when the Mint was closed to the free coinage of silver. The Gevermment selling price of ticals is now 17 to the pound sterling. A triemial poll tax is imposed upon Chinese. Siam entered the Universal Postal Union on the 1st July, 1885. The first railway line, from Bangkok to Paknam, was opened by the King on the 11th - 1 pril, 1893. It is a purely passenger line, having been unable to get any gorts tratfic worth mentioning, but the dividend averages about seven per cent. Another railway, a Govermment line, mid -1 yuthia to Korat, has been completed, The first section, from Banckok to Ayuthia, is distance of about fifty miles, was opened by the King and Queen on the 26ith March, 1897. Another section, to Gengkoi, was openerl on November 1st, 1897, a third, to Hinlap, on April 1st, 1898, and the whole line was openerl to tratfic in November, 1900. The main line and the connecting lines cover a distance of over 650 miles. The construction of a line branching off the Korat line near Ayuthia and intended to open up the country to Chiengmai was commenced in June, 1898, and the first section to Lopburi was opened to traffic on 1st April, 1901. The further extension of the northern line is now being rapidly procpeded with, the Lopburi-Paknampo section ( 118 km , being nearly finished. It will be opened to traffic about November 1st, 1905, and the next section to Pitsanuloke in 1907. The line running south-west to l'etchaburi, viil Ratburi, 152 km . long, was opened to traffic in the early part of 1903. $\Lambda$ fleet of stem launches runs from the metropolis in all directions up-country, to the east and west.

The Army is small, but in recent years great progress has been achieved in military matters. Under the new organization the following five regiments are stationed in Bangkok, viz., the Royal Bodyguard, the 1st Infantry of the Line (old Royal Guards), the 2nd Infantry of the Line (old lalace Guards), the 3rd Infantry of the line (old Barge Guards), and the 4th Infantry of the Line (old Front Guards), part of the last named being stationed at lathuri. There are in langkok a Regiment of Artillery and amother of Cavalry. In the interior, the 5th legiment of the Line is stationed at Korat, the 6th Regiment at Uhon, the 7th liegiment at Ban Dua Makheng, and the 8th Regiment at Chiengmai. To each of these is attached one Battery of Mountain Artillery.

The legiments are not, of course, kept up to their full strength, the men taking service by turns, so that one third are under arms while two-thirds are on leave at home. For the up-country regiments the men are recruited in the military district where the regiment is stationed, and for this purpose the country is being divided into military districts, but only the four mentioned have so far been organised. The Royal Military College in Bangkok has been one of the principal factors in the improvements effected, and young officers trained in this institution are also in great demand for the work of the civil administration of the interior. The Navy is small, but thoroughly efficient, and additions are constantly being made to its strength.

The native population of Siam, with Latos, Cambodians, Peguans, de., excluding those under Consular protection, is variously estimated at about seven millions. The number of Chinese in the kinglom is estimated at about 2,500,000.

BANGKOK

The city of Bangkok is situated on both sides of the Menam about twentyfive miles from where this magnificent strean empties itself into the Gulf. On the left bank of the river is the city proper enclosed partly by a wall. The Royal palaces and Government Offices are within the wall, the foreign hongs, the Consulates, and the principal rice mills being on the principal or main street of the city. The right bank is principally occupied by the Siamese, Chinese and Mahomedan residents. The bulk of the business is transacted on the left. Here a road, called New Road-in Siamese, Charurn Krung-extends from the Palace walls to Bangkolem, and the electric tramway runs along it for a distance of about six miles. Another electric tramway toSamsen has a length of four miles. Various other new streets and roads have been made recently, and Bangkok has now over 100 miles of carriage roads. A telegraph line connects the Lighthouse at the Bar heyond the mouth of the river with the business portion of the city. The principal trade of Bangkok, and the foundation on which not only its prosperity but its actual existence mainly rests, is rice. This article is drawn in immense quantities, not only from the innumerable fields which line the fertile valley of the Menam, but from the adjacent rivers which flow into the Gulf from the enormons watershed of the mountain crescent which fringes the northern extremity of the kingdom. The output of this grain in favourable years is scarcely to be calculated. It not only furnishes support to the native population of Siam and the Malay Peninsula, but largely contributes to the supply of China, Manila, the Straits, Java, and Sumatra; a large amount is also sent to Europe and even to South America. There is also a large trade in teak-wood and ivory, with very many other minor articles of native produce wihich are exported to China and the Straits. The steamers of the North German Lloyd Orient Line keep ${ }_{S} p$ regular communication with Hongkong (occasionally leaving and returning vai Swatow and the Straits Settlements), hesides special boats only running during the rice season; while other lines of steamers connect the kinglom with the Straits Settlements.

The public buildings and institutions inclurle the hoyal Museum, which is situated in the Wang Nah, Bangkok, and consists of two luildings; that on the left to the approach contains the natural history collections and ethological exhibits from Japan, China, Java, etc., that on the right (formerly a royal building) contains the Siamese ethnological collection. There are also the Protestant Church, four Roman Catholic Churches, two Hospitals, a Ladies' Library, and Assumption College, managed by the French Roman Catholic Mission. St. Louis' Hospital, a large and spacious building, situaterl near the German Legation, was opened in 1899, the Sisters of Charity being in charge. There is one tirst-class Hotel, the Oriental, and several smaller ones, also four clubs-the Bangkok United Club, the Bangkok Club, the British Club and the German Club. The King's palace and the temples are magnificent and on a large scale; the architecture is of a hind peculiar to the country; and there is much nore of novelty and interest to be witnessed by passing travellers in Bangkok than can be found in Chinese cities. The roads have been greatly improved. The tramway was introduced in 1888, and has proved financially successful, there being now two lines, both driven by electricity. The city throughout its principal streets as well as all hotels and principal shops are lighted with electricity, incandescent lights being universally in use. The population of Bangkok is estimated at 400,000 . There are over 1,000 foreigners in Siam, most of whom are resident in Bangkok. The number of $A$ siatic British subjects in Siam is estimated at about 7,000.

The harbour and island of Koh-si-chang, which lie some 20 miles from the bar and about 50 miles from Bangkok, are places of importance. The harbour, formed by a strait of sea running between islands, offers a fine anchorage for vessels loading rice and teak during the south-west monsoon (from April to the end of October.) The largest ships can take shelter there. A lighthouse serves to enable vessels to make the $\Leftrightarrow$ ntrance.

The following are the latest trade figures, the year ending 31st March -

| 1902. | Ticals |  | 1903. | Ticals |
| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| finports | 6.5,420,231 | Imports |  | 6.),417,502 |
| Exports. | 87,401,889 | Exports |  | 74, 464,417 |
| Total.. | 152,822,120 |  |  | 39,882,119 |

The British Consul in his Report for 1903 says:-"The exports to foreign countries for the year are valued in sterling at $f^{\prime \prime}, 955,922$, as against $f^{4} 4,533,972$ in 1902. Rice continues to be far and away the most important export of Siam-the country, in fact, lives upon it in every sense--and it formed about 76 per cent. of the total export. Over 13 per cent. more consisted of teak timber, and all other products combined amounted to less than 11 per cent. The value of imports from foreign countries was very high, as might be expected from the large rice export of 1902 which brought money into the country. In fact, the sterling value, $£ 3,475,310$, was the greatest that has hitherto been recorded, being $£ 81,663$ in excess of the year 1902 , which was the previous record year. Deducting treasure from both years we find that the sterling value of imports of actual merchandise was, for $1902, £ 2,561,751$, and for $1903 £ 2,957,171$, giving a balance in favour of the latter year of £395, 420 ."

In 1903 of a total steam tonnage cleared outwards at Bangkok of 518,917, there was a German tonnage of 328,373 , the Norwegian was 86,810 and the British 59,661. As to labour, the Chinese coolies continue to be masters of the port, and the positionin regard to them grows worse, for the supply is insulficient, and they can impose what terms they please. Bangkok itself isimproving greatly, new roads having been opened and shops and houses being built. A great and much-needed reform is the substitution of some - other source of revenue for the present gambling licences which are farmed to Chinese. The public recognition of gambling fosters improvidence and crime of every kind.

SIRAITS SEITLEMENTS

This Colony-now consisting of the island of Singapore, the province of Malacca, the island of Penang, the Jindings further south, Province Wellesley on the mainland, and the Cocos or Keeling Islands, and Christmas Island, the latter two placed under the same Government in 1886 and 1889 respectively-was transferred frons the control of the Indian Govermment to that of the Secretary of State for the Colonies by an Order in Council rlated the 1st April, 1867. The seat of Govermment is the town of Singapore, on the island of the same name. The Govermment consists of a Governor, aider by an Executive and Legislative Council, the latter body consisting of nine official members and seven unotficial members, of whom two are nominated by the Chambers of Commerce of Singapore and Penang. There are Municipal bodies in each Settlement, the members of which are partly elected by the ratepayers and partly appointed by the Governor.

Penang was the first British Settlement on the Malayan Peninsula, having been ceded to the British by the Rajah of Kedah in 1785, and it som acquired a monopoly of the trade of the Peninsula. Malacea, which had been successively held by the Portuguese and the Dutch, finally passed into the hands of Great Britain by treaty with Holland in 1824, having been previously held by Great Britain from 1795 to 1818. With the establishment of l'enang in 1785 most of the trade which had formerly centred at Malacca was transferred to the former. In 1819 Singapore was taken possession of by Sir Stamford laffles, by virtue of a treaty with the Johore Princes, and it soon took the lead of Penang as a commercial centre. In 1826 Singapore and Malacea were incorporated with Penang under one Government, Penang remaining the seat of Government until 1830, when the alministration was transferred to Singapore.

The census of the Straits Scttlements, taken in 1901, gave the population of Singapore as $228,5.5$ ( 170,875 males and 57,680 females) against 184,554 in 1891 . Y'enang and dependencies 248,207 , against 235, 618 in 1891. Malacca, 95,487 against $92,170 \mathrm{in} 1891$. Christmas Island 704. The Cocos 1slands 645. The total increase in the Straits Settlements since 1801 wass 59,907 or 11.69 per cent. The increase in males was 34,600 or 10 per cent. and in females $2 \overline{5}, 307$ or 15 per cent. The ressdent population of Europeans and Americans increased by 669 or 20.5 per cent. There was a decrease of 1,531 in the whole European and American population (inclurling floating population and British military) mainly owing to there not being a British regiment stationed there when the census was taken.

The revenue of the Colony in 1903 amounted to $$ 7,958,496$, which was $$ 23,762$ in excess of the revenue raised in 1902. The revenue for 1904 was estimated to yield $$ 10,708,050$, one $$$ million doilars less than the original estimate, because since the commencement of the financial year large reductions were made in the rent of the opium and spirit firms. The expenditure in 1003 was $$ 8,185,952$. The Colony had a credit balance on January 1st, 1904, of $$ 1,751,837$. Government currency notes to the value of $$ 16,293,496$ were in circulation on the 31st December 1903, as compared with $$ 13,393,440$ at the end of the previous year, and with $$ 9,476,000$ for 1901. The coin reserve increased from $$ 7,714,555$ to $$ 10,021,328$. The estimated revenue for the current year is $$ 11,513,415$, and the estimented expenditure $$ 11,726,631$.

The trade returns of the Straits Settlements for 1003 show the gross imports of merchandise to have heen $\$ 403,037,553$, showing an increase of $\$ 40,10 \%, 735$, as compared with the figures for the previous year. The exports in 1903, amounting to $\$ 333,698,705_{r}$ showed an increase of $\$ 22,668,769$. Together we have a total increase in dollars of just on $66,771,504$. The shipping returns for 1003 showed a total tonnage of oceangoing vessels entered and cleared of $13,217,217$, an increase of $83,3,545$ tons compared with the returns for the previous year. $\Lambda$ railway from Singapore to Johore was opened two years ago and is paying well. Speaking generally, it may be said that there are many signs of the increasing prosperity of the Colony as a whole, intimately connected as it is with the welfare of the Ferlerated Mality States. The towns of Singapore and George Town, Penang, continue to extend. Immigration from China and India shows satisfactory merease ; in 1 ¢03 over 200,000 Chinese entered the Settlements. The value of town property has enomously increased. Concurrently with a general increase in trale and business, the cost of living has arlvanced enormously. House rent both in Singapore and l'enang has risen greatly, while the price of labour and building materials deters many from investing their capital in building operations. The increased output and hirh price of tin in the Federated Malay States, the bulk of which finds its way to the Smelting Works in the Colony, have largely contributed to the wealth of the population. Many have made fortunes out of tin and invest a large proportion of their gains in the Colony.

STINGAPORE

The town of Singapore, situated on the southern shore of an island of the same name, in lat. 1 deg. 16 min . N. and long. 103 deg. 43 min . F., is the seat of government of the Straits Settlements.

The Island of Singapore is about 26 miles long by 14 wide, containing an area of 206, or, with the adjacent islets, 223 square miles, and is separated ly a narrow strait aloout three-quarters of a mile wide from the territory of Johore, which occupies the Southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula. Originally taken possession of in 1819 by Sir Stamford haffles, it was, until 1823 , subordinate to our then settlement in Sumatria. In that year it became an appanage of the Indian Government, in which condition it remained until 1867, when it was placed under the Colonial Office in conjunction with Penang and Malacca.

The plain upon which the town and suburls stand is chiefly composed of deep beds of white, bluish, or reddish sand, averaging 90 to 95 per cent. of silica. The rest is aluminous. Recent shells and sea-mud found in this sand show it to have been formed by a retreating sea. The general composition of the island, which consists of low hills and ridges, with harrow and swampy flats intervening, is sandstone, with the exception of Bukit Timah, which is of granite formation, containing about 18 per cent. of quartz. Colonel Low (J. T. A., vol. i. p. 84) specities eight varieties. The soil overlying the granite is rather meagre (the stone being neither very porphyritic nor micaceous and not very liable to disintegration), but it of course contains in vast quantity of vegetable mould. The sandstone is of various colours, the darker variety rapidly decomposing in situ in yellow clay, though applicable to building when fresh from the quarry. All the sandstones are heavily impregnated with iron, and an ironstone, known as laterite, is, to the casual observer, the prevailing mineral of the islind. This occurs sometimes in vains, lut more frequently in large beds on the sides of hills, and is extensively quarried for road-making purposes. It is supposed to contain manganese, and is found from the size of coarse sand to that of masses 15 or 20 feet in diameter. It is of dark clove-brown colour externally; internally it is cellular, and varies in clensity, being often, when freshly dug, soft enough to be cut with a knife, or hard enongh to resist the pick. It is not magnetic in the mass, but when pulverized is found to contain grains of magnetic iron. It hardens considerably on exnosure to the air. A substance somewhat resembling soapstone, with red, white, or greenish streaks, is sometimes found amongst the clays, being rather greasy to the touch, and occasionally of a fibrous texture. The valleys or flats of Singapore have a peaty substratum, varying in thickness from six inches to a couple of feet. Below this generally lies a bed of cold clay, and below this a stratum of arenaceous clay. In many districts kaolin is found in large quantities and of excellent quality.

The town proper extends for about four miles along the south-eastern shore of the island, spreading inland for a distance varying from half to three-quarters of a mile, though the majority of the residences of the upper class Europeans lie much further back, within a circle with a radius of three and a half miles from the Cathedral. This portion of the Settlement is almost entirely level, the highest hill in the island, indeed, about seven miles from the iown, only rising to a height of 500 feet. The country roads are well kept, and, thanks to the luxuriance of tropical vegetation, abound in shade. The town streets, on the other hand, though wide and well metalled, are, as regards architectural matters, drains, and gutters, not much credit to the Settlement. (fovernment House, the Government Offices, Police Barracks, Magistrates' Coarts, Post Office, Library and Museum, Town Hall, the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, and the Chartered Bank, we fine buildings, while the Settlement possesses a handsome Club which compares fivourably with any in the East. A fine bronze statue of Sir Stamford liaffles stands on the Eisplanade, facing the sea.

Singapore possesses a handsome though small Anglican cathedral called St. Andrew's Cathedral, built in 1861 ; it is in the Gothic style, with a tower and spire 204 feet high. 'Ihere is a neat Preshyterian Church, St. Gregory's (Armenian) Chureh, in Hill Street, and several mission chapels. The Roman Catholics have aroomy Cathedral dedicated to the Good Shephered, at the corner of Brass Bassa Roarl and Vietoria Strect, the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul in Queen Street, the Church of St. Joseph in Victoria Street, and other smaller churches in the outskirts. There is also a neat Jewish Synagogue in Waterloo Street. The principal schools are those of the laffles Institute, the Cllristian Brothers, iud the Anglo-Chinese School. The Raffes Girls' School and the Convent also provide for the education of girls of the Protestant and Roman Catholic persuasions.

The Singapore Club has a good building in a central position. There are Recreation, Sporting, lowing, Shooting, Cricket, Lawn Temnis, Art, and Reading Clubs, and the Celestial (Chinese) Reasoning Association. There is a Country Clul) with a well-built bungalow situated some three miles out of town, at which dances and amateur theatricals are frequently given. The German community have a similar institution. The laffles Library and Museum, moved in October 1887, into the new building erected for them, are creditable and well kept institutions, the Museum having made very fair progress since its inception. The Lilmary contains over 16,000 volumes, chiefly of standard modern literature, and includes the valuable philological collection of the late Mr. Logan.

There are several goods hotels, of which the Raffles is the best. The Press is represented by the Streits Times :and Sinfapore Free Press (daily), with weekly issues of both, anrl the Government Guzelte. There are also two Chinese claily papers called the Lat P'au and Sing l'au, one Malay paper, the Bintany I'imor, and one or two papers in 'Tamil.

Singapore is well off for Docks. The Tanjong Pagar Company's premises lie about a mile to the westward of the town, it fine wharf affording berthage for a la ge number of vessels at one time, with sufficient water alongside for vessels of the heaviest draught, and protected by a breakwater from the swell from the roads and from the strength of the tides. There are commedious godowns erected on the wharf for the storage of goods. Coal sheds, capable of storing 50,000 tons, adjoin the godowns, while hand carts on rails essentially aid the labour of unloading vessels. The usual accompaniments are also to be found-two graving docks, the Victoria Dock, 450 feet long and 65 feet broad at entrance, and the Alhert Dock, 485 feet long and 60 feet broad at entrance-a machine shop, boiler, and masting shears, de. Considerable improvements are now under construction including a railway running from one end of the wharves to the other. The New Harbour Dock Company's premises, situated about three miles further West, include two docks of 375 and 444 feet in length respectivels, with sherls, workshops, dc. These were purchased by the Tanjong Pagar Dock Company in 1900. There is also a Patent Slip at Tanjong lhoo, which is 424 feet long and 76 feet broad over piers. The Government in December' 1904, clecided to take over the whole of this property.

Singapore is considered to have a big future yet before it. Sir Frank Swettenham, in a speech deivered just before his retirement from the Governorship, indicated the future of Singapore in these words:-" You have in Singapore a city of 200,000 inhabitants, which will one day be a million, and a port reckoned by the tonnage of its shipping as the seventh largest in the world. That is something to begin with. Then you have a magnificent natural harlour on which nothing has yet been spent, but which, if it were protected hy works, would afford 1,300 acres of sheltered anchorage. You have wharves and docks which have already fame beyond these shores and are capable of vast improvement. You have the making of a great naval base which we believe is already almost impregnable. Behind you, you have one of the richest countries, well watered and wooded, with no earthquakes or volcanoes, floods or famines or serious epidemics. Something has already been done to develop some portion of this country. Railways have been made, some mines have been opened, and planting has been done, and in the course of less than 30 years the revenue has grown from $$ 5,500,000$ to over $$ 20,000,000$ and the tride has grown from little or nothing at all to 100 millions of dollars. Then in the Colony you will have next year a revenue half as large again as this year and united with that of the Federated Malay States it will be far larger than that of any other Crown Colony."

The climate of Singapore is remarkable for its salubrity, mud the island has been described by medical writers as the "paradise of children," infantile diseases seldom being at all malignant. Despite its proximity to the equator, under normal circumstances a daily rainfall tempers the heat so thoroughly that many sleep beneath blankets. Droughts, however, have been experienced of from one to six months. The climate of the island is thus described by Mr. Thomson, in the "Journal of the Indian Archipelago," his remarks still holding good:-"Sing"Lpore though within 80 miles of the equator, has an abundance of moisture, either deposited by the dews or gentle refreshing showers, which keep its atmosphere cool, prevent the parching effects of the sun, and promote continual verdure. It seldom experiences furious gales. If more than ordinary fieat has iccumulated moisture and electricity a squall generally sets in, followed by a hervy shower of rain, such squalls seldom exceeding one or two hours in duration. Accorling as the monsoon blows, you will have the squalls coming from that direction. But the most severe and numerous are from the west, called 'Sumatras,' and these occur most frequently between 1 and 5 o'clock in the morning. The north-east monsoon blows from November to March; after which the wind veers round to the south-east and gradually sets in the south-west, at which point it continues to September. The north-east blows more steadily than the south-west monsoon. The temperature is by one or two degrees cooler in the first than in the last. The average fall of rain is found, from the observation of a series of years, to be 92.697 inches; and the average number of days in the year in which rain falls is found to be 180 , thus dividing the year almost equally between wet and dry; the rain not being continnous, but pretty equally rlistributed through the year, January, however, being the month in which the greatest quantity falls. The mean temperature of Singapore is $81^{\prime} .247$, the lowest being $79^{\circ} .55$ and the highest $82^{\circ} .31$, so that the range is not more than $2^{\circ} .76$. It would appear from this that the temperature of the island is by $9^{\circ} .90$ lower than that of many other localities in the same latitude. Comparing the temperatme now stated with that which was ascertained twenty yoars carlier, and in the infancy of the Settlement, it wouk appear that it had increased lyy $2^{\circ} .48$-a fact aseribed, no doubt, to the increase of buildings, and to the country having been cleared of forest for three miles inland from the town, the site of the observations. The general character of the climate as to temperature is that the heat is great and continuous, but never excessive, and that there is little distinction - of seasons, summer and winter differing from each other only by one or two degrees of the themometer. Thunder-showers are of frequent occurrence, but the thunder is by no means so severe as I have experienced it in Java, and seldom destructive to life or property.
"The botany of this place possesses several interesting considerations. Being a connection-link between the Indian and Australian forms, we have types of both, and many genera of either region. We observe the Indian furms in the natural families Palmax, Scitaminee, Aroidea, Artocarpea, Euphorbiacea, Apocynea, Guttifera, Convolvulacea, Leguminose, all numerous. The natural families Casuarinae, Myrtacere, particularly Melaleuce and Proteacere, connect us with Australia. The plants, which usually spring up, when the primeval forest has been cut down, and where the bane of all the rest of the vegetable kingrom-the Androporon cericosum, or Laliang grass-has not taken possession, belong to the following generi: :-Melastoma, Myrtus, Morinda, Solanum, Rubus, liottlera, Clerodendrum, Commersonia, Ficus, and l'assiflora. The forest contains an immense number of species of timber trees, most of them of great height and growth. Above two hundred have been collected, and of these about half-alozen afford good timber for house and boat-building. The teak is not of the number. The forest also produces the two species which yield the useful gutta-percha, and a fig which affords an elastic gum. But for use these articles, as well as timber, are not obtained from Singapore itself, but from the wider and more accessible forests of the neighbouring continent."

The zoology of Singapore is that of the neighbouring continent, to the exclusion of some of the larger animals-as the elephant, the rhmoceros, the tapir, and the ox. The largest felme animal indigenous to the island is a small leopard, called by the Malays harimau-daan, that is, "the branch" or climbing tiger. But the tiger, an animal unknown to the islind in the carlier years of the British Settlement, made its first appen:ance five or six years later. It scems to have crossed over from the continent, attracted no doubt lyy the sound of human voices and the lowing of animals. It multiplied greatly, and was supposed to clestroy yearly from two to three hundred persons, proving the greatest bane of the Settlement. Large rewards have always been offered for the destruction of tigers ( $\$ 50$ per head), and a good number were captured by pitfalls, but all attempts at their extermination were for many years unsuccessful. The spread of population, however, had its natural result; and although specimens are occasionally met with which have swum the narrow strait between the island and Johore, there are not probably more than half-a-dozen now existing in the jungle. Of the natural family of Musteliclae there are two in Singapore-the musang of the Malays (P'aredoxurus museny(e) and the binturung (Ictides ater), of the size of a badger. Otters are occasionally seen along the coasts, but are rare. The wild hog is numerous, and there are five species of deor. tho usual ones of the Peninsula and Sumatra, from the rusa, of the size of a heifer, to the pelandok, which is hardly as large as a rablit. Among mammals, one species of bat is often to be seen, the same which is so frequent in almost all parts of the Archipelago, the kalong ( l'teropus javanicus). This is about the size of a raven, and a troop of them in flight has very much the look of a flock of crows, and by a stranger may be easily mistaken for one. Among reptiles, crocodiles are common in the salt-water creeks and along the shores of the island, but, having an abundant supply of fish, are not troublesome to man. The Iguana lizard, the bewale of the Malays, is notinfrequent, and the noisy house lizard or tokay, the talie of the Malays, so common in Penang and so much more so in Siam, is also found in Singapore. The esculent turtle is very abundant along the shores of Singapore and the neighbouring islands, and its use as food being restricted to the European and Chinese population, it is the cheapest animal food in the market, one of the largest, weighing several hundredweight, selling for $\$ 2$ or $\$ 3$. Of snakes, forty-four species have been found to exist, of which fourteen are more or less venomous. The well-known cobra (Nairt tripulians) possesses the peculiar property of ejecting venom from its mouth. The Malays say there is no cure for its bite. Those killed have measured from $4 \leq$ to 51 feet in length. The reptile, being slow and sluggish, is easily overtaken and killed. When attacked, it erects the body and dilates the shin on either side of the head, uttering a noise like that of an irritated cat. If attacked, it throws, to the distance of from 6 to 8 feet, a venomous fluid which, even should it only enter the cye or touch the mucous membrane or any open sore, islikely to prove fatal. The hamadryad ( $O_{p}$ hiophayus elaps) exists, but is fortunately not common. The bungarus is the only other venomous snake of large size; but pythons of considerable length-up to 22 feet-are frequently captured. I'ish and crustaceans are in great plenty, and some 200 species will be found named in the published lists. About half-a-lozen of these are excellent for the table, fully equal to the best fish of our own coasts. Among the best is the white pomfret of Europeans, the bawalputeh of the Malays, of richer flavour than our soles, though less luscious than the turbot, and the ikan merah, resembling the sam-lai of China.

Singapore offers but few points of salient interest to visitors, the Botanical Gardens at Tanglin, the Waterworks in Thomson Road, and the Raffes Library and Museum being its only show places. A consideralle mileage of electric tramway is now under construction. A railway across the island was sanctioned by a vote of the Legislative Council in 1890, and was opened for traffic on 1st January, 1903. An extension to the 'Tanjom l'agar Docks and neighbourhood has been sanctioned. This line of fourteen miles may be the first section of a great Malay Peninsula and India Railway, passing through and opening up the countries of Johore, Malacca, the Native Malay States, some Siamese territory and IBurma, on to Calcutta. The distance from Singapore to Calcutta is just over 2,000 miles.

MALACCA

The settlement of Malacca excites more interest from a historical point of view than either of its sister towns, but has so completely fallen to the rear commercially since the establishment of lenang and Singapore as to merit but brief notice in this compilation. It is now seldom visited lyy foreigners except for purposes of relaxation. Originally settled by the Portuguese in 1511, it retained its importance as the one foreign entrepot in the East until the founding of Penang, when its fortunes as a port rapidly declined. The settlement, however, has made considerable progress in agriculture since the formation of new rouls. At the present moment it is the least European of all British Settlements in the East, though the facts that it has given its name to the l'eninsula and that it was the cradle of Anglo-Chinese study attest its former importance. Its area is embraced by looundaries some 42 miles in length, with a breadth of from 8 to 25 miles. It is governed by a Resident Councillor in subordination to Singapore.

The geological formation of the territory of Malacea consists chietly of granite rocks, overlaid in several places by the red cellular clay iron-stone called by geologists laterite. Many of the low phains are alluvial, the soil composed of decayed vegetable mould intcrlaced with sand. The metallic ores are iron, gold, and tin. The surface generally is undulating, consisting of low round ridges and narrow valleys, the only mountain of considerable elevation being the Ledang of the Malays, and the Ophir of the Portuguese, 4,401 feet above the level of the sea, or less than onc-half the height of the principal mountains of the volcanic islands of Java-Bali and Lomboc-or those of the partially volcanic neighbouring island of Sumatra.

The mineral prorlucts of Malacea were at one time looked upon as offering valuable prospects. Gold to the extent of 1,500 ounces yearly was obtinined in 1857-8, but the yield decreased to such an extent that it is no longer worked. Tin, about the same period, assumed considerable importance. The first mines were opened in 1793, but no great enterprise was displayed until 1848 , when some $5,000 \mathrm{cwt}$. was the annual product. This increased until 1858, and a large number of Chinese were employed in the industry. The superior yield of the Native States, however, combined with the exhaustion of the surface washings, resulted in mining enterprise in Malacea being virtually abandoned, although both gold and tin probably still exist in workable quantities.

The clinate of Malacea as to temperature is such as might be expected in a country not much more than 100 miles from the equator, lying along the sea shore-hot and moist. The thermometer in the shade ranges from $72^{\circ}$ to $80^{\circ}$ Fahrenheit, seldom being so low as the first of these, and not often higher than the last. The range of the barometer is only from 29.8 to 30.3 inches. Notwithstanding constant heat, much moisture, and many swamps, the town at least is remarkable for its salubrity, and, with the exception of the early period of its occupation loy the Portuguese, has always enjoyed this reputation.

Malacca offers numerous attractions to the ornithologist and entomologist, but it is less rich in manmals than many other tropical districts. Nine species of quadrumana, the tiger, hack leopard, wild cat, several species of viverra (such as the musang and binturong), the elephant, one-horned rhinoceros, tapir, six species of deer, and two of the wild ox comprise a nearly complete list. Fair sport can be obtained by those fond of shooting, from tiger to quail. It is noteworthy that the existence of the tapir was unknown until 181f, although European intercourse dates back to some three centuries before. Tigers in the early days of Portuguese occupation were so plentiful that the want of inhabitants was seriously attributed to this cause. As with the birds and insects, so with the reptiles. The snakes, lizards, and crocodiles are, as a rule, those of the peninsula generally, the birds alone presenting a rather larger variety than those of other districts. Nor does the vegetation present any exclusive features, being that of the surrounding states. The coast line is poor in shells, and the absence of limestone accounts for the few species of land shells found within the district.
leyond its interest to the sportsman or naturalist, Malaceca possesses no attractions except to those who like to visit scenes famous in the ammals of discovery for the bloorly fights they have witnessed between the natives and the European nations who contended for their possession. Its population in 1001 amounted to 945,87 A sum of $\mathbb{S 5}, 000$ was provided in 1901 by the Government for a detailed survey of the Malacea-Tampin lailway. The revenue for 1903 was estimated at $\$ 523,00$. The trade which is almost entirely with Singapore and the Federated Malay States amounts to about seven million dollars annually. The cultivation of tapioca is the principal industry, an area of about 40,000 acres being under tapioca cultivation.

PENANG

Yenang, or Prince of Wales Island, as it was formerly called, is situated on the west coast of the Malay leninsula in 5 deg. north latitude. With the Dindings and a strip of land on the opposite coast known as Province Wellesley, from which it is separated by a Strait varying from 2 to 10 miles in width, it constitutes the second in importance of the three governments known as the "Straits Settlements." The island contains an area of about 107 square miles, being 15 miles long and 9 broad at its widest portions, while Province Wellesley extends for a distance of 45 miles along the coast, and has an average width of 8 miles, containing 270 square miles, and about 200 more for the Dindings. The chief town of Penang is George 'lown, but the name of the island (which signifies "Betel-nut island") has become so identified with the town that the specific designation has almost dropped out of use.

Pennng was ceded to the famous Captain Light for the East India Company in the year 1786 for an annual payment of $$ 10,000$ to the Rnjah of Kedah, a step which was followed 13 years later ly the cession of Province Wellesley. In the year 1805 Penang was elevated to the rank of a presidency, its rising fortunes even then bidding fair to eclipse those of Malacca, while Singapore was as yet unknown as a settlement. In 1826 Singapore and Malacca were incorporated with Yenang, and the three vere designated by the title they still retain. But as the fortunes of Singapore brightened, those of Penang declined, until the former quite overshadowed her older sister, and in 1837 the principal seat of govermment was transferred to Singapore.

The settlement of Penang is governed by a Resident Councillor, and has two unofficial representatives in the Legislative Council, which sits at Singapore. An important department of its trade lies in the business transacted with the Dutch settlements in Sumatra. Penang will always remain of a certain importance, although it is not likely to again assume the position in the commercial world it formerly held. It is a convenient coaling and man-of-war station, and is of yet greater necessity as the virtual seat of government for lrovince Wellesley, which must ahways bo an important centro of British influence. The Tanjong lagar loock Co. have rented the graving dock at Prye liver in Province Wellesley, 250 feet in length and 50 feet broad at entrance ; also a slip for vessels 100 feet long. (deorge Town is built on a plain, at the back of which rises the hill which, os Penangites declare, renders life on the island more enjoyable than in any other part of the Colony.

The formation of Penang is granitic, being covered in many places with a sharp sand or stiff clay, the produce of the decomposition of the granite. Above this again comes a coat of vegetable mould of greater or less thickness. With the exception of a plain about three miles in depth, upon which stands the town and environs, the whole of the island consists of hills with narrow valleys. No minerals of commercial value are found in Penang.

The influence of the regular monsoon is more distinctly felt at lenang than in the most easterly part of the Straits of Malacca, owing to the wideness of the latter to the west and vicinity to the lbay of Bengal. During the north-easterly monsoon, from November to March inclusive, clear settled weather prevails, and in the south-westerly, from April to October, the rains take placo. But neither rain nor drought is of long continuance. The average heat of the year at the level of the sea is $80^{\circ}$, and at the height of 2,500 feet, the highest inhabited point, $70^{\circ}$, the amual range being about $20^{\circ}$. Where there is free ventiation, the climate is equal in salubrity to that of any other tropical one, but in a few close valleys wanting this arlvantage, the malaria is deemed poisonous, and such localities, few in number, are not inhabited by Europeans.

Of mammals, the principal species are monkeys, loris, wild pig, and two species of viverrida-the musing and binturong. The ornithology calls for no special remarks. The island is a happy hunting ground for the entomologist, numerous fine species of lepidoptera frequenting the hills. The botany of Penang is perhaps better known than that of any part of the Peninsula, and, for the area involved, is particularly rich. Palms, bamboos, banana and other fruit-trees, and nutmegs clothe the hillsides, while ferns are also plentiful. The high land permits the cultivation of many flowers and other plants which will not thrive in the flat level lands of Singapore or Malacca.

As evincerl loy its name, the chief prorluct of lenang is the betel-nut, which, with all kinds of fruit and nutmegs, is the only indigenous article of trale. Nutmegs were at one time a most important branch of industry, but the blight, which simultaneously affected the whole l'eninsula, destroyed it. Their cultivation has, however, now been resumed, and Penang nutmegs stand high in the market. There is no agriculture properly so called. Pepper was at one periol of its early history produced to the extent of three and a half million pounds annually; but the competition of other places, notahly of Netherlands India, proved fatal, and it is now only cultivated in small patches, and is not classed as an article of export trade. Tapioca, Cocoanuts, Gutta, Rubber, Citionella and Cotton are also among the products cultivated.

The lerak-Penang liailway is now in course of construction. The terminus for Penang is at Prai, which will be connected with the town by a ferry service. The line will be 317 miles in length and will connect Penang with P'ort Dickson, and may subsequently be extended to comect with Burmah on the North and Siam on the East.

The town possesses few attractions, and the public buildings are mediocre, with the exception of the Govermment Offices, a tine new block erected in 1889 near the jetty. St. George's Church is an unpretending edifice of 80 years' standing, centrally situated. There is also a Roman Catholic Church and several mission chapels. The census of 1900 gave the total population of l'enang and lrovince Wellesley as 248,207 as compared with 235 , 618 in 1891 . ## JOHORE

This state occupies the southern portion of the Malayan Peninsula, and has an are a of about 9,000 square miles. The state is ruled by a Sultan, who is independent, but under the protection of the British Government so far as external policy is concerned. The present Sultan, Ibrahim, was born in 1873, and succeeded his father, the late Sultan Abubakar, in 1895, being crowned on the 2nd November of that year. The country has made great progress in material prosperity, and its orderly condition has attracted a good deal of European capital, invested in planting enterprises.

The capital is the town of Johore Bharu, or new Johore, as distinguished from Johore Lama, or old Johore, the former seat of the sultans of Johore, which was situated a few miles up the wide estuary of the Johore river. The new town is a flourishing little place on the nearest point of the mainland to Singapore island, and lying about 14 miles to the north-east of Singapore city, in $1^{\circ} 26^{\prime} \mathrm{N}$. It contains some 20,000 inhabitants, mostly Chinese. Amongst the Government buildings are the Istana, court and police stations, barracks, gaol, hospital, market, railway station and a mosque. A steam saw-mill, owned by Chinese, does a good business. A plentful supply of water, by means of pipes from a stream in the hills about $12 \frac{1}{2}$ miles distant, has been provided since March, 1890 . Good roads are being made, and, to meet the requirements of the Padang district, a light railway was completed during 1890 as far as Parit Jawa, a rlistance of eight miles.

The population of the state is remarkable for containing a larger number of Chinese than of Malays. The exact figures have not been ascertained, but probably come to 200,000 , viz., Malays, 35,000 , Chinese 150,000 , and Javanese 15,000 . More than half are found within 15 miles of the Singapore Straits. The Chinese are chiefly found as cultivators of gambier and pepper, and are spread over about this range of country in the extreme southern end of the peninsula, nearest to Singapore.

European pioneers have, in the last few years, made some experiments in planting. on a large scale, sago, tobacco, coffee, tea, and cocoa. These have been grown in five different districts-Batu Pahat, Pulau Kokoh, lanti, Johore Bharu, and Pengerang; but it is uncertain how many of them can be considered established industries.

At the present time the principal exports of Johore are the carefully cultivated gambier, pepper, and sago, and the natural products of timber, rattans and damar. For almost all such produce Singapore is the port of shipment.

The only mineral in which the country is really rich is iron. It is nowhere worked but is found almost everywhere. Deposits of tin are known in several places and gold in one or two spots. $A$ little tin is worked at Seluang, but no considerable mining is actually carried on, unless the islands of the Carimons be included. Though now politically separated from Johore these islands are geologically part of it, and were formerly i dependency of the kingdom.

Coaches and steam-launches run daily to Singapore, whence letters and passengers find easy access to all other ports. A telegraph line has been erected between Johore Bharu and Singapore, and a railway has been constructed across the latter island.

FEDERATED MALAY STATES

The Protected States comprise four Residences, namely, Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang. These have been federated, the federation taking effect from the 1st July, 1896, and the administration is presided over by a British Officer styled the Resident-General. Each State has its own Iesident and the native rulers retain their titles and dignity. The head offices are at Kwala Lumpur, Selangor.

The record of these States is one of progress and prosperity. They enjoy to-day a revenue of $$ 22,000,000$, and an ordinary expenditure of a little over half that sum, while the trade is worth $£ 10,000,000$ sterling per nnnum, and the States have a credit balance of $$ 10,000,000$ and no debt. The High Commissioner in a respatch to the Colonial Ottice, published in November, 1903, remarks that these States have now 350 miles of railway (which have been paid for out of current revenue), yielding good income; they have 2,000 miles of roads ; and over 1,000 miles of telegraphs. Waterworks, wharves, hospitals, prisons, schools, and many other public buildings have been constructed, while the Govermment of Perak is engaged upon an important scheme of Irrigation which will benefit about 60,000 acres of land and cost about $$ 100,000$. The principal sources of revenue and prosperity are the alluvial tin deposits which, at the present price of the metal, can be worked at considerable profit. About 600,000 tons of tin, worth over $£ 50,000,000$ sterling, have been exported during the last fifteen years, tin has been worked in the Malay Peninsula for centuries, and it is believed it will still bo produced there centuries hence. The industry has grown of recent years to very large proportions, but it would take a long time to work out the alluvial deposits in the lands already alienated, and these comprise but a fraction of the unexplored lands which still remain, where there is every reason to believe the mineral will be found in payable quantities. This only applies to alluvial deposits. No one can guess what are the reserves of ore in underground rock formations, as at Kuantan in Pahang, Slim in Perak, and Jelebu in the Negri Sembilan. The Government has not, however, overlooked the fact that in the export of tin its capital was being reduced, and it has made an effort to supply another and more useful investment by the construction of Railways, with part at least of the revenue. Since British Protection the royalty on Tin has yielded a total of over $$ 60,000,000$, and the Federated States have in the same time expended $$ 29,000,000$ in the construction of railways. The profits give a return of over 6 per cent. on the capital expenderl.

Planting enterprise in the Federated Malay States has not hitherto proved very successful, but that has not been due to any lack of enterprise or hard work on the part of the planters, who, when one product failed tried another. The prospects of rubber, according to the High Commissioner, are so good that, unless some unforeseen rlisaster happens, the future is full of promise for those who have taken up this cultivation. 'I'he area at present under rubber (principally the Para variety) is given approximately as 16,000 acres. The sugar estates have done well, and will continue to earn fair profit so long as their machinery and methods of treatment are kept up-to-date. Over 40,000 acres of land are under cocoanuts, for which the soil and climate of these States are peculiarly well suited and cultivation of rice is only a question of irrigation and labour. The irrigation scheme in Perak is making but slow progress, but the success of every form of agriculture and of all the efforts of the Government to develop the country by means of railways, irrigation, and other great public works, depend upon an adequate supply of labour. To meet the demand the Federaterl Malay States have endeavoured, hitherto without success, to arrange for a direct line of steamers to carry Chinese labour from Canton to the ports of the Malay States. As regards Indian labour, the Governments of the Colony and the Federated Malay States, supported by the planters, are making every possible effort, by an new system of recruiting and ly offering higher wages and other advantages, to secure an adequate supply of Indianlabour. Thequestion of creating an agricultural department to foster agricultural interests, encourage the cultivation of new products, to conduct experiments and be a general source of information for planters is under consideration.

The REMINGTON is the recognized leader among writing machines.

The import trade of 190:3 was valued at over $47 \frac{1}{2}$ million clollars and the gross total exports at $80 \pm$ million dollars. The increase in the import of merchandise compared with the returns of the previous year was 63 per cent. while the exports showed an increase of 13 per cent. It is estimated that there are in the Ferlerated Malay States about 70,000 chidren of a school-going age, but only 9,000 of these attend any recognised school, while many live in places far removed from any school-house; it is a fact that education has no great attraction for Malay parents, or Malay children who might contribute by fir the largest number of scholars. The Government offers every reasonable encouragement and there is even a law in force in Selangor and the Negri Sembilan forcompelling the attendance of children wholive within reasonable distance of a school. A census was taken throughout the Federated Malay States on the lst March, 1901, and the corrected returns show the population to have been, on that date, 678,595 , an increase of 62 per cent. over the census of 1891 . It is interesting to notice that the Malay population shows an increase of 35 per cent. in the decade.

PAHANG

The state of Pahang lies between Tringganu and Johore, and extends along the eastern side of the peninsula from 2 deg. 40 min . to 4 deg. 35 min . N., its coast line being about 130 miles in length. The area of the state is estimated at 10,000 square miles, and its priacipal river, which drains a large extent of country, is known hy the same name The river lahang is, however, owing to its shallowness, navigahle for small craft only The country is sparsely populated, there being, according to the census of 1904 84,113 inhabitants, of whom about 73,462 were Maliays and 8,695 Chinese.

The capital of the state is l'ekan, a town situated a few miles from the mouth of the river Pahang, where is also the seat of Govermment. The state is under British protection, and in August, 1888, the Sultan, acting under the advice of the Sultan of Johore, applied for a British lesident to assist in the administration of the country, which request was acceded to in October of that year.

The predominant rock is slate, but granite, sandstone, limestone, quartz, and schist abound, while traces of volcanic action at some remote age art shown by the presence of basalt, trachyte, de. As regards its minemalogy, the state has always possessed a high reputation for its product of gold and tin. 'Though during recent periods these have been lout little sought, the wonderful old golf workings discovered by Messrs. Knaggs and Gower show that, wild, resolate ind abandoned as the greater portion of the state now appears to be, it must, at some very remote time, have been well known and populated. "At the present day," says Mr. Skinner, "the principal gold mines are in the valley of the lahang, at Lipis, Jelei, Semantan, and Luet ; gold is also found as far south as the berat. There is also a mine of galena on the Kwantam at Sungei Lembing ; and tin is fouml throughout the country, both in the neighbourhoor of the gold mines above mentioned, and in places like the river Triang and the river Bentang, where gold is not worked." The l'ahang Corporation has opened tin mines at Sungei Lembing and Jeram Batang, another mine at Kabang having also been commenced. These mines are situated at the Kuantan district. The gold-hearing districts, Punjom and lanl), have, however, attracted far more attention from European capitalists. The principal gold-workings of the peninsula lie almost entirely along a not very wide line drawn from Mounts Ophir and Segama (the southern limit of the auriferous chain), through the very heart of the peninsula to the Kalian Mas or gold-diggings of Patani and Selepin in the north. The best tin workings of Pahang lie near the Selangor hills on the river Bentong and near the gold workings at Jelei and Talom. Pahang tin is said to be the only tin on the east coast which can rival that of Perak and Selangor in whiteness and pliancy.

The administrative expenditure exceeds the income and the State is heavily in delat with a loan account standing at nearly three and a half millions of dollars, mostly advanced by the State of Selangor. The estimate for the current finmeinl year shows: Revenue $$ 445,122$, Expenditure $$ 9.9,972$. The total value of the import and export seaborne trarle is about $$ 3,600,000$. Little has been done in planting beyond experimenting with tapioca and cocoanuts. Mining, however, gives encouraging results the output in 1902 being 23,114 piculs. There is a considerible demand for mining land, application being made in 1902 for 5, 648 neres in the Raul, district alone. Land is also in demand in the l'ekan and Kuantan districts where it is proposed to open up tin mining operations on a very extensive scale. In the Kuala Lipis district extensive areas have been applied for, which it is proposed to work for alluvial gold by improved hydraulic methorls, The task of administering the Govermment of lahang is hampered by low pay, long hours of work, high cost of living, and poor house accommorlation. These check the flow of porsons willing to join the dovernment Service.

THE NEGRI SEMBILAN

This is a group of seven stntes-Johol, Tambin, Sri Menanti, Jempol, RembauSungei, Ujong, and Jelebu, the two latter having been confederated with the original group of five in 189.5. They occupy together some 3,000 square miles of the interior of the peninsula, bounded on the north and east by Pahang, on the west by Malacca, and on the south by Johore. The five states originally known as the Negri Sembilan were brought under l3ritish protection by Sir Frederick Weld in 1883 and by an agreement with the respective chiefs, signed on the 13 th July, 1889, they were confederated as one liesidency. They are governed by the mative chiefs or penghulus, assisted by the Britisll lesilent and Magistrates under him.

Under the later scheme of confederation, brought into force in 1895, by which Sungei Ujong and Jelebu were brought in, there are five districts, viz., Seremban. the Coast, Jelebu, Kualit lilah, and Tampin. Seremban is the head ottice, where the Resident and heals of departments reside. Heads of departments are for the whole state and thus a double staff is snved, as had two states remained alone it would have been necessary, as the Negri Sembilan leveloped, to make further appointments of European officers. The political affinity of the States is undoubted, and the same tribal and customary laws exist in both, together with the system of the election of the chiefs.

Sungei Ujong and Jelebu have together an area of about 1,200 square miles, and an range of hills in the north attan a height of about 3,800 feet, the slopes of which have been pronounced by Ceylon planters as most suitable for the cultivation of coffee, cocoa, de. On the lower ground, nearer the coast, tapiocal is successfully cultivated. Tin mining is auried on to a considerable extent. The river Linggi is the only considerable strean in the state, and was formerly mavigable for upwards of 40 miles from its mouth. The principal town of Sungei Ujong is Sermbrn. The port of Sungei Ujong was opened on the 1st Soptember, 1884, at Pengkalian Kompas on the Linggi river, at it distance of about seven miles from the mouth of the river, and a well laid-out town has sprung up. Port Dickson (district and port) lies south-west of Seremban, and promises to become of some importance. The harbour has from eleven to fifteen fathoms of water and is well sheltered. A railway connecting it with Seremban was openerl in July, 1891. Tho line has greatly facilitated tradic. There is a firstclass road from Pengkalan Kompas to the Residency at Seremban, and thence on to l'antai, a distance altogether of about 31 miles, Pantai being 8 miles from the seat of Governnent and leading to the coffee estates on Bukit Berembun, which are in a flourishing state. To these, a distance of 13 miles, a cart road has been constructerl. $\bar{A}$ cart road from Seremban to Setul, 9 miles distant, and extending to Bernang, 6 miles further on the Selangor border, has been made, and has opened up an extensive and rich tin mining district, which is being rapidly taken up hy the Chinese, who are the real wealth proxlucers of the country, as elsewhere in the native states. In 1902 tin to the value of $85,837,000$ was produced in this State. Two large tin fields were opened in 1902 and the future output of this State is likely to be enhanced very considerably, especially as means of communication in the district are being gradually improved. Communication with Malacea is kept up by subsidized steam-liunches, and there is a cart road, five miles in length, from the State to Lulok China in Malacea.

SELANGOR

This protected native state, containing an area of about 3,200 square miles, lies on the western coast of the Malay Peninsula, and is bounded by the protected native states of Perak on the north and Negri Sembilan on the south, extending inland to the mountains in the centre of the peninsula, which divide it from l'ahang and Jelebu.

The Government consists of the Sultan, advised by the British liesident, and assisted by the State Council. The State is divided into the following six Districts :1. Kivala Lumpur, the central district where the Residency and principal Government Offices are situated, and which also contains the richest tin mines that have yet been developed. 2.-Klang, the principil port, situated about 14 miles from the mouth of the Klang liiver. 3.- Kivala Langat, an agricultural district, in which the Sultan resides. 4.-Kraala Selanyor, containing the most important fisheries in the State. 5.-Ulu Langut, an inland mining district on the borders of Negri Sembilan. 6.-Ulu Selangor, adistrict adjoining l'erak, containing much valuable mining land, as yet comparatively undeveloped.

Each district is under the charge of a European District Officer. from whom the Native Penghulus (in charge of the mukims into which each District is subdivided) receive instructions. The l'olice Force consists of il deputy Commissioner, assistant deputy Commissioner, seven European inspectors, and 568 native non-commissioned officers and men.

The population of Selangor in 1884, when the first census was taken, was 46,568 ; in April, 1891, the total population of the State amounted to 81,592 persons, but at the last Census, taken on March 1st 1901, the returns gave a total of 168,789 , of whom 108,768, were Chinese, 33,997 Malays, 16,748 natives of India, 4,166 Japanese, 1,063 Europeans, 1,875 aboriginese and the remainder Arabs, Singhalese, Boyanese, Siamese, dc.

The principal inclustry of the State, and from which it derives the largest portion of its revenue, is alluvial tin mining, on which a duty is charged.

In addition to its mineral resources the State, however, possesses large tracts of land well adiopted for agricultural purposes, and the recent removal of restrictions on the free importation of Indian coolies into the Protected Native States renders it possible for European planters to obtain cheap labour and to open estates on a large scale. Small plantations of coffee, cocoa, and pepper have already been successfully commenced, and rice, sugar, and other products of the Peninsula under native cultivation are doing well in various parts of the State, and to encourage pioneer planters, large grants of land have recently been made, on special terms, for the planting of sago, pepper, and gambier.

The principal exports are tin, hides, garmwood, tapiocir, canes, rattans, and guttil percha. The principal imports are opium, salt, salt-fish, rice, oil, tobacco, and tea. The only import cluties are on opium and spirituous liquors, while export duties are payable only on minerals, agricultural products, ivory, fish, horns and hides, jungle produce and guttapercha. The export duty on tin in 1903 amounted to $$ 3,364,300$, which is the highest revenue ever yet attained. The duty on the gross value of the tin was roughly 14 per cent.

There is frequent and regular communication, by means of coasting steamers, between the Straits Settlements and Selangor, and from Kwala Lumpor a system of cart and bridle roads extends to the boundaries of Perak, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang. A line of metre gauge railway, connecting Kwala Lumpor with Klang (a distance of 21 miles 14 chains) was formally opened by Sir F. Weld, then Governor of the Straits Settlements, on the 15 th Sept., 1886, and an extension, Kwala Lumpur to Kuala Kubu, was opened on the 6th October, 1894. A further extension, Kuala Kubu to Tanjong Malim, on the Perak frontier (I4 miles 45 chains), was completed and opened on November, lst, 1900.

A line from Kuala Lumpur to Kajang ( 17 miles 24 chains), was opened to traffic in August, 1897, and the continuation of this line ( 28 miles 75 chains), to Seremban, the Capital of the Negri Sembilan, was completed in February, 1903.

The total length of railway open for traffic in 1904 was 136 miles 42 chains. On 1st January, 1899, the extension from Klang to Port Swettenham ( 5 miles 40 chains) was opened for passenger traffic. Port Swettenham is the terminus of the railway, on Klang Straits, and wharves have been constructed there, capable of accommodating ocean-going steamers.

Telegraph lines connecting the State with the Perak and the Negri Sembilan and Malacca systems have been laid, and Postal Telegraph Offices are established at Kuala Lumpur, Klang, Kuala Kubu, Serendah, Kuala Selangor, Sabak Bernam, Rawang, Jugra, Kajang, Sepang and Sungei Besi and at all Railway Telegraph Offices. At the request of the Pahang Covernment, the Selangor line has been extenderl also to IRaub and Kuala Lipis.

The revenue of the State in 1903 was $$ 7,267,258$. In ten years the revenue has more than doubled.

PERAK

Perak is on the west coast of the Malayan peninsula and lies between Kedah, or Queda, on the north, and Selangor on the south. The coast line is about 90 miles in extent; the greatest length of the State, in a north and south direction, is 120 miles, and the breadth, in an east and west direction, 90 miles. It is estimated to contain 7,959 square miles or $5,087,597$ acres: that is to say, it is about the size of Wales and Monmouth joined together. It has been estimated that there are on the mountain ranges of the State 1,45], 770 acres above 1,000 feet elevation available for cinchoni, coffee, tea, &c., and that between 1,000 feet and the plains there are 588,422 acres suited to lower cultivations, such as Liberian coffee, tea, cacao, cardamoms, dec.

The State is well watered by numerous streams and rivers, of which the river lerak is the most important. This river runs nearly south until it turns sharply to the westward and falls into the Straits of Malacea. It is navigable for about 40 miles from its mouth by stemers of 300 to 400 tons burden, and for another 125 miles by cargo boats. The upper part of the river is rocky and aloounds in rapids, and consequently, except for small boats and rafts, is impracticable. The Kinta, Batang Padang, and the Plus are the three large tributaries of the Perak river, and all are navigable by cargo boats. These rivers rise in the main mountain range and flow west and south until they fall into the parent stream.

The climate of lerak is goorl, the temperature in the low country averaging from $60^{\circ}$ Fahr. in the night to $90^{\circ}$ Fahr. in the heat of the day. The average mean is about $70^{\circ}$ Fahr. in the nightand $87^{\circ}$ Fahr. in the day. The nights are uniformly cool. At 3,000 feet the average is $63^{\circ}$ Fahr. at night to $73^{\circ}$ Fahr. in the day. The rainfall varies considerably, Taiping, the capital, registering occasionally as much as 200 inches, but the average elsewhere is about 90 inches. There is no true rainy season, but the wettest months are September, October, November, and December, and the driest are February, March, June, and July.

The State is ander British protection and the govermment is carried on under the Sultan, aided and advised by the lesident, and a Council consisting of the Hesident and Assistant Resident and several mative chiefs. A Military Police Force of over 1,000 men, mainly Sikhs and Pathans, is maintained.

The seat of government and the British Residency is at Taiping in the Province of Larut, which is also the chief town and centre of the Mining industry. Kuala Kangsa is situated on the right bank of the Perak river, about due east of the port of Teluk Kertang, from which a good road leads to it, crossing the western range of mountans at llukit Berapit; the distance is 23 miles. There is also here a rising village ; and as extensive tin deposits are known to exist in the neighbourhoorl, and are worked by 2,000 Chinese at Lalak, it is probable that the very central position of Kuala Kangsa will cause it soon to become a place of some commercial importance. The residence of H.H. the Sultan is at Bukit Chandon, on the opposite bank of the river, which is about 200 yards in width. A magnificent palace has been built for him by Government and fitted with English furniture. The surrounding scenery is very beautiful, groves of cocomuts and fruit trees indicating the villages of the Malay population.

The most important provinces of Perak are Larut and Kinta, which have tin deposits of great richness. Larut is most advantageously situated in respect of commercial intercourse with the British port of Penang, which is about 60 miles off. British oflicers (Magistrates and Collectors) and detachments of Police are stationed in other important districts. A large number of important public buildings have been constructed in the various district healquarters, but the principal buildings are erected at Taiping, the capital of the state. Of these the following may be mentioned:-The prison (with permanent wards on the separate system), hospitals with accommodation for 1,010 patients, barracks for the Malay States Guides, markets, police stations, court house, treasury, post and other Government oflices. A permanent library and museum has been built. Waterworks supply the town of Taiping, the gaol, hospitals, and other luildings with excellent water in ample quantity.

Communication with other ports is kept updaily by small steamers between Penang and Larut, and every few days to all ports north of Bernam river. A steamer runs to Teluk Anson from Penang daily. There is also frequent communication by steamers running between Penang and Singapore.

The Dindings, including the island of Pangkor and the district of Dinding on the mainland, which is British territory, come under the administration of the Straits Government. In the interior of Perak, except in mining districts, the population is almost entirely Malay, the exceptions being a few Chinese shopkeepers and the Government establishments, police, etc.; but tribes of Sakeis and Semangs, the supposed aborigines of the country, inhabit the rlistant hills. At Larut, and at the chief mining settlements in the interior, Kinta, Batang Padang, etc., the Chinese form a large part of the population. The total number of ininers in the State, according to a census taken in November 1902, is just over 80,000 . The country is rapidly increasing in importance. On the 1st June, 1885, a railway, $8 \frac{1}{4}$ miles in length, connecting Thaipeng with Port Weld, was formally opened to traffic, The line was extended to Kamunting in May, 1890, and to Ulu Sapetang in June, 1892. The Kinta valley railway, starting from Teluk Anson, runs through laatang Padang to Batu Gajah and Ipoh, and thence to Chemor. The first portion between Teluk Anson and Batang Padang was opened by Sir Cecil Smith in May, 1893, and the last portion between Tanjong Rambutan and Chemor, was opened in November, 1896. On 28th June, 1899, the Bukit Mertajam section of the Perak-Penang railway was opened and in August, 1903 the whole main line from Prai to Seramban a distance of 340 miles was completed. The cost of this line was 31 million dollars. The dividend earned on this capital in 1903 was equal to 6.06 per cent.

It is understood that this extension of the Federated Malay States Railway will be further carried forward so as to connect Province Wellesley and the States with Burma on the north and Siam on the east. There are about 500 miles of telegraph and telephone wires in use.

The country is well suited for coffee, and there are two plantations owned by Europeans doing well, besides smaller ones owned by natives. Chinese tea of good quality is grown on the higher mountain ranges and pepper flourishes at lower levels. The Government are encouraging planting, and with the facilities of transit offered by the new railways and roads, planting is likely to become a very important industry in the Sitate. The cultivation of cocoanuts has been attended with encouraging results and now about 25,000 acres in Perak are turned into cocoanut plantations. Experiments are now being made to cultivate Para liubber. The chief drawback at present is the cost of imported labour.

The only duties levied on exports are a royalty of $$ 11$ per bhara ( 400 lbs .) on tin, and a royalty of one-tenth on timber, ataps, and other jungle produce. The value of the tin exported in 1903 amounted to no less than $$ 35,873.208$, which is nearly equal to the State's total trade five years ago. The total trade in 1903 anounted to $$ 61,212,565$; and the revenue to $$ 11,667.323$, while on 1st January, 1904 , the balance to the credit of the state amounted to $=6,315.831$. The methods of mining are improving annually and the employment of machinery is extending rapidly.

The number of Chinese in Netherlands India on the 31st December, 1900, was 537,316 , of whom 277,265 were in Java and Madoera. The natives on the same date numbered $28,386,121$ in Java and Madoera, and the total number of matives on all the other islands together was then calculated at $r, 575,900$. The number of Arabs was 27,399 , of whom 18,051 were in Jiva and Madoera, and that of other foreign Orientals (Moors, Bengalese, Klings, Malays, and African negroes) 16,650, of whom 3,114 were in Java and Madoera. The increase of the population from 1890 to 1900 was for the Eurojeans 30.9 per cent., Chinese 16.5 per cent., and Aral)s 26.6 per cent.

A great part of the Europeans are employed in or retired from the Government service; next in number are the planters, truders and industrials. The Arabs, Chinese, and other Orientals are almost all tradesmen, but it must be mentioned that some Chinese are in possession of or employed on plantations in Java, and that upwards of 54,000 Chinese are working as labourers on the tobacco estates on the Last Coast of Sumatra, and that thousands of Chinese labourers are employed under European superintendence in the exploitation of the tin mines of Banka and Billiton. The natives are cultivating the soil ; in the large places they also are mechanics, but the practice of the handicrafts is for the greater part in the hands of Chinese.

History, Government

When the Dutch in the last years of the sixteenth century established themselves in the Archipelingo they found there the P'ortuguese. In order to be strong against other European rivals the Dutch East Indian Company was established in 1602 by charter of the General States of the United Netherlands, granting a monopoly for the trade in all the countries east of the Cape of Good Hope to the Strait of Magellan and the right to make treaties with Indian princes, to make war, buidd fortifications, and give commissions to civil and military officers, ctc. The East Indian Company was nearly independent and disposed of large capital. The first proceedings were commercial, but soon the Company extended its power and conquered territory in Java and the Moluccas. The first " Joge" was established at Bantam, then at Jakatra, where the Governor-General, J. P. Coen, male a fortress which he called Batavia (1619).

After a long period of great prosperity the Company fell into decay, the difficulties incrased under a heavy burden of clebts, and in 1800 the States General cancelled the charter and took the administration of the possessions into their own hands. At the same time the British, cluring the war with France and the Netherlands, conquered the greater part of the Jutch colonies. In 1802, ly the treaty of peace concluded at Amiens, the colonies, with the exception of Ceylon, were restored to the Batavian Republic, as the Netherlands were then called, but rluring the war with England that was soon afterwards declared the Dutch again lost all their possessions. After the fall of Napoleon, in 181G, the greater part of the colonies were restored to the Kingdom of the Netherlands and by the London treaty of 17 th March 1824, Malacea and the establishments on the continent of India were exchanged for Benkuelen.

Netherlands India is now governed in the name of the Queen of the Netherlands ly a Governor-General, who is obliged to ask in some cases the advice of the Council of India, consisting of a vice-President, four members, and $n$ secretary. He is Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy, and is seconded by a lieutenantGeneral, Commandant of the Army and Chief of the War Department, and a ViceAdmiral or Rear-Admiral, Commandant of the Navy and Chief of the Marine Department, and further by the five Directors of the Departments of the Home Govermment, Finance, Justice, Education, Public Worship and Industry, and Public Works.

Netherlands India is clivided into provinces under the alministration of Governors or Residencs and their Assistant lesidents and "Controleurs." The direct government of the population is entrusted to natives with the titles of legent, Werdono, and Assistant Wedono in Java and other titles in the other islands. In appointing the mative oflicials it is considered a rule that the people in the different islands, residencies, or districts must be governed if possible by their own chieftains. In Soerakarta and l)jogjakarta, in Java, and in in great many residencies of other islands the native princes have still to a certain degree the rule of the country in their lands, but in fact their power is only nominal and they are dependent on the Govermment of Netherlands-India.

The Supreme Court is located at Jatavia and Courts of Justice are established at Batavia, Samarang, Soembaia, Padang, and Macasser ; there are also Residential Courts in all the Residencies, except at Macasser. The Courts of Justice for the natives are in the capitals of lesidencies an! districts; they have different names, as landuad, rapat, proatin, regentschapsgerecht, districtsgerecht.

Climate

The climate in general is very damp, but in the interior of the large islands it is more dry. Under the equator and at the sca level the temperature reaches npwarls of $35^{\circ}$ Celsius. At a distance from the equator the temperature is not so high and on some mountains it falls to freezing point. In the plains and on the lower mountains the monsoons have a great influence on the climate. To the south of the equator from $A_{\text {pril }}$ to October the south-east monsoon and from October to April the north-west monsoon are blowing, while to the north of the equator the west monsoon hlows from April to October and the east monsoon from October to April. The changes of the monsoons are marked by periods of three to four weeks, during which the wind blows from different directions and storms and calms prevail; these periods are considered to be dangerous to health. The heat is greatest during the south-east monsom and is unly occasionally tempered by thunderstorms, hat the nights are then pretty conl. The west monsom is accompanied by heavy rains continuing for days and sometimes for weoks, swelling the rivers so that the low countries are often inundated. The influence of the monsoons is in many cases modified by high mountains and other local conditions, so that, for instance, it rains nearly every day at Juitenzorg and in some parts of Borneo and in the highlands of Sumatra.

Products

The islands of the Indian Archipeligo have generally a very fertile soil and are rich in useful products. Javia and Madoera excepted, Soevakarta, ]jokjakarta and Besuki produced $74,114,2 \overline{6}$ piculs of rice, $14,921,000$ piculs of sugar thil 297,730 piculs of coffee in 1903. Indian corn is not produced ingreat quantities and not exported. Coffee is cultivated, especially in Java, and Sumatra; sugar and tea in Java; pepper is planted for local use and for export, especially in the Lampong districts (a part of Sumatra). Cacao is only cultivated on a small scale in the Moluceos and the north of Celebes for export, not for local consumption. Tolsoceo is planted in Java ind Sumatra, nutmeg especially in the Molucens, cinnamonin Java and Sumatri, gambier in Sumatra and Rionw. Iripang and mother-of-pearl shells alsu form articles of export ; birds' nests are sent to Chinaz

The export of the principal articles in 1903 amounted to:

Diamonds are found in Borneo, gold in Borneo, Sumatra, Celebes, and Timor, platinum in Borneo, silver in small quantities in Borneo and Sumatra, copper in Timor and Borneo, iron in Celebes, Sumatra, and borneo, tin of excellent quality and in large quantities in Banka, Billiton, and the Carimon islands and of inferior quality in some other islimds, lead in Sumatra and Borneo, zinc in small quantities in Sumatra, coal in Borneo and Sumatra in Java and in Batjan, jodium and naptla in Java, saltpetre in Java, marble in Java and especially in Sumatra. Salt is produced in Madoera of excellent quality, and also in the other islands, by evaporation of the sea water. Kerosene oil is produced in abundance in Java and Sumatra, gives enormous profits, and is also found in Borneo.

The possession of the soil by the matives is strongly protecterl by law. As a general rule the ground cannot he sold to foreigners, not even to Dutchmen, nor to their descendants who are born in India. The Govermment is authorized to dispose of uncultivated grounds and grant parts of them for a certain period to foreigners (erfpacht).

On the 31 st December, 1900, the stock of cattle in Java and Madoera consisted of 2,436,031 buffaloes, 2,654,803 other horned cattle, and 418,400 horses (ponies).

Revenue, Finances

The revenue of the colony is derived from different taxes, viz., export and import duties, excise, ground tax, licences, poll tiax, succession duties and stamp duties, the rent of farms (opium, gambling-houses, pawn-brokers' shops, etc., etc.), monopolies (opium, salt), tin mines, forests, railways, mining, and agricultural concessions, the cultivation of coffee, and sundry petty articles. In former years the cultivation of coffee was the principal source of revenue, but of late years there has been a constant decrease. In the residencies in Java (except Batavia, Bantam, Cheribon, Rembang, Soerabaja, Banjoemas, Soreakarta and Djokjakarta), where the ground is suitable for the cultivation of coffee, a certain number of natives are obliged to plant every year a number of coffee trees, to take care of the plantations, to dry the fruit, and to deliver it into the Government godowns. They are therefore free of ground tax and receive a remuneration at the fixed rate of tifteen guilders per picul.

In nearly all the residencies of Java and Madoera, in Sumatra (except Acheen and dependencies), in Banka, Billiton, and Borneo, private persons are not allowed to make nor to import salt. Fine table salt, salt for medicmal use, and salt wanted for packing preserves, can be inported on payment of a duty. The large bulk of the salt that is wanted for the Government monopoly is marle in Madoera, where the people are obliged to deliver the salt into the Govermment godowns at the fixed rate of ten guilders per kojan ( 1,853 kilogrammes).

After a trial in Madoera (since Soptember 1st, 1894), Lombok and in four residencies of Java, in 1898 the Government resolved upon taking the management of the monopoly into its own hands and to sell the drug on the system of a "regie" to the population without the intermediation of farmers. The "régie" has since been in force in Java, Madoera and Lombok, and in the residency Lampongasche Districten of the island Sumatra. In Bantam and the Preanger-Regencies, the sale of "regie" opium is however only allowed in some places. In regions where the "régie" is introduced the sale of opium otherwise than by "régie" is prohibited. The Resident grants to certain persons a permit to open certain houses where the opium can be smoked. It is forbidden to keep a stock of oplum not derived from the "résie" and the monopoly of the Government is strongly protected by penalties. The revenue of the opium monopoly was calculated for 1903 at $18,141,000$ guilders, of which $12,251,000$ are from the "régie."

The tin mines of lanka are exclusively worked by Government; the management of the exploration, the melting of the ore, and the transport of the tin to the godowns being in the hands of Chinese mining corporations (kongsi's) or of private contractors and their labourers. Two private companies hold concessions for tin mines, one in Billiton and the other in Singkep; the first (Billiton), pays a duty for the farming of the mines. The total quantity produced in $190: 3$ by the Government mines in Banka was 11,453,576 kilogrammes, valued at $17,359,6 \mathrm{in}]$ guilders.

The monetary system of Netherlands India consists of gold coins of the value of ten guilders, silver coins of two guilders and a half, of one guilder, and of half a guilder (these coins are the same as those in the Netherlands) ; besides silver coins of f. 0.25 of f 0.10 and f.005 bearing Malay and Javanese inscriptions, and copper coins of f.0.025 ( $2 \frac{1}{2}$ cent), f. 001 (one cent) and f.0 C05 ( $\frac{1}{2}$ cent). The issue of Bank notes is a monopoly of the Java Bank. These Bank notes are of the value of f.1,000, f.500, f.300, f.200, f. 100 , f.50, f.25, f. 10, and f.5, and payable to bearer on denand. The head office of the Java Bank is at Batavia, and there are agencies at Cheribon, Samarang, Soerabaia, Soerakarta, 1)jogjokarta, Padang, and Macasser.

Army and Navy

The Army of Netherlands Inclia numbers 1,322 officers, 33,131 non-commissioned officers and men. It is separate from and independent of the Netherlands Army. The Commandant is appointed by the Queen. Besides the Army there are different armed tronps, viz.:-
a.-The "Schuttery," being guards residing in some of the larger places designed to co-operate with the Army in maintaining the peace. These guards number about 3,000 men, mostly Europeans, and a few natives and foreign Orientals. The officers get a commission from the Governor-General.
b.-The Legion of the Native l'rince Mangkoe Negoro, consisting of infantry and cavalry, numbering about 800 men.
c.-Barisan, leing native infantry of Madoera, $1,400 \mathrm{men}$, designed to maintain the peace in the island. In case of war in other islands they also participate in the campaigns.
d.-Dragoon Guards of the Soesoehoenan of Soerakartic and the Sultan of Djogjokarta.
P.-Police soidiers.

The Netherlands Navy in these Colonies numbers 250 officers and 2,220 European and 1,099 native non-commissioned officers and sailors, and consists of 28 men-of-war. There is, besides, the Colonial Nayy, consisting of 22 smaller ships with 119 Europeans and 568 natives, employed for civil servjce duties.

Public Worsmip, Education

The Protestant clergymen are appointed by the Queen; they are 41 in number. The Roman Catholic priests are appointed by the lope and recognized by or in the name of the Queen. The Jews have no priests and are so few that in no place have they a synagogue. The Govermment does not interfere with Mahommedan worship, hut pilgrims to Mecca require to take out passports and are obliged to prove that they have sufficient money to pay for the voyage and to support their families during their absence. Chinese religion is as free as all other kinds of public worship.

The Elucational Department sustains a great many schools for Europeans and natives. At Batavia, Samarang, and Soerabaja are schools for higher education; Batavia and Soerabaja have also a school for mechanical engineers, etc. There are, further, 138 Government schools and 30 private schools in Java and 40 Government schools and one private school in the other islands, having on the 31st December, 1903, 21,403 pupils, among whom were 3,128 native children. Five colleges are devoted to the instruction of native schoohnasters, while 640 Govermment vernaculare schools and 1,004 private vernacular schools give instruction to upwards of 136,783 pupils. The greater number of these private schools are managed by missionaries. In Batavia, Djokjakarta, Soerabaja and Samarang are private schools for mechanical engineers and handicraft.

In a great many places private persons can be armitted into the military hospitals, while in the large towns general hospitals are maintained for poor natives and Chinese and other hospitals for infectious diseases. Asylums for the insane are maintainerl $\%$ to Buitenzorg, Soerabaia, and Lawang.

Trade, Navigation

liouw, Bengkalis and Macasser are free ports. The other ports are open for either general trade or only for native coasting navigation. Entrepôts, where goorls can be stored and sold, and from whence they can be exported without payment of import or export duties, are established at Batavia, Cheribon, Semarang, Soerabaja, Yading, Sïboga, Baros, Singkel, Menado, Gorontalo, Ternate, Amboina and Ncira (Banda).

Commercial intercourse is much advanced by the Steam Navigation Company "Koninklyke l'aketvatart Maatschappij," possessing 40 steaners plying across the whole Archipelago. These steamers have splendid accommodation for saloon passengers.

Public Works

On the 1st June 1903 there were 2,060 kilometres of railway in Java and 313. kilometres in Sumatra: 1,905 kilometres of tramway in Java and Madocra and 102 kilometres in Sumatra. The telegraphs extend over $8,338 \cdot 64$ kilometres, the telegraph cables over $3,318 \cdot 98$, together $11,657.62$ kilometres. The balance of revenues and expenditures of the l'ost and 'lelegraph services showed a deficit of f.1,615.601.565; the number of stations was 433 for Java and Madoera and 133 for the other islands.

BATAVIA

Batavia, the resilence of the Government of Netherlands India, is situated in $106^{\circ}$ $48^{\prime}$ E. longiturle and $6^{2} 7^{\prime} \mathrm{S}$. latitude. The old city is built in the ancient Dutch style and was till the beginning of this century surrounded by fortifications, which have since been demolished. It has always been unhealthy, but in 1609 the unfavourable conditions were greatly increased by an eruption of Mount Salak, masses of mud and sand being washed uphy the river Tjiliwong, so that drainage became very ditticult. On account of this unliealthy condition only very few Europeans remain day and night in the old city. The fine large houses are employed for offices and godowns, and in the afternoon, when business is finished, most of the Europens retire to the new town, which is situated south of the old city and built in modern style. Broad roads and spacious squares and nice bungalows surrounded ly gardens form there a healthy place. It was Marshall Daendels who in the first years of this century began to build the new town with the construction of barracks and the palace that was designed to be the residence of the Governor-General, but has never been used as such. It is now utilised for Government offices. It contains the large assembly room for the Governor-(Yeneral and the Council for India, which room contains the portraits of all the Governors-General of Netherlands India. The palace is situated on the west sirle of the Waterloo Square, where are to be seell a monument of the battle of Waterloo, another monument to Cieneral Michiels, and a bronze statue of Jan lieterszoon Coen, which was unveiled when the 250 years' existence of Batavia was celebrated. On the right and left of the palace are the Supreme Court and the Military Club Concordia. At a short distance from the Waterlooplein is another and larger square, the Koningsplein, each side of which is nearly one mile long. The square is surrounded by elegant comfortable houses, the residences of the higher officials and wealthy merchants. There is also a tine church, Willemskerk, near the railway station, and the museum of the Batavian Society of Arts and Sciences.

The old city and the new are connected by three railways, two tramways, and wide roads for carriages. Different Banks and Banking Corporations have agencies at Batavia, viz:--The Netherlands 'rading Society (Nederlandsche Hanclel Maatschappij), with a capital of $60,000,000$ (of which f. $45,000,000$ pairl up) and a reserve capital of f.5,000,000 gave a dividend of 7 per cent. in 1903. The Netherlands Indian Mercantile Bank (Nederlandsch Indische Ifandelsbank), with a capital of f.7,200,000 and a reserve capital of $\mathrm{f} 1,576,67040$ promotes trade, industry, and agriculture in Netherlands India, advances money to agricultinal estates and for the trade in produce. The Colonial Bank, caplital f. $10,000,000$, also supplies capital to estates and promotes agricultural enterprise. The Netherlands Indian Escompto Company, with a capital of f. $4,000,000$ and a reserve capital of f.282,000, does general banking business, ardvances money on shares, etc. There are also agencies of the Hongkong and Shanghai Janking Corporation and of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China.

The port of Tandjong Priok is in communication with Batavia by railway and by a canal. The outer harbour is formed by two piers 1,850 metress long; the entrance is 125 metres wide, and the depth is 8 metres. The inner harbour has a quay 1,100 metres long and 175 metres wide; the water has a depth of 7.50 metres. There is extensive accommodation for coaling and in the docks and workshops all kinds of repairs to vessels can be made. The expenses for the construction of the harbour and annexed works amounted to $26 \frac{1}{2}$ millions of guilders.

The harbour was visited in 1890 by 647 steamers and 53 sailing ships
